ROOT DEFENDS COURT PLAN AS STEP TO PEACE

Insists Revised Protocol Preserves American Reservations.

PLEADS VIGOROUSLY U. S. JOIN TRIBUNAL

Statesman, 86, Answers Quiz by Senators in Three-Hour Argument.

(Associated Press.)

Elihu Root told the Senate foreign relations committee yesterday the revised protocol for American adherence to the world court preserved unimpaired the reservation stipulated by the Senate five years ago.

For almost three hours, America's 86-year-old jurist and statesman explained and defended the revised protocol which he helped to draft at the suggestion of Calvin Coolidge, to break the deadlock existing between this Nation and other powers over the Senate's reservations.

Before a crowd that overflowed from the spacious committee room, Mr. Root concluded his analysis with a vigorous plea that America participate in the court as a contribution to the future peace of the world. He pounded the table and raised his voice to emphasize his plea.

Submitted to Questions.

After making an uninterrupted statement of more than two hours, Mr. Root submitted to questions by doubtful committee members. He parried with his interrogators willingly, and only once did the throng of women break the injunction of silence which Chairman Borah had imposed.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, who said he has not determined his attitude on the modified world court protocol, led in the examination given Mr. Root, a former Secretary of State and former member of the Senate.

Reed expressed doubt that the revised protocol had not impaired the reservation of the Senate that the world court should not render an advisory opinion in any controversy which the United States has, or claims to have, an interest, without first receiving the consent of this Government.

"Has Absolute Veto Power."

Mr. Root replied that, under the new court rule, the United States has an "absolute veto power" over advisory opinion affecting it.

Reed said Mr. Root took a broader view, then, than that held by Secretary Stimson.

Borah, an outspoken foe of the court, inquired of Mr. Root "if there is any circumstance under which the court may render an advisory opinion affecting the United States without the consent of the United States?"

"I don't think so," was Mr. Root's reply.

Johnson Seeks Light.

"The Senate's reservation stands unimpaired by the protocol?" asked Senator Johnson (Republican), California, another foe of the court.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Root firmly.

Mr. Root explained that two obstacles stood in the way of acceptance by other powers of the Senate's reservations regarding advisory opinions.

"First," he said, "in the asking of advisory opinion of the court, the Assembly and the Council of the of the League of Nations would be obliged to proceed in ignorance of the attitude of the United States. It would throw doubt and delay around all proceedings.

"Second, there was ignorance on the part of the counsel of the other powers as to the meaning of the term impended in the reservation. There was ignorance as to the scope the United States would give to the term 'interests.'

"Proceedings Can Be Stayed."

"The problem presented to the negotiators of the protocol now before you was how to secure acceptance of that reservation without permitting

WEEK OF FIVE DAYS BACKED BY ROBINSON

Creation of Reserves to Aid Workers in Bad Times Also Advocated.

CROP DIVERSITY URGED

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A five-day week, or a six-hour day in industry, and creation of reserves to bridge periods of depression were proposed tonight by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, as a preventive for future unemployment.

Addressing the National Stone Crushers Association, Mr. Robinson also proposed the slogan "Back to the Land" for a permanent farm relief program. He said the "short-sighted political policy of levying prohibitive tariffs on foreign-made commodities, while the prices of comparable domestic articles are boosted by monopolistic combinations," was partially to blame for the current depression.

"It is believed," Senator Robinson said, "that careful study will facilitate two movements of fundamental and permanent influence:

"First, the establishment in industry of the five-day week or six-hour day, thus making place and giving room for an increased number who must live by toil and at the same time assuring better standards of living, greater opportunities of recreation and the acquirement of knowledge.

"Second, the practicability of reserves to bridge over periods of unemployment. Reserves established through contributions from both labor and industry are worthy of consideration as a partial permanent remedy.

"Can not the wage earner afford to have set aside during periods of prosperity a fixed percentage of his earnings, and can not industry justify contributing a share to the creation of unemployment reserves calculated to preserve the morale of the workers and the stabilization of enterprise during periods of contraction and depression?"

"While at first thought it seems of doubtful advantage, the slogan 'Back to the Land' epitomizes sound thought in connection with permanent farm relief," Mr. Robinson continued. "It implies diversification of crops, the production of food, feed and other necessities, in spite of low prices for what are known as 'money crops.'"

Touching briefly on the contest he waged in the Senate for Federal relief appropriations, Mr. Robinson said, "the obligation is upon the Government representing the people as a whole to safeguard from starvation and hunger its citizens who suffer

3 Representatives Make Addresses to Men at House Wing.

Smoot Announces Senate Committee Will Have Hearing Monday.

Able and disabled war veterans, carrying flags and banners and led by the fife and drum corps of Victory Post of the American Legion, staged a demonstration in front of the House wing of the Capitol yesterday in favor of legislation providing for cash payments on their adjusted compensation certificates.

Headed by a police escort, the veterans began their march at the District Building, and those who couldn't walk brought up the rear in motor buses. They sang the songs they sang in war time as they marched down the avenue, to the accompaniment of cheers from some onlookers, to be greeted at the Capitol by three Democratic representatives.

Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, told them that they were aiding the cause of millions of former soldiers and their families. One-third of the money of the Nation has been withdrawn from circulation and payment of the cash bonuses would help the present economic situation, Mr. Patman said. Representative John E. Rankin, of Mississippi, and Representative William P. Connery, jr., of Massachusetts, also addressed the veterans, approving of the payment of cash to them.

While this demonstration was outside the Capitol, Democrats in both House and Senate sought to commit the chairmen of the finance committees to promise to report one or another of the many pending measures providing for cash payments to the veterans.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon advised the House ways and means committee that passage of such legislation would seriously affect national finances and economic condi-

JURY RECEIVES CASE OF CLARA BOW'S AID

SPICY TALES FILL TRIAL

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The theft case of Daisy De Boe was given to a jury of seven men and five women at 3:10 p. m. today.

David Clark, chief prosecutor, in the State's closing plea flayed defense witnesses and Nathan O. Freedman, counsel for the former secretary to Clara Bow. He charged they "deliberately" raised generalities as a smoke screen to cover direct evidence of the alleged theft by Miss De Boe of $15,300 from the actress.

"It is plain to you," Clark said, "that the testimony of most of the defense witnesses about money they received from Miss Bow through Miss De Boe was in amusing conflict with the actual facts shown in checks."

The prosecutor, turning to face the blonde young defendant, declared she plotted deliberately to get everything she "could lay her hands on" when she learned last November that she was to be discharged.

"She went out and bought a lot of things," Clark said. "She paid all of her bills with Miss Bow's money.

"Then she got hold of the canceled checks and the actress' love letters, the one to hide because she knew that if it was found it would reveal her guilt, and the other to use as a blackjack on the actress if her act should be discovered."

When the sensational news of the alleged theft reached the newspapers, Clark continued, Miss De Boe made a final effort to hush it up.

"She went to Miss Bow's attorney and demanded $125,000 or she would give the love letters to the papers and tell about her life with Clara. It was blackmail, and what a picture Miss De Boe saw in her mind—the love letters of a famous actress on the front page."

The charge of Miss De Boe early in the trial that she knew "one more slam in the papers and Clara would be through," also was not forgotten.

BRITISH LABOR CABINET LOSES; WILL NOT QUIT

Amendment to Education Bill Is Accepted and Measure Wins.

GOVERNMENT MARGIN SHRINKS TO 18 VOTES

Winston Churchill Scores Premier for Bowing to Humiliation.

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's Labor governmnet was defeated by 33 votes in a division on the controversial education bill in the House of Commons tonight, but some hours later carried the bill victoriously thorugh third reading by 256 votes against 238—a government majority of 18.

The measure now goes to the House of Lords.

The defeat had no immediate consequence, for immediately after the division Mr. MacDonald announced to a wildly excited House that no big question of general principle was involved and that the government would carry on.

The defeat came mainly as the result of the intrusion of a religious controversy into politics, for the division in which the government found itself outvoted, 282 to 249, was taken on an amendment to the education bill, moved by John Scurr, a Catholic Laborite.

Shouts of "Resign" Raised.

This amendment called for the passage of an act giving financial assistance to religious schools before the main education bill is put into operation. The amendment was carried against the government. Mr. MacDonald later announced the cabinet would accept the amendment.

Shouts of "Resign!" were hurled from the Conservative benches when the division figures were announced.

After Mr. MacDonald had made it clear he had no nitention of doing any thing of the kind, Winston Churchill, former Conservative minister, spoke of the government's "humiliation" and said Mr. MacDonald was the greatest living master of the art of falling without hurting himself. The premier, however, remained calm, and the excitement soon subsided.

Amendment Bitterly Fought.

For some time the Scurr amendment and the education bill itself have been considered sources of great potential danger to the government. The amendment particularly was bitterly opposed by the free church elements in the House, who have fought any augmentation of the authority of denominational schools.

The education bill itself raises the age at which children may leave school from 14 to 15 years and authorizes grants to poor parents for children coming within the provision of the act. It was opposed by the Conservatives as an "unwarranted sop" to parents.

Apart from the government defeat, this evening was made politically notable by a meeting of the Liberal Parliamentary party to consider the action to be taken on the second reading of the trade disputes act, debate upon which begins tomorrow.

It was understood that the majority of the Liberals agreed to abstain from voting in the division which will take place early next week, and unless there are unexpected developments in the meantime the government was therefore considered safe from defeat.

Would Entail Resignation.

Defeat in that case, unlike that of tonight, was regarded as almost certain to entail resignation of the ministry.

The Liberals, however, were understood to have determined to move

The life of constitutional prohibition last night was in the keeping of the Supreme Court. Within a few weeks it is to hand down a ruling sustaining or invalidating the eighteenth amendment.

Yesterday it listened intently to arguments supporting and attacking the recent decision of Federal Judge William Clark, of New Jersey, holding the amendment was improperly ratified because submitted to the State Legislatures rather than popular-vote conventions.

PENNSYLVANIA SUED FOR BUYING ROADS

$106,500,000 AT STAKE

New York, Jan. 21 (N.Y.W.N.S.—Suit for an accounting of $106,500,000 against the president and directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad charging that their acquisition of controling interests in the Wabash and Lehigh Valley three years ago was illegal, was revealed today when Supreme Court Justice Byrne, of Brooklyn, signed an order transferring the action from the county to the Federal courts.

The stockholder in whose name the proceeding was brought, Mrs. Mary Van L. Guiterman, of Hewlett Bay Park, Long Island, asks that the amount paid by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and the subsidiary Pennsylvania Company, plus carrying charges which are estimated at $2,500,000 a year over dividends, be repaid to the railroad treasury.

The Pennsylvania, the complaint sets forth, acquired on February 1, 1927, 48 per cent of the stock of the Wabash and 30 per cent of the Lehigh, and since that time has controlled more than 50 per cent of the stock voted. This action, it is charged, operated as a combination in restraint of trade, violating the Clayton and the Sherman antitrust acts.

According to the complaint, hearings were held in May, 1929, by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the issue and the directors of the Pennsylvania were ordered to dispose of the company's holding in Lehigh and Wabash, a decision that has been appealed to the courts.

BIG RED CROSS SUM IS VOTED BY SENATE

Fund Dispute Now Goes to House; Wheeler Blocks Deficiency Measure.

SESSION GOES INTO NIGHT

(Associated Press.)

The blockade in the Senate on the vital appropriation bills which must be passed before March 4 adjournment broke long enough last night to permit passage of one of these measures—the Interior Department bill.

However, an attempt to get action on the $120,000,000 urgent deficiency bill, carrying more than $20,000,000 for immediate public construction work, was blocked by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana. He said he wanted an opportunity to study the bill and would be ready today.

The Interior bill, carrying the disputed $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund, was passed only after the Senate went into night session to end four days of talk. This controversial Red Cross appropriation is now up to the House.

With the appropriation bills piling up in the Senate, leaders are considering drastic measures to get them to passage. These bills must be passed if the extra session is to be avoided.

Mr. Wheeler was able to block consideration of the deficiency measure because the Senate was under a previous agreement to take up the contested nomination of Eugene Meyer, of New York, as Governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Senator Moses, the president protem, ruled that this agreement could be set aside only by unanimous consent when Senator McNary of Oregon, the assistant Republican Leader, at 7:15 p. m., moved to take up the deficiencey measure.

Blocked by what he termed "this unusual ruling," Senator McNary agreed to a recess until tomorrow.

Wickersham Denies Any Presidential Influence in Report.

BILL IN SENATE ASKS QUIZ OF CHAIRMAN

Repeal Measure Offered in House; Public Mystification Continues.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD

The row over the Wickersham report took on a partisan political aspect last night when Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, assailed President Hoover for his "ungraceful" position in conection with the report.

By appointing a commission to make a courageous study of prohibition, and then turning down its principal recommendation, the Democratic spokesman said, President Hoover has shown his "insincerity" and has wasted $500,000 of the taxpayers' money. This was the sum appropriated for the commission's expenses.

Meanwhile, to a lot of citizens, the Wickersham report remains a mystery document. They don't know whether it is wet or dry; whether the commission wants to revise the eighteenth amendment now, revise it later, or revise it at all.

Tydings Demands Explanation.

On Capitol Hill, a move was made to find out just what the Wickersham commission really did mean.

Senator Tydings, wet Democrat, of Maryland, introduced a resolution which directs the judiciary committee to call Chairman Wickersham and ask him these two questions:

By what method were the "apparently contradictory conclusions and recommendations" arrived at?

Did any "authorities who were not members of the commission" make any suggestions to the commission with regard to what it should say in its report?

Chairman Wickersham answered the second query early in the day in the following statement:

"The statement this morning in the Washington Herald that the President persuaded this commission to abandon a tentative recommendation in favor of revision of the eighteenth amendment is absolutely untrue."

Denies Hoover Influence.

Last night Chairman Wickersham issued a second statement, this one in the name of the commission. It said:

"The attention of the chairman and members of the National Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement has been drawn to statements in certain newspapers that the President had persuaded this commission to abandon at the last moment recommendations for the revision of the eighteenth amendment. These statements are wholly without foundation. At no time has the President in any manner attempted to influence the recommendations of this commission.

"Further suggestions embodied in telegrams received by members of this commission from various newspapers to the effect that a change was made in the report after it was signed, and that such change was made at the suggestion of the President, are absolutely false."

Senate May Act Soon.

For the answer to his second query—how a commission preponderantly wet came to approve a set of dry recommendations—Senator Tydings must wait until the Senate acts on his resolution. There is a possibility that it will be voted on today.

Aside from the hectic comment over what the Wickersham report really meant, the talk yesterday principally concerned the possible political effects the report will have.

That President Hoover will seek renomination and reelection as a dry now is accepted by politicians of both parties. They believe he made this clear when he vigorously disapproved the Wickersham commission's sugges-

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The situation between France and Italy again illustrates how extremely difficult it is for nations to get away from the age-old policy of trying to rely mostly on force for security. Those nations were unable to agree on naval armaments at the London conference. They did arrange a truce in naval building which is reported now ending, with Italy proposing to build gun for gun with France.

About the only progress made is a tacit admission all around that such action is not a good solution of the problems involved. National pride is the main difficulty. Both countries declare their desire for peace, but to each security means more arms in their own hands or the promise of more arms to be furnished by other people.

The Washington and London treaties show these differences can be adjusted. Therein lies the hope. The pressure of high taxes will work on the side of reason. With the protection of the league of the covenant, the Locarno agreement, and the world peace treaty, the European nations are in a position to make concessions in armaments. They know the attitude of our public opinion on peace and our disinclination to finance war.

tion that the eighteenth amendment be revised, if it can not be enforced.

Fess Links Hoover and Report.

Senator Fess (Republican), of Ohio, speaking as an individual and not as chairman of the Republican national committee, said at the White House he expected President Hoover's stand on the Wickersham report to be his stand in the 1932 campaign. He said, however, he had not talked to the President about the matter.

Senator David I. Wash (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said the President, beyond doubt, had espoused the dry cause.

The betting now is that the Democrats at their next convention will nominate a wet as their presidential candidate. Nevertheless, Jouett Shouse, in his statement attacking President Hoover, was careful not to attack his dry views.

Shouse Gives His View.

"The theory of the creation of this commission," Shouse said, "was based on the ostensible Hoover system of obtaining the ripened conclusions of eminent citizens on a point which he felt himself unable to determine, or for which he had not the time to give adequate consideration.

"When he sent the Wickersham report to Congress and coupled it with his declaration of disapproval of the sole recommendation in which a majority of the commission agreed, he testified to his own insincerity and confirmed the theory that the Wickersham Commission was nothing more than an effort to put off as long as possible a declaration of his own position.

"Of course, it is obvious that the President intended all the time to maintain the dry position he assumed during the campaign preceding his election. There can be no complaint against him on this point; but if he was determined to maintain his original point of view, what excuse is there for the wasting of half a million dollars at a time when he is warning the country of a Treasury deficit and the Treasury is being subjected to the additional strain of providing relief for the sufferers from business depression and the drought that has prostrated the farmer? * * *

"Evasive, Inept."

"The net conclusion of the whole episode is less a criticism of the Wickersham Commission than disappointment of the country and the demonstration of a leadership under President Hoover that is evasive, inept and torouous."

The Tydings resolution was only one of several pieces of legislation bearing on the Wickersham report which were introduced yesterday.

In the House, Representative LaGuardia, wet Republican, of New York, introduced a resolution calling for a sweeping investigation of the whole structure of prohibition, in order to get at the "shocking" evidence of graft which was mentioned by Judge William S. Kenyon, a member of the commission.

Representative Franklin Fort, dry Republican, of New Jersey, declared that the question of repeal or revision of the eighteenth amendment should be submitted to constitutional conventions in the States forthwith, to the end that there can be a show-down on the controversy.

Repeal Introduced.

Representative Frederick Lehlbach, wet Republican, of New Jersey, introduced a resolution to repeal the eighteenth amendment and to give Congress the power to help the States enforce and regulate their own liquor laws.

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, issued a statement last night in which he said the point of the Wickersham report was its finding that prohibition is unenforceable, because so many Americans look upon it with hatred.

The association's biggest rival, the Anti-Saloon League, had said the night before the main point was the commission's recommendation for more drastic enforcement. This indicates the kind of report the Wickersham commission made.

In the face of the commission's findings, Curran said, "The President virtually tears his commission's report to pieces when he sends it to Congress with the message that he is opposed to repeal, opposed to revision and in favor of more money and more laws for more attempts at enforcement."

Time to Act, Says Curran.

The serious situation in which prohibition finds itself, Curran said, shows the time has come to submit to the people the question of repeal or retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mrs. John R. Williams, a member of the executive committee of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, said the report was "like a revolving door."

"You go in one way," she commented, "and go out another."

Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, chairman of the legislative committee of the same organization, said the commission had failed to settle the issue of prohibition.

Edwin C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau, said the report of the Wickersham commission "shows painstaking care in its judicial study of the whole problem, and certainly can not fail to please and encourage the friends of the prohibitory policy."

Pollard Opposes Wickersham Plan

Clause Eleven of Report Held to Give Congress Too Much Power.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. John Garland Pollard, in commenting today on the Wickersham prohibition report, expressed the opinion that it would be unwise to invest Congress with as much jurisdiction in prohibition matters as is provided for in recommendation 11 of the report.

The governor said the recommendation suggesting that Congress be given power to regulate or prohibit liquor traffic in the event that the eighteenth amendment is revised would result in continual turmoil in public affairs.

"This recommendation," the governor said, "would give Congress the power to permit the reestablishment of saloons. Not only this, but Congress, under such a provision, would be the supreme authority in matters of prohibition and, therefore, in the selection of representatives, their views on prohibition would be more and more a determining factor."

MEDDLING CHARGED TO NYE COMMITTEE

Supervised and Influenced Senatorial Elections, Democrats Hold.

'UNFAIR,' CHAIRMAN SAYS

(Associated Press.)

Charges that the Nye campaign funds committee had supervised and influenced senatorial elections last fall were made and denied in the Senate yesterday during debate on the Norris resolution to extend the committee's power to seize ballot boxes of those elections.

The assertions were made by Democrats who blocked action on the proposal of Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, with arguments that no such authority should be granted unless contests were filed.

The resolution is designed to pave the way for seizing the ballot boxes in Alabama, where Senator Heflin charges the election was "stolen" from him. Both Heflin and John H. Bankhead, who defeated him, have urged an investigation, and the Nye committee has investigators there now.

Opposed by Caraway.

Senator Caraway (Democrat), Arkansas, in opposing the resolution, said the Nye committee and its investigators had gone into certain States last fall and "supervised and influenced" the election.

Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, chairman of the committee, said the charge was "unfair" and that all his committee was endeavoring to do was to ascertain if those in charge of the campaign were "doing their duty."

Senator Stephens (Democrat), Mississippi, joined Caraway in his contention, but blamed the Senate rather than the Nye committee.

"I grant that the committee was following what appeared to be the mandate of the Senate," he said, "but I do not approve of the course taken."

"Investigations should be conducted in the regular way, after the filing of contests," he added. "In effect, there has been a supervision of elections that is wholly unwarranted by law."

No Contest Yet by Heflin.

Mr. Stephens said Senator Heflin could have filed a contest the day after election. Senator Heflin previously had said he had until March 4 to file on, but had not done so thus far for fear "the ballots would be burned."

Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, also took the position that ballots should not be seized except where contests are filed. He offered an amendment to that effect, but Norris declined to accept it.

Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, said there was ample precedent for the Norris proposal in the fact that ballot boxes were impounded in the Pennsylvania election in 1926.

"Regardless of whether a contest has been filed," he said, "if there is evidence of manipulation it might be very important for the committee to investigate."

Senator Heflin expressed regret that Democrats opposed the Norris proposition. He said he had no apology to make for opposing Alfred E. Smith in 1928, for which he was forced off the Democratic ticket last fall, and if the former Democratic Governor of New York ran again in 1932 he would oppose him in the same way.

French Paper Belittles Wickersham Decision

We do further certify that, pursuant to said resolutions of the board of directors and unanimous consent and waiver of notice signed by all of the stockholders of said company, a meeting of the stockholders of said company was duly convened and held on the 24th day of December, 1930, at the office of said company in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and that at said meeting the following resolutions were duly adopted by the unanimous vote of the holders of the entire capital stock of said company: "Resolved, That the name of the company be changed from Chevy Chase Dairy to Capital City Dairy; and further Resolved, That the proper officers of the company be and hereby are authorized to execute and file in the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia a certificate of amendment to the certificate of incorporation of the company changing its corporate name to Capital City Dairy." In witness whereof, we have hereunto signed our names and affixed the seal of the corporation, this 9th day of January, 1931. (Corporate Seal.) RAYMOND J. WISE, President; BERNARD M. WISE, Secretary.
City of Washington, District of Columbia, ss:
I, Chas. W. Peckham, a notary public in and for the District of Columbia, do hereby certify that Raymond J. Wise and Bernard M. Wise, parties to the foregoing and annexed certificate, dated January 9, 1931, personally appeared before me in the said city and district, the said Raymond J. Wise and Bernard M. Wise being personally well known to me as the persons who executed the said certificates, and known to me to be the president and secretary, respectively, of Chevy Chase Dairy, and acknowledged the same to be their act and deed and as and for the act and deed of the said company. Given under my hand and official seal, this 9th day of January, 1931. (Notarial Seal.) CHAS. W. PECKHAM, Notary Public. (My commission expires October 22, 1932.)

DRY AMENDMENT ATTACKED BEFORE SUPREME COURT

had already settled the issues presented in favor of the validity of the amendment and that it was within the discretion of Congress to choose the mode of ratification.

Supporting the Clark decision, Julius Henry Cohen and Selden Bacon, New York attorneys, maintained it was mandatory that a proposed constitutional amendment subjecting individual rights to Federal control be ratified by State conventions.

The small courtroom was crowded with spectators. Many members of Congress were present. A long line waited outside the door seeking admittance.

Only once throughout the entire argument did a member of the court interrupt to ask a question. It is customary for the judges to question counsel freely.

At the outset of the session, Chief Justice Hughes withdrew from the case. He said he had submitted a brief when prohibition was before the court a decade ago and felt this disqualified him.

Thacher's argument was based upon a contention that article V of the Constitution clearly had given Congress authority to determine the manner in which amendments should be ratified, whether by legislature or convention. He insisted the court by repeated decisions, especially in national prohibition cases of 1920, had already decided the discretion of Congress in this particular could not be limited or abridged by interpretations of the intentions of the authors of the Constitution.

Cohen and Bacon argued the liberties of the people were at stake and that if legislatures could legally abrogate their constitutional rights, then the Government would degenerate into a despotic oligarchy.

They made frequent references to the opinions of John Marshall, famed Chief Justice of the early days of the republic, and to the writings of James Madison, who had an important share in framing the Constitution.

The one question asked by the court came from Associate Justice Sutherland. He inquired of Bacon whether it was contended the eighteenth amendment to be valid must be submitted to the direct vote of the people.

Bacon's reply was it should have to State conventions. When the Constitution was written, he said, the people were not thinking of referenda.

Solicitor General Thacher used but half an hour of the two-hour period assigned to him, and declined to present additional argument after Cohen and Bacon had finished. Their arguments consumed their entire two hours.

German Fascism Attacked.

Berlin, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency announced today Lion Feuchtwanger, noted novelist and playwright, had issued an appeal to all German intellectuals to establish a united front to ght the menace of German Fascism, which he characterized as "organized barbarism."

GROUPS TO CONSIDER 2 SMALL LOAN BILLS

House Committee Will Hold Public Hearing Tomorrow on Measures.

INTENDED FOR DISTRICT

Small loan legislation for the District will be considered by the House and Senate District committees tomorrow, the latter meting at 2:30 o'clock when it will hold a public hearing on the Capper Credit Unions bill and the Bowman small loan bill, sponsored by the Russell Sage Foundation.

The House committee is to meet to consider the Bowman bill, and the group is expected to report it out of committee with amendments. The measure was considered at a meeting of the committee yesterday; and approved amendments were offered by Representative Merlin Hull, (Republican), of Wisconsin, requiring a bond of $5,000, a license fee of $250 and a paid in cash operating fund for persons or concerns engaging in the loan business under the law.

Representative Carver, (Democrat), of Georgia, said he had some other amendments to offer and Representative Hull also reserved an amendment to protect civil service employes from prejudicial treatment by lenders. These amendments will be offered tomorrow morning.

Leon Henderson, director of the division of loans of the Russell Sage Foundation, Roy F. Bergengren, of the Credit Union Extension Bureau, and W. C. Hushing, of the American Federation of Labor, are among witnesses to be heard by the Senate District committe. Each is expected to give approval to bothe the credit unions bill and the small loan measure, which it is said, are not in conflict.

Man Sates Ambition By Drifting on River

Special to The Washington Post.

St. Louis, Jan. 21.—Seventy-year-old J. W. Preston, of East St. Louis, Ill., is drifting down the Mississippi these days in a homemade boat with nothing to do but "get a little lazier every day." Thus he is realizing the ambition of a lifetime.

His Menu consists of fish for breakfast, fish for lunch, fish dinner. A duck adds variety occasionally. He floats along with the current and watches the sun go down. Sometimes he watches the fishpole and sometimes the scenery. "It's what I've always wanted to do," he says. Preston formerly was an automobile upholsterer.

The Lowest Ebb Marks the Turn of the Tide

An old adage declares that "There's a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." That the tide of prosperity has ebbed to the lowest point is indicated by many signs of business resumption.

Washington's share in the era of recession has been more sympathetic than actual, due to the stabilizing influence of the great Government pay roll as well as the location in this city of embassies, legations and the homes of many families of means. Nevertheless, the psychology of depression has been reflected in a diminished demand for real estate with, as a consequence, opportunities now for investment in business and residential properties at prices far below normal values.

Wise investors remember that no pendulum swings only in one direction. They are seeing the signs of the upward swing of business and are taking advantage of present bargains in real estate.

Two factors that are making the future of real estate in the District definitely promising are, first, the acquirement by the Government of large areas of urban and suburban property; second, the coming of millions to the District during the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration. There can be but one result from both causes—an unprecedented demand

What are you doing about it?
Will you wait till too late or
Will you grasp present opportunities?

This is a time for decision—not depression!

TULSA UNIVERSITY COED SHOT DOWN

WOMAN UNDER ARREST

Tulsa, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A woman student at the University of Tulsa was shot and dangerously wounded on the college campus today by the wife of her former employer.

Driving up behind Miss Charlotte Caudell, 28, as she was parking her automobile, Mrs. Asbury Endacott, wife of a Tulsa architect, left her car and fired two shots from a pistol at Miss Caudell. One bullet entered the girl's right lung and the other her left side.

Miss Caudell was secretary to Endacott when he was city water commissioner. His term expired last spring.

Police arrested Mrs. Endacott at the scene of the shooting. Officers said she told them she had attempted repeatedly "to persuade Miss Caudell to leave my husband alone."

Pistol Is Bought.

"I had purchased this pistol for protection against burglars," Mrs. Endacott was quoted. "This morning I got to thinking about it all, and I decided to see her. I meant to ask her to leave my husband alone.

"I saw her parking her car and I parked nearby. I walked over toward her as she was alighting from her car. She saw me and grabbed an iron bar and I took my pistol and shot her."

Endacott had been living at a Tulsa hotel for several months. He visited his home almost daily, usually taking his three children to school. County authorities said the filing of charges against Mrs. Endacott would be held up pending developments in Miss Caudell's condition.

Altercation Reported.

Shortly after reaching the hospital Miss Caudell made her only statement.

"It was our trouble—it happened because of our trouble," she whispered before lapsing into unconsciousness.

"I have nothing to say," Endacott told reporters. "I am not talking now."

Shortly before Endacott's term as water commissoiner expired Mrs. Endacott had an altercation with Miss Caudel. Entering her husband's office, Mrs. Endacott struck the young woman with a telephone after accusing her of stealing Endacott's affections. "I'm sorry I shot her," Mrs. Endacott told reporters after she had been transferred to the county jail late today. "I'm glad she has a chance to live."

tence of 35 to 350 years on the 35 counts of grand theft.

The jurors, before receiving the case listened to spicy stories of "inside life" of Hollywood. Frequently in their arguments attorneys on both sides reminded jurors of the stories told by the two women in their appearance on the witness stand—stories of liquor parties, gambling and love affairs.

WAR VETERANS URGE CASH COMPENSATIONS

tions. Mr. Mellon's letter had particular reference to the cash payment bill introduced by Representative John Garner, of Texas, and did not specifically disapprove the ill although emphasizing results of its enactment.

Would Require $2,000,000,000.

The measure would require distribution of $2,000,000,000 by the Federal Treasury, Mr. Mellon said, adding that he thought it would be conceded that $2,000,000,000 could not be raised by taxation. He pointed out administrative difficulties and said the measure would not be in the interests of the veterans themselves.

Representative Garner read to the House a part of the report in which Secretary Mellon said the subject demanded "very careful consideration" and sought to get Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, Republican floor leader, to commit the ways and means committee to hold a hearing on the subject.

Representative Willis C. Hawley (Republican), of Oregon, chairman of the committee, entered at that moment, but he refused to promise to call his committee together to consider the subject. Mr. Garner asked if he could hope and Mr. Hawley said it always was a good thing to hope.

In the Senate, however, proponents of the legislation got further along. Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, announced that his committee would begin hearings on the question on Monday.

The announcement was made when Senator Thaddeus Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, sought action on a request that the committee be discharged from further consideration of the matter. That would place the bill on the calendar and he intended to see to it that the matter was brought to a point where there would be a vote.

Legion Committee to Meet.

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Raymond Fields, American Legion national committeeman for Oklahoma, said today that the executive committee of the legion would meet Sunday in Indianapolis to decide on a stand concerning proposed cash payment of adjusted service certificates.

Fields said the meeting was assured following a proposal sent to State departments by Oklahoma legion officials. The Oklahoman left today for Washington, where he will confer with representatives favoring the cash payment proposal before going to Indianapolis.

Illinois W. C. T. U. Lauds President's Message

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Executives of the Illinois Women's Christian Temperance Union sent a telegram to President Hoover today complimenting him on his message which accompanied the Wickersham report and saying they would "cheer him "from now on until after his second election."

The telegram said in part: "Your brief and strong message to Congress disclaiming any intention to agree with those who would weaken prohibition marks you as the leader the Nation needs in this critical moment."

Cornell Professor to Speak Here.

Dr. Clark Northrup, head of the history department at Cornell University, will address the Washington Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa on February 16, it was announced last night. His topic will be "The Wealth of the Indies." Wade Ellis, attorney, entertained the group at last night's meeting.

COLORADO JOBLESS MARCH ON CAPITOL

SAY 100,000 LACK WORK

Denver, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A crowd of from 2,000 to 3,000 unemployed men marched on the State capitol today and presented to the Senate resolutions declaring there are "100,000 persons out of work in Colorado, many of whom are near death from starvation."

Spokesmen for the men urged immediate establishment of a State insurance fund for the unemployed; asked that the salaries of all State officers be reduced, and concluded with a demand that charitable organizations be restrained from administering relief for the unemployed.

Among banners carried by the delegation were, "On with the hunger march," "We want bread," "Work or wages."

More than 100 police were assigned to the capitol. There was no disorder.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A committee of unemployed men numbering from 300 to 400 appeared before the city commission today with a demand for unemployment pay of $10 a week to single men and $15 a week to married men.

Other demands were: Increase of $3 to $4 a day in wages for emergency relief work, free milk in schools for children of the unemployed, cessation of eviction of unemployed persons, elimination of private employment agencies, and establishment of a free employment bureau.

The committee was assured the demands would be given consideration.

was placed before the House banking committee as it continued its study of measures intended to grant additional drought relief.

Representatives Blanton, of Texas, and Hare, of South Carolina, Democrats, expressed inability to see the wisdom of congressional action approving expenditure of $150,000,000 for the farm board revolving fund and $45,000,000 for loans, yet permit Federal Farm Loan and Land Banks to "take the soil away from the tillers."

Hare strongly urged consideration of his bill which, among other things, would permit Federal intermediate credit banks to make loans to cooperative associations on products up to 75 per cent of the value.

Blanton supported his resolution to suspend foreclosures by Federal land banks until January 1, 1932.

(Associated Press.)

The "universal draft" commission, charged with finding a way of conscripting private property as well as man power in time of war, organized here yesterday with the selection of Secretary Hurley as chairman. Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, was chosen vice chairman. The commission includes four members of the Cabinet and four members each of the Senate and House.

It is directed by Congress "to study and consider amending the Constitution of the United States to provide that private property may be taken by Congress for public use during the war, and methods of equalizing the burdens and to remove the profits of war, together with a study of policies to be pursued in event of war."

It has directed a thorough study of all Governmnet agencies to devise the program for universal conscription. The commission is specifically directed not to consider the conscription of labor.

"Wilderness of Words" Says James A. Reed

Kansas City, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission was characterized today by James A. Reed, former Missouri Senator, as "a conglomeration of contradictions obscured in a wilderness of words."

He charged that the commission appointed "chiefly to find and report facts had failed to perform that function in a proper manner. As Judge Kenyon justly complained, the real facts have been concealed from the public and likewise from the Congress."

$20,000 Counsel Fees Asked by "Peaches"

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Frances "Peaches" Browning moved today to get $20,000 counsel fees with which to prosecute her divorce suit against Edward W. Browning.

Her attorney, Daniel F. Cohalan, filed a motion asking Supreme Court to direct Browning to pay the fees. Arguments are scheduled for tomorrow.

Tarkington Undergoes Operation for Cataract

Baltimore, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Booth Tarkington, novelist, underwent an operation last Saturday at the Wilmer Institute, Johns Hopkins Hospital, for a cataract over the left eye, it was learned tonight.

Mr. Tarkington's condition is difficult to determine at present according to Dr. Benjamin Rones, his physician, for his eyes have been bandaged since the operation. It was planned today to remove the bandages within two or three days.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

WHEN Radio-Keith-Orpheum has a big picture to introduce, they do not hesitate to introduce it in the grand manner, let the boxoffice receipts fall where they may.

Those who follow the theatrical announcements in the advertising columns of the daily press—a very excellent idea, by the way—have been aware for some time now that the boxoffice at RKO-Keith's tomorrow will close for the day immediately upon the beginning of the screening of the feature picture at 5:40 p. m. There will be no evening presentations of "The Royal Bed" Friday night. On the contrary, the house wil be emptied at 7 o'clock and from that hour on, proceedings will be practically gala, not to say recherche, de rigeur, detur digniori, e pluribus unum, in hoc signo vinces and the elephants eyebrows!

That is to say that at 8:45 o'clock tomorrow evening, RKO-Keith's will house an audience invited as guests of the Oklahoma delegation in Congress to preview Radio Pictures' camera version of Edna Ferber's widely read novel of "Cimarron," under the patronage of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley and the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur.

A large representation of the Diplomatic Corps and official Washington will attend this special screening, at which Richard Dix and Estelle Taylor, featured members of the cast of "Cimarron," Floyd Gibbons and other notables will be present in person to add, in a nice way, to the spirit of whoopee that is expected to pervade the occasion.

Directly this rout is brought to a close, the theater again will be emptied and at 11:30 p. m. the de luxe goinings-on will be repeated for the members of the National Press Club and their families, up to the capacity of the theater.

I am informed by those in charge that Fifteenth street is to be roped off tomorrow night, batteries of spotlights planted where they will do the most good—or however you feel about it—and the entire evening given the atmosphere of a real blown-in-the-bottle, if you know what I mean, Hollywood preview—or should I say "permeer?" "Cimarron," incidentally, will not be shown as a regular booking at RKO-Keith's until the week of February 7.

How's chances to borrow your pearl studs tomorrow?

To see Ray Mayer and Edith Evans coming out of the Willard, theater bound, you would think they were presenting a dog act at the Earle instead of their clever combination of piano, songs and wisecracking. When I happened along the other day, they had Pomeranians—or maybe they're Pekes, I wouldn't know the difference beyond their not being bulldogs—on leashes, in their arms and Mr. Mayer even had a fluffy little white fellow in his inside overcoat pocket.

If they were putting on that kind of an act, it obviously would be a good one. It even got a laugh working cold out on the street!

From a long news dispatch which says in five or six hundred words that in one of New York's most luxurious hotels Gladys Marie Smith, late of Toronto, is enjoying a 10-day vacation as the guest of Mary Pickford, of Hollywood, Calif., both being registered under the name of Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, I cull one statement that is a little surprising. Here it is:

"But while she is in New York, Mrs. Fairbanks said, Gladys Marie Smith is going to have inserted in her will a paragraph directing that when she dies all of Mary Pickford's films be destroyed."

Must "Coquette" wait 'til then?

Travel notes.

Hardie Meakin, managing director of the Fox, returns today from New York, having stretched a single day's managers' meeting into a triple.

Jim Lundy, the Loew cymbaltwanger in Washington, has returned to the races, after two days at home with the grippe, and now is endeavoring to stretch a bad cold and a slight fever into pneumonia so he can get off for a week.

Just as a reminder, next week's attractions in the downtown first-run sector will be as follows: Fox, Marlene Dietrich and Emil Jannings in "The lue Angel," Jannings' first talking picture in English, and the usual Fanchon and Marco stage offering, a "Victor Herbert" Idea; Columbia, Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Reducing;" Earl, Mary Astor and Grant Withers in "Other Men's Women," and Lillian Shaw heading the vaudeville bill; Rialto, the talking version of D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation;" Palace, Marion Davies, Ralph Forbes and C. Aubrey Smith in "The Bachelor Father," and Loew's "Nite Lites" stage unit; RKO-Keith's, Jack Oakie and Jean Arthur in "The Gang Buster."

An egregious but inadvertent blunder was discovered in the column a few days ago before copy had been sent to the composing room, but was allowed to run for a reason. Counting personal chidings, phone calls and letters, fourteen readers have called our attention to the error.

We acknowledge these communications with both gratitude and gratification. It is not often that 100 per cent of one's readers respond so promptly!

And we forgot something back there where we were talking about tomorrow night's levee at RKO-Keith's, too. In addition to the screen and radio stars mentioned, important personages—they think so, at any rate—in the film world also will be present, among them Joseph Plunkett, vice president in charge of RKO theaters; James H. Turner, assistant to President Hiram S. Brown; J. I. Schnitzer, president of Radio Pictures; William Le Baron, vice president in charge of production; Wesley Ruggles, director of "Cimarron;" Mark Leuscher, Herman Zohbel, Hyatt Daab, Kenneth Hallam and Nate J. Blumberg.

All the boys are members of this club, who can "dish it out or take it," and, from time to time, have done both.

Confidential to Mrs. S. M. S., 3621 Newark street: The condition of which you write is entirely normal. In cantilever construction allowance is made for vibration and slight oscillation. It is only when they are absent that there is danger.

And to J. E. Anderson, 1760 Euclid street, and numerous others who didn't have quite the courage to sign their real names, it is a pleasure to reply that Allan Rogers, m. c. at the Palace, according to present advices from New York to M. J. Cullen, managing director, will in all probability be returned to his accustomed duties as soon as the stage units in which there is no place for his services have passed—a matter of two or three weeks. At any rate, no one has been assigned to take his place.

Oh, goody, goody, for our side!

Probably you feel a lot better now that the Wickersham committee has settled that prohibition question! So do I.

What'll you have—if you can get it?

HOWELL RAID BILL UNAFFECTED, CLAIM

Wickersham Report Does Not Apply to Measure, Senator States.

PROPOSAL IS DEFENDED

Recommendation made by the Wickersham Commission against legislation allowing more latitude in Federal searches and seizures does not apply to his pending prohibition enforcement bill for the District, Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), of Nebraska, declared yesterday.

"My bill," Senator Howell said, "is a local law enforcement measure such as are in effect in other and nearby States.

"It does not propose in any way to increase Federal authority for searches and seizures. Its application is purely to the District. It simply involves the police powers of the municipal government."

Senator Howell said that he would not accept any effort to change the search and seizure provisions of his measure which are so broad and elastic as to have resulted in its common designation as the Howell home raid bill.

That attitude is not surprising in view of previous statements made by the senator following disapproval of the home raid provisions of his bill by Attorney General Mitchell some time ago. The attorney general said that the measure was too drastic and he did not believe Congress should enact for the District a law of which the provisions were more drastic than were the provisions of the Volstead law.

The Howell bill is to be made the unfinished business of the Senate following passage of the Interior Department appropriation bill, a filibuster on which caused Senate leaders to keep the Senate in session last night.

MUSICAL MORNING DELIGHTFUL FEAST

Pianist and Violin-Cellist Are Artists Offered by Mrs. Townsend.

OPERA STARSTO COURT

A feast of instrumental music was offered to the audience attending Mrs. Lawrence Townsend's fiftieth musical morning a tthe Hotel Mayflower yesterday morning in the program given by Miss Myra Hess, pianist, and Hans Kindler, violincellist.

Miss Hess who is one of the leading women pianists of the day, displayed much virtuosity throughout hte program. Her opening numbers were from Bach and Brahms and her interpretation of the works of those masters was rarely beautiful.

In the Sonate by Franck, which she played with Mr. Kindler, the ensemble effect was striking. Neither artist lost the individual beauty of the particular instrument played.

Mr. Kindler in his cello selections, particularly the Sonata by Valentini, renewed the ardor of his many admirers in this city by the mellowness of his tone, his artistry in phrasing and vivid portrayal of every mood of the composer.

Beniamino Gigli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company and Mme. Aida Doninelli, a soprano of that company, will be the artists at the Townsend musical morning next Wednesday.

JAPAN WATCHING IMMIGRATION RULE

Acting Premier Tells Diet of Keen Interest on American Law.

SORE SPOT IS TOUCHED

Tokyo (Thursday), Jan. 22 (A.P.).—Baron Kijuro Shidehara, acting premier, told the fifty-ninth session of the Diet today that Japan is still watching the American immigration law with keen interest.

This law excludes Japanese and Chinese from the regular immigration quotas, admitting them only as students and in other special classes, and long has been a sore spot with Oriental nations.

"Our friendly relations with the nations of Europe and America," said the acting premier in convening the Diet this morning, "are entirely satisfactory and will, I am convinced, continue to grow in strength.

"On the question of the United States immigration law, which for the last seven years has been weighing heavily on popular sentiment in this country, there is no longer any doubt that our position is now fully understood and appreciated by a large majority of the American people.

"We shall watch further development of the question with unimpassioned but keen interest."

Among his points the following stood out as high spots:

World relations—Relations with the nations of Europe and America are "entirely satisfactory" and are expected to gain strength.

Naval competition—The London naval treaty of 1930 was hailed as ending the responsibility of dangerous competition among Japan, the United States and Great Britain.

China—Leaders of the Chinese nationalist government were praised for their constructive efforts to place China in a strong position among the nations, thus "following the trail once blazed by Japan in her struggle to emerge from a position of international inequality."

Soviet Russia—With trade greatly increasing between Japan and Russia, Baron Shidehara hoped certain questions, such as the rights of Japanese to fish in Russian waters, would be settled amicably.

Clemency Denied Doomed Slayers

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Gov. William G. Conley today refused to grant executive clemency to Emory Stephens, 24, of Logan County, and William Claude Adams, 40, Mingo County, sentenced to be hanged Friday night at the State Penitentiary.

At the governor's office it was stated that a premature announcement was made erroneously at that office that the sentence in Stephens' case had been commuted.

They were sentenced for killings committed in Mingo County.

Kentucky Decision Hits Chain Stores With Tax

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The constitutionality of a graduated tax on the gross annual sales of all retail stores in the State was upheld today by Judge Thomas B. McGregor in Franklin Circuit Court. The tax was designed to get more revenue from chain stores.

Judge McGregor's ruling will be taken to the State Court of Appeals.

Division Official to Appear on Luncheon Program at Hotel Here.

An address by Robert A. Hutchison, of Manassas, Va., lieutenant governor of the first division of the Capital Kiwanis district, will be a feature of the Kiwanis anniversary luncheon at 12:30 this afternoon at the Washington Hotel.

Mr. Hutchison will relate the history of the Kiwanis organization, the first club of which was organized January 15, 1915, in Detroit. More than 1,869 clubs of Kiwanis International are celebrating the anniversary this week throughout the United States and Canada.

The Washington Kiwanis Club dates from March, 1917, when the first organization meeting was held. The local charter was issued May 19 of that year. When a Kiwanis club was organized at Manassas in October, 1924, Mr. Hutchison was a charter member. He has since served as trustee, vice president and president of the Manassas club.

Count Marries American Widow

Mrs. L. Kayser Bayer Said to Have Inherited $100,000,000 From Silk Man.

London, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. Laura Kayser Bayer, wealthy American widow, was married to Count Antoine Frederic Sala, French art expert, at a simple, double ceremony today in the little Catholic church of Notre Dame de France.

London newspapers had made much of the match because Mrs. Bayer was reported to have inherited $100,000,000 from her late husband, who headed the Kayser silk firm.

As a result, a crowd of several hundred blocked the street in front of the church, but the bride and bridegroom slipped in unnoticed.

Court Tilt Is Won By Siamese Twins

Injunction Orders Former Guardian of Girls to Relinquish $35,000.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Daisy and Viola Hilton, Siamese Twins, won their first victory today in their suit against Myer Myers, their former guardian, and his wife.

Judge W. W. McCrory issued a mandatory injunction directing Myers to turn over $35,000 in bonds claimed by the twins to Joe Freeman, receiver. The securities were held in Myers' name.

The order concerned only the girls' request for a receivership, preliminary to their suit for cancellation of a 10-year contract held by Myers, under which he has directed vaudeville appearances of the twins. Also there is pending an application for a permanent injunction to restrain Myers or his wife from interfering with them in any way.

he was breakfasting, by Detective Sergt. Frank Alligood. A man who had observed the holdup met Alligood and told him.

Greenberg told police that Wrenn came into the shop, which is on Pennsylvania avenue northwest, near Sixth street, and asked to be shown gloves and an overcoat. After trying them on, Greenberg said, he drew a pistol and announced he wanted money. Greenberg gave him $45, and began telling him of the seriousness of his crime. Wrenn was persuaded to return the money and clothing, and was given a dollar by the shopkeeper.

Wrenn was held at the Sixth Precinct on a charge of investigation. A large caliber revolver was taken from him by Alligood. He told police that hunger and the cold had driven him to try the holdup.

Finding that his prisoner was without underwear, Alligood took him to his home and provided him with a suit of his own before taking him to the precinct.

TRADED CAR POLICY

We wish to congratulate Packard on the position they have taken on the merchandising of their traded cars.

Studebaker was the first in the automobile industry to sponser, publicly, the thorough reconditioning and high-grade merchandising of Traded Cars, and tens of thousands of traded cars have been sold under the famous Studebaker Pledge.

We believe it is only a question of time before all reputable dealers will recondition their Traded Cars and sell them with the same warranty and service now carried by new cars.

We have consistently adhered to a standard of reconditioning that has eliminated the element of risk from Traded Car buying. Therefore, effective from this date, we shall sell our Traded Cars under:

Our Traded Car Pledge

1. Every Traded Car is conspicuously marked with its lowest price in plain figures—and that price is rigidly maintained.

2. Each Traded Car of any make priced at $300 or more will be sold as a Certified Car, and will carry a 60-day New Car Guarantee.

3. Any Certified Car, if unsatisfactory for any reason, may be returned in three days in the same condition as received and the contract will be canceled and money refunded in full.

Studebaker's comprehensive price range and the great popularity of Free-Wheeling give us a selection of Traded Cars from which every taste and pocket-book may be suited.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE REPORTED IMPROVED

Montgomery County Shows Higher Percentage, Says Superintendent.

INFANTRY WINS BANNER

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 8103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Tedephone Wesconsin 4205.

Montgomery County's school attendance for December shows an improvement for elementary schools, but a slight decrease for high schools over the same month in 1929, according to the report of E. W. Broome, county superintendent of schools. The elementary schools show an average attendance of 92.5 per cent, as opposed to 89.1 per cent in 1929, and the high schools show 90.9 per cent, as against 92.3 per cent for 1929.

King's Valley one-teacher school leads its own class and the county for attendance, with an average of 98 per cent. Other banner-winning schools follow: Darnestown two-teacher school, 97.7 per cent; Sandy Spring graded school, 96.2 per cent; Rockville Senior High School, 94.5 per cent; Bethesda-Chevy Chase Junior High, seventh and eighth grades, 94 per cent, and Glen Echo-Cabin John Junior High School, ninth grade, 97.6 per cent.

Norbeck colored school was awarded the banner in the colored schools, with an average of 98.4 per cent. Rockville colored high school had an average of 92 per cent.

The regimental attendance banner for the month of December has been awarded to the Service Company, attained a general average of 95.74 per cent in competition with 18 other units of the regiment. Col. D. John Markey, commanding the First Infantry, in a letter commending the company, said: "This indicates not only a high degree of interest but also a spirit of loyalty throughout the unit that deserves special commendation.

George H. Lamar, of Rockville, is chairman of a committee appointed by the Rockville Chamber of Commerce to confer with officials of the Washington Gas Light Co., regarding alleged charges made to property owners installing gas in Rockville for laying mains to the property lines. It was said that the gas company had expressly assured the chamber that no charge would be made for this service.

The chamber approved the proposal of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce for the immediate acquisition of land bordering the Rock Creek Valley for the construction of a park road from the District Line to the Norbeck pike and thence to Rockville. It also approved a resolution favoring widening of the Rockville pike to be completed not later than the spring of 1932.

Walter Funderbunk, chairman of the publicity committee, explained the plans for a pamphlet explaining the attractions of Montgomery County which it is proposed to print with the cooperation of other chamber of commerce in the county. Each of the county chambers would be allotted a space in which to explain the advantages of its particular section. County wide advantages and beauty spots also would be extolled.

A turkey dinner for the benefit of St. Martin's School at Gaithersburg will be held tonight from 5 to 8 o'clock in the school hall under the auspices of the Sanctuary Society. Mrs. Arthur Hogan is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The mayor and council of Rockville, State Senator Robert G. Hilton, the board of county commissioners and the county delegation to the House of Delegates will meet today at Rockville to confer on coordination of town, State and county projects in and near Rockville.

The meeting is being held in order that the improvements planned by the three bodies can be planned so as to more effectively coincide with each other in the esthetic development of the town, according to Mayor J. Roger Spates.

Train Kills Man, 55, at Staunton

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 21.—City Coroner Parkins early tonight had not announced whether he thought Chesly D. Shultz, 55, printing company executive committed suicide or was accidentally killed on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad tracks on the outskirts of Staunton this morning. Mr. Shultz had not been well for some months, but had lost no time from his office as manager of McClure Printing Co. He had been manager since 1911. He left his office about 9:30 this morning without stating where he was going. An hour later his body was found near the railroad tracks, having been struck by "The Sportsman," eastbound limited train.

Native of Augusta County, Mr. Shultz has been a resident of Staunton since he was 16 years old. He is survived by his wife, two children, mother, and four brothers, the latter being E. M. and Dr. F. S., this county; J. W., Wadesboro, N. C., and W. H., Winston-Salem, N. C. The funeral will be held Friday. The time and place are yet to be determined.

SOUTHERN VETERAN DIES AT AGE OF 86

Edgar C. Graham Enlisted at 17 and Became War Prisoner in This City.

NEVER MISSED REUNION

Edgar C. Graham, Confederate veteran and retired business man of Alexandria, Va., died Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry N. Brawner, jr., 3520 Rittenhouse street northwest, after a brief illness.

Mr. Graham, 86 years old, was at the time of his death commander of Robert E. Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans, of Alexandria. At 17, he enlisted in Company A, Fourth Virginia Cavalry, which won fame as the Black Horse Troop. He was taken prisoner at aCttletts Station, Va., and confined in the old Capital prison at Washington, being transferred eventually to Point Lookout, Va. After fourteen months he was exchanged and paroled, returning home.

Despite his years, Mr. Graham never missed a reunion of his dwindling band of comrades.

He had been police commissioner of Alexandria. He took active part in the affairs of the Methodist Church South.

He is survived by two sons, R. M. and David Graham; three daughters, Mrs. F. Rutter, Mrs. Henry N. Brawner, jr., and Mrs. Frank G. Grimes; thirteen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The funeral will take place from the home of Mrs. Brawner tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Virginian Is Divorced On Desertion Grounds

Reno, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A divorce was granted to Frances Allison Schouten from Henrik Hudson Schouten, of Hopewell, Va., today on the grounds of desertion and failure to provide. They married in San Francisco June 25, 1925.

Mrs. Schouten is a daughter of the late William O. Allison, iron and steel manufacturer of New Jersey.

DANVILLE EXPECTS SOLDIERS TO STAY

Gen. Waller Completes His Inquiry Into Advisability of Continuance.

FIVE MORE EVICTIONS

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 21.—Brig. Gen. Samuel G. Waller went to Richmond this afternoon after completing the mission assigned to him yesterday to confer with civilian officials on continuing militia on strike duty at Schoolfield.

He declined to talk about his recommendations. Gen. Waller did not see Commonwealth's Attorney John W. Carter, of Danville, who was out of town, but he conferred with Posie J. Hundley, Commonwealth's attorney of Pittsylvania. Mr. Hundley would not say whether he had advocated removal or retention of the troops. Gen. Waller did not see any responsible local labor officer, C. S. Garrison, spokesman for the union here, said.

There was a well-defined impression that the soldiers on duty at Schoolfield will not be withdrawn just now.

The union forces were cheered greatly this evening by a telegram from Miss Matilda Lindsey, women's organizer, from Washington, which said:

"Arrangements made for Red Cross relief for strikers and families in Danville and Schoolfield."

A committee of seven strikers, with F. J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, left last night to confer with John Barton Payne, general chairman of the Red Cross at Washington, and to see Secretary of Labor Doak.

The families of five strikers were evicted from company dwellings today. Peace officers relented on three, due to be dispossessed, on account of sickness.

CHANGED JOB TREND VIEWED AS PROBLEM

SMALL FARMS INCREASE

Special to The Washington Post.

College Park, Md., Jan. 21.—Twenty-five per cent of the total employed population of the United States are occupying jobs that did not exist ten years ago, and twenty years from now 75 new types of jobs will be created that were not known at the time of the Revolutionary War, according to John D. Willard, research associate, American Association for Adult Education, who spoke this morning before the sixteenth annual meeting of extension service workers of Maryland. The conference, which began yesterday and will continue through Friday, is being held at the University of Maryland.

In his talk on "Adult Education and the Survival of Democracy," Mr. Willard pointed out that due to this constant formation of new types of jobs, education is becoming more complex, and if we are to maintain the type of democracy our ancestors established we must train our children and adults in such a way as to give them plastic minds, that will be able to cope with ever-changing conditions.

C. J. Galpin, economist in charge, farm population and rural life unit, United States Department of Agriculture, spoke on the "Increasing Number of Small Farms." He emphasized the fact that the trend in agriculture is toward smaller farms and that in the very near future this country will have to give more attention to these.

In Maryland in 1910, 30 per cent of the farms had 20 acres or less; in 1920, 39 per cent had 20 acres or less and five years later the total had jumped to 42 per cent, showing the tendency toward smaller holdings. It is significant in this day of large corporations and mergers, he said, that of 200,000 manufacturers in this country, 80,000 are classed as small, having from 5 to 50 operators.

Corn Prize Again To Leesburg Man

Harrisonburg Grain Show, Opening Today, Has Hundreds of Exhibits.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 21.—John S. Ward, of Leesburg, won the corn sweepstakes cup at the tenth annual State corn and grain show, which opens here tomorrow, the judges announced tonight. This is the third year in succession the Loudoun farmer has had the best ten ears of corn in the show.

More than 600 exhibits are in place. The show is given in connection with the two-day convention of the Virginia Crop Improvement Association. The number of exhibits is larger than expected, in view of the drought. There are exhibits of all seed grains, cotton, peanuts and potatoes.

D. L. Vandveer, of Loami, Ill., won first prize in the interstate corn contest in which six States are represented. W. E. Mills, of Sherman, Ill., was second. Association officials said the hundreds of corn exhibits are fine, considering poor growing conditions. The wheat displays are exceptional because the State had a good crop last year. All sections of the State are represented by visitors here tonight.

$6,800 Loss Is Caused As Moving Van Burns

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 21.—A large moving van owned by Frank O. Lowery, Myersville, Md., and the furniture it carried, owned by Mrs. Mildred Leatherman, 1312 L street northwest, Washington, was destroyed by fire on the Georgetown pike, 15 miles south of here, yesterday, causing a loss estimated at $6,800.

Lowery was taking the furniture, much of which was new, to the home of Mrs. Leatherman when he noticed some smoke seeping under the closed window of the cab. An investigation revealed that the entire rear of the truck was ablaze.

Water Fails Firemen In Pennsylvania Blaze

Westfield, Pa., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Lack of water and a brisk wind hampered firemen in subduing a fire which destroyed two two-story business blocks here today and seriously damaged three others.

The water supply was soon exhausted and the supply of chemicals inadequate. Aid was called from five nearby communities.

Red Cross to Aid Danville Strikers

(Associated Press.)

Frank Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers, headed a delegation of striking mill workers from Danville, Va., in conference yesterday with Secretary of Labor Doak and with Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, announcing afterward that assurances had been given that the Red Cross had promised aid to their members now out of work.

A statement alleging Communist party agents had intervened in the strike situation was furnished Representative Fish, who headed the House Communist inquiry.

"We have 15,000 men, women and children who have been involved in the four months' progress of the strike at the Danville cotton mills," Mr. Gorman said, "and Secretary Doak informed us that the Red Cross would engage in relief efforts immediately. The exact form the assistance will take will be determined later.

"To Representative Fish we furnished evidence that Communist agitators have been accepted as strike breakers in the mill situation at Danville, their object being to create dissension later in blocking a final settlement. The committee will remain in Washington another day for further effort in its endeavor to assist the situation."

Overdose of Medicine Causes Year's Sentence

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 21.—Hereafter James Farley will follow directions in taking medicine, he said in court today. While he was a hospital patient recently a nurse left a box of pills, telling him to take one every four hours. Instead, he took all at one dose. Becoming crazed, it is said, he broke out and attacked John H. Snyder, John H. Seals and several other citizens.

He pleaded guilty to two indictments charging assault and battery, and was sentenced to one year on the State roads.

Corn Pays $1.80 as Pork.

Gonzales, Tex., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—B. R. Boenig realized $1.80 a bushel for corn by feeding it to pigs while his neighbors sold on the cob to elevators for 65 cents a bushel. Last spring, he says, his corn had a value of $2.35 a bushel as pork.

Science Takes a Hand At Community Planning And Financing

Why do high-class residential districts rarely survive as such?

Haphazard planning, improper restrictions, the utter lack of forethought or experience on how to bring home, school, recreation and natural beauty into harmonious relationship—there's the story.

The perfected Strathmeade Community Plan has changed the old order of things.

for the Strathmeade Plan is so sound—so big—so all-inclusive that it today represents the sum-total of the very best knowledge of all time. Actually, for the first time in Washington's history, it offers fact for uncertainty by enabling the investor to know ALL in advance. It contains within itself not only the time-tested plan, but also the legal means to protect property values forever against all that mars or destroys.

Furthermore, the Strathmeade Plan extends equal rights and privileges to the man who builds a $10,000 home and the man who builds a $50,000 home, thus proving beyond all doubt that beautiful Strathmeade has been planned for the man of average income and not for the privileged few.

Right now—this very day, the very unusual Strathmeade Financial Plan offers golden opportunities to both the home seeker and the investor—opportunities so sound — so wholly unlike anything that you've heard or seen before that every man and woman in Washington should know about them.

MR. HOOVER'S POSITION.

Gentlemen who make it their business to play politics with prohibition are coming forward with comments upon the Wickersham report and upon President Hoover's message. Among others, Chairman Shouse of the Democratic national executive committee kindly interprets Mr. Hoover's thoughts—to Mr. Hoover's disadvantage, of course. Mr. Shouse in a rambling statement insists at one point that the President is bound to accept the commission's conclusions, while at another he suggests that the commission was intended to be subservient to the President. Take your choice.

Mr. Shouse is among the politicians who try to make the public believe that the President's objections to the proposal to empower Congress to regulate the liquor traffic stamp him as a petrified bone dry who insists that the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act shall remain as they are, in perpetuity, without any effort to improve conditions. It is a silly attempt to mislead the public as to Mr. Hoover's position.

The President emphasized three matters in his message. He cited the commission's finding that enforcement is unsatisfactory, in spite of improvement in Federal administration of the prohibition law, and that it is imperatively necessary that citizens, the States and local governments must discharge their several responsibilities if enforcement is to be successful. He approves of the recommendations for improvements in Federal administrative methods. Secondly, the President agrees with the commission in the conclusion that repeal of the eighteenth amendment is not a solution of the national problem, and he adds:

> I am in unity with the spirit of the report in seeking constructive steps to advance the national ideal of eradication of the social and economic and political evils of this traffic, to preserve the gains which have been made, and to eliminate the abuses which exist, at the same time facing with an open mind the difficulties which have arisen under this experiment.

Thirdly, Mr. Hoover specifically objected to the plan proposed for revision of the eighteenth amendment whereby Congress would be empowered to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic. He stated that there were "serious objections" to this plan, but he made it plain that he kept his mind open to proposals for solving the national problem. The fact that he rejects the specific proposal to give Congress power to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic makes it clear that he is seeking "constructive steps" that will lead to a solution of the problem.

What are the objections to the proposal to give Congress power to regulate or prohibit the liquor traffic? They are innumerable. The primary objection is, of course, that the United States under that plan would be in continual turmoil, both during political campaigns and during sessions of Congress. A national system adopted in one year might be torn down in the next. Congress could restore the saloon; it could make wet States dry and dry States wet; it could legalize distilleries and breweries and then, in response to a gust of popular passion, it could sweep away millions of dollars' worth of property without compensation; it could create an army of Federal police to harass the States, and then abolish all Federal regulation of the liquor traffic. Political campaigns would be debauched, and members of Congress would be chosen solely upon the liquor issue. The purchaser as well as the seller of liquor would be a felon or immune from punishment, according to the annual whim of Congress. The Nation's business and the affairs of government would be subordinated to the never-ending battle over the liquor issue.

Of all the proposed "solutions" of the liquor problem, the commission plan to throw the issue into the arena of national politics is the most objectionable. It is little wonder that Mr. Hoover, who maintains an open mind in considering all proposed solutions, should prefer present conditions to those which would prevail if the prohibition question should be the football of politics in Congress.

No solution of the prohibition problem has been presented by the Wickersham commission. Mr. Hoover does not pretend to offer a solution. He hopes a solution will be found. In the meantime he opposes foolish suggestions, and gives notice that he will enforce the law with all the means at his disposal.

In this position the President is entitled to the support of the people of the United States.

WHEAT PLAN IMPRACTICABLE.

The Senate agricultural committee has approved a bill authorizing the donation to hungry Americans of 20,000,000 bushels of the wheat held in storage by the Federal Farm Board. Introduced by Senator Capper, the bill originally specified 40,000,000 bushels, but on the advice of the Farm Board that only half that amount could be disposed of effectively, the amount was reduced. The bill authorizes the President to turn over the wheat to any agency he might select, directing that the price thereof be credited to the board's revolving fund. Senator Capper and others will press for immediate consideration of the measure.

The wheat held in storage by the Farm Board was purchased for the purpose of pegging prices in the grain market declines of a few months ago. The board now holds about 100,000,000 bushels which, in the opinion of competent observers, gives it a technical corner on the market. So long as the board continues to hold its 100,000,000 it may control prices. Let it dispose of 20,000,000 bushels, however, and its technical corner will be broken. The Farm Board can no more hope to relieve the situation by giving wheat away than it can by selling it in the open market.

It would be an almost impossible task to distribute 20,000,000 bushels of wheat in such a way as to mitigate distress immediately in needy areas. The grain would have to be milled, at least, and probably baked into bread. The cost of the grain constitutes a minor part of the cost of a loaf of bread. When the miller, the baker, the transportation agency and the distributor had been paid for their expenses in connection with the distribution of 20,000,000 bushels of wheat the cost of whatever relief might be afforded would run to a staggering total.

The only fluid medium of relief is money, with which bread, shoes, clothing, canned goods and other needs of the human body can be supplied. It is the task of the Red Cross to raise money for the needy and transform it into their essential needs. The Red Cross is proceeding about this task with creditable dispatch and due diligence. Congress would only add to the general economic confusion without contributing to the relief of distress if it were to approve the Capper bill.

NEW GRAIN MARKETING SYSTEM.

Confirmation of Chairman Legge's statement that the grain exchanges of the United States are doomed is contained not only in the fact that wheat has relinquished the principal pit in Chicago to corn and that trading has been reduced to one-fourth of its normal volume in Chicago since the Federal Farm Board invaded the futures market, but also in the announcement that Arthur Cutten, the most representative of Chicago's grain traders, has applied for a seat on the Winnipeg Exchange so that he may transfer his grain dealings to the Canadian city. Winnipeg, says Mr. Cutten, is the only remaining free grain market. "There can be no futures market in America," he adds, "so long as the Government continues its present operations."

Whether the demise of Chicago as a grain market is considered an evil or a blessing depends entirely on the point of view. Mr. Legge, of course, believes that the futures market is evil and that its operation has contributed to the distress of the farmer. If the Chicago market is in the hands of manipulators Mr. Legge is on sound ground in his analysis. Theoretically, however, a free market is an essential if a natural price, based on the functioning of the inexorable laws of economics, is to prevail. The ascendancy of Winnipeg as the principal futures market means that the price of wheat will be set in Canada instead of in the United States. In the long run will the transfer be of benefit to the American farmer?

The idea underlying the farm marketing act is that the American farmer shall be given an inflated price for his grain. It is to this end that the Farm Board has been concentrating all its energies. Today the American price for wheat is considerably above the world price, but no one can say whether the world price itself has or has not been unduly depressed by the operations of the American Farm Board. If, through the years, the Farm Board can succeed in holding the American price at a level higher than the world price, all will be well. If, however, at some future date the board is forced to admit failure the transfer of the world's principal grain market from the United States to Canada will assume a totally different aspect.

In the vast experiment of farm relief the future can not be foretold. The progress of events as they occur may be recorded, but time alone will reveal whether the American farmer is being led along a road that leads to Utopia or to disaster. Possibly, since Mr. Legge has been so forcible in his insistence that the futures market is one of the major factors contributing to the distress of the farmer, it is just as well that it should be killed off if only because its demise will give the opportunity to ascertain whether or not it is a necessary part of the marketing machinery. Without the grain board the machinery for marketing major farm commodities will be seriously disrupted, but the Farm Board has undertaken to organize a totally new marketing machine anyway, and it will now be able to go ahead with its plans without facing the burden of fighting the existing machine while it is organizing the new.

THE PRICE OF BREAD.

The inquiry into the retail price of bread is bringing out interesting facts, one of them being the disclosure that important dealers in Washington have already made cuts in bread. One cut, widely advertised on November 10, was from 13 down to 10 cents on the 1½-pound loaf. Another cut on the 1-pound loaf, from 9 cents down to 8 cents, was made in December. Eighty per cent of the bread consumed is white bread, upon which these reductions have been made.

Bread dealers point out that the cost of the flour contained in a loaf of bread is only a minor item of the total cost. Those dealers who have reduced bread prices seem to have fairly met the reduced cost of flour and passed the benefit to their customers. Other items of cost, principally labor in manufacture and distribution, can not be cut by the dealers without reducing wages. The reduction in cost of gasoline may have helped these dealers to shade off the price of bread.

Naturally, if some dealers find it possible to reduce the price of bread without reducing wages or turning employes out of jobs, the public will expect other dealers to do likewise. Some chain stores are announcing cuts in bread prices, which is an indication that an effort is being made to pass on to the public the benefit of reduced prices of flour.

Five gallons of confiscated liquor at Grace, Idaho, ate its way out of a zinc container. Only the American stomach can hold this modern stuff.

At a recent White House reception, says Col. Grant, the room temperature rose from 65 degrees to 84 degrees in a short time. The colonel must be referring to the Senate reception.

An Indiana State legislator recommends that lobbyists be compelled to wear green turbans with black tassels. In Washington it would be less expensive to make congressmen put on turbans.

"Slowly, almost imperceptibly," says a lady columnist, "each generation improves upon a former one." Well, the saxophone replaced the Turkish corner. Then Amos 'n' Andy came along.

UNCLE SAM'S PALACES

From the Boston Transcript.

The purchase of the Margherita Palace, or a part of it, in Rome for the purposes of the American Embassy at the capital of Italy marks another mile-post on our road to Yankee magnificence in Europe. Time was when the American Republic housed its representatives abroad miserably. Just as we denied—as we still deny—our ambassadors and ministers the privilege of wearing a sash over the shoulder or the merest shred of diplomatic gold lace on their coats, so we adhered to the sternest simplicity in the matter of their housing. Nicaragua or Bulgaria might have a fine house in Paris or London, its front decorated with noble escutcheons, but rented quarters over a store were good enough for the embassy or legation of the United States of America. All this we have now changed. We have noble quarters at London, and in Paris we have under way an impressive embassy at the most distinguished site on the Champs Elysees. And now, in the purchase of the palace which King Victor Emmanuel presented to Queen Margherita, and its companion villa, on the fashionable Via Veneto and the historic Piazza Barberini, Uncle Sam is preparing really royal quarters for his official representative to the court of Italy's king—and his all-potent "Duce."

Here, in ancient times, were the beautiful gardens of Sallust, upon which the Roman emperors laid their covetous hands. Here luxuriated Vespasian, Nerva and Aurelian. The broad Via Veneto, especially frequented by Americans, leads up to the Pincian gate, where the Aurelian wall still stands in its majesty. Not far away is the royal palace of the Quirinal; more important just now, perhaps, is the reasonable proximity of the Palazzo Venezia, where resides Signor Mussolini in the midst of truly Roman splendor.

The Palazzo Margherita, indeed, had passed, conveniently, into the hands of the Fascist party, now the real government of Italy, which proposed to make it its headquarters; but it is understood that the influence of Mussolini has brought about the sale of the buildings and grounds to the United States Government. The Duce is at the present time cultivating by every means available to him the favor of our republic and its citizens; and it is readily conceivable that, especially as the Fascist party and the government that it has taken over are in sore need of funds, it has been deemed expedient to fall in with the growing fancy of American republicans for architectural magnificence.

Times change, and people change with them. No doubt it is as impossible for a republic with a population of 122,775,046 to keep from being magnificent as it is for a cataract 167 feet high to refrain from roaring. It seems to be established that no country with a cataract of that height ever lost its liberties. Nor shall we lose our liberties because our ambassadors are to have fine houses on the Champs Elysees or the Via Veneto. Humility in habit and housing is the merest affectation for our official representatives abroad. Palaces can hardly be too good for the representatives of a nation that holds in its hands the destinies of the modern world.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Washington is to permit park "petting" if it is within bounds. But it will take a whole lot of argument to decide just when petting goes out of bounds.

Subbing for Sorghum.

Cleveland Press: The Hallelujah Cocktail, said to have been invented and named by a Colon barkeep in honor of Aimee Semple McPherson, contains, news dispatches say, grape brandy, lemon, ice, vermouth, rum and sugar. That sounds like something it would be nice to pour over your pancakes on a frosty morning.

No Parking.

San Francisco Examiner: The Government is building a model city for its workmen and officials near the site of Boulder Dam. One of the announcements in connection with plans for the city is this very important one:

"No car will ever park at the curb in this town."

That is an example for intelligent officeholders to follow. They may not be able to free the streets of curb parking, but they can plan wisely for future traffic which unquestionably will double in ten years.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CAR.

I'm sorry for the man whose car
Is always neat and clean,
And on its gleaming sides there are
No scratches to be seen.
Though shatter proof the glass may be,
As salesmen love to tell,
I'd hate to have the whole world see
It's finger proof as well.

An automobile when it's new
Should glisten in the sun,
But cars which have real work to do
Soon find their splendor done.
I much prefer a dent or two,
Deep in the swinging door—
The imprints of a youngster's shoe
And peanuts on the floor.

Give me the sticky spots which show
Where lollypops were licked,
The signs which tell where heel and toe
Have rapturously kicked.
I'll leave the cars which look like new
To millionaires and kings,
To claim the one which children strew
With apple cores and things.

I'd rather have my car display
The ruin of delight
Than ride in one from day to day
That's always shiny bright;
For it must very lonely be
To swing a motor door
And know you're never going to see
Pink popcorn on the floor.

The happy car of red or black
Is not of costly make;
It's one that's strewn with cracker-jack
And paper dolls and cake.
And though I do the best I can
To keep the carpets clean
I envy not the lonely man
Within his limousine.

Because the King Has Dyspepsia, It Doesn't Follow That Cabbage Will Poison Plowboys.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NO advice is good advice except to the man who can make good use of it.

Consider, for example, the advice to be humble.

A trouble-maker once came to President Lincoln and said: "Mr. Lincoln, Secretary Seward says you are a fool."

"Well," drawled Lincoln, "Mr. Seward usually is right."

Lincoln possessed the humility that is the bedrock of greatness, but it does not follow that a similar humility would make you equally great. You must be, first of all, a Lincoln.

The Great Teacher washed the feet of His disciples and said to them: "He that would be greatest among you, let him be the servant of all."

He spoke, however, to men who were in training for martyrdom—men of a subject race, whose success would depend on the measure of their humility.

Great men are humble, but their capacity for humility is a part of their capacity for greatness. They are not great because they are humble, but humble because they are great.

The man without natural capacity for greatness might lick the shoes of his neighbors and remain a nobody still.

It is only by carrying a chip on his shoulder and daring anybody to knock it off that he eventually climbs above more timid souls.

And the man handicapped by nature and by lack of opportunity must assure himself and his fellows that he is "as good as anybody," else the odds against him would break his spirit and bring him to his knees. He instinctively adopts the defense and the attitude necessary to survival.

The minds of men are as different as their bodies and their faces, and what is wisdom for one is folly for another.

The advice you read seems bosh because it doesn't fit your needs; but another man, as unlike you as day is unlike night, welcomes it as the way of salvation.

Men who would remake the world by suppressing the details not fitted to their own taste and capacity make the mistake of assuming that all men's needs are like their own.

When all stations broadcast grand opera, there is no entertainment at all for those who can appreciate nothing but jazz.

PRO AND CON

Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great Show, "Politics," Staged in Congress.

Senate Protective Union.
Chicago Tribune.

Senator Nye's committee having run out of cash, the Senate has voted an additional $50,000 and has extended its life until next January. Mr. Nye and his associates have constituted a special commission on qualifications and eligibility, sanctions, rights and privileges. They have been authorized to determine who might and who might not be elected to the Senate and in what manner.

With these censors on the job it is becoming increasingly difficult for outsiders to obtain acceptable credentials to the Senate. It has a perference for its sitting members and a dislike for any such innovation as the swearing in of new ones. The Ney associates have added to the Senate's peace of mind by working toward the doctrine of life tenure. They are particularly severe against the spending of private funds in a campaign against a senator.

What's a "Regular?"
Topeka Capital.

The Daily Oklahoman thinks that "the trouble with getting Borah to run as an independent candidate for President is that the election comes on the only day of the biennium that Borah is a regular Republican." But just what a regular Republican is, for that matter, nobody has yet even offered to explain.

Prove It, Gifford!
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Gov. Pinchot marked his formal entrance into office at Harrisburg yesterday by a violent indictment of what he described in his inaugural address as "a carefully planned, elaborately financed and powerfully directed attack upon the rule of the people under the law." He charged that this "hidden government" was composed of the electric, gas, water, trolley, bus and other public utilities, which he represented as conspiring not only to control the State but the Nation at large, in alliance with their "mercenaries," the politicians and the criminal forces of the underworld.

If the governor is speaking from actual knowledge, and not from mere hearsay and belief, and if he would acquit himself of the presumption of reckless statement in attributing deliberate criminality to a large element in the business life of the State and Nation, he will without delay put before the people the evidence on which his charges are based.

Robinson's Scrap of Paper.
New York Herald Tribune.

The effect of the Senate's action on public opinion will be equally disagreeable, as some senators may presently learn. The Democratic leader, Senator Robinson, has already suffered great loss of prestige by leading the fight for this odious proposition. In so doing he has not only laid himself open to the charge of demagoguery of a very crass kind, but he has also made waste paper of the new notorious Democratic "harmony manifesto," which he had signed.

Although this document pledged cooperation with the President in relief measures, one finds its principal signer leading a movement which will do more than any other thing to hamper the President's plan for giving relief to the drought sufferers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Mall and Monument Grounds Have Become Vast Outdoor Garages. Parks No More.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What is the use of having park and planning commissions and spending money on the city parks, especially downtown, if the open spaces hitherto beautiful, are to be made simply daytime open garages? The drives in the Mall are becoming filled with them, with full consent of the authority over the parks. You can count hundreds of automobiles parked in the Smithsonian grounds in the neighborhood of the Department of Agriculture building. The cars have even grown so thick that they are now literally ensconced on the greensward.

Over on the Monument grounds you may see automobiles becoming thickly parked in the drives. The camel has allowed to poke his head under the tent and soon will occupy all the tent. The thing has grown to vast proportions and unless eliminated at once there will be no Mall but a vast garage. Or course that would please automobilists. The world was created for them, they and the park authorities seem to think. But why not be frank in the matter than aly? With the vast building program in the triangle with their denizens arriving and departing in cars something will have to be done one way or another. Inferentially the plan seems to be to convert all the present park from the Lincoln Memorial to the Capitol into open parking space for cars for the public in general and the Government workers in particular, especially those living in Maryland and Virginia.

Would it not be highly appropriate to change the name of the Park and Planning Commission to garage and planning board? Obviously what is permitted to be done in the Mall can also and will be done in other parks of the city. J. L.

Democrats Will Make Mistake If They Underestimate Hoover's Strength Among Moderates and Independents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I hope you will let me remark, as a free-minded partisan, that my fellow Democrats are making a big mistake if they figure that Candidate Hoover will not personally be nearly as strong in the presidential campaign of 1932 as he was in 1928. It will depend very much on the temper of the enormous group of stay-at-home voters of last fall.

Normally the American people are lighthearted and know how to enjoy a good time in politics. But lately they have been so fed up on political circus-ring entertainment that they will in 1932 be less inclined than ever to favor any but a leader who seems safe to keep the even tenor of his way in the hubbub and uncertainty of modern conditions.

Democracy has several such leaders available whose stand respecting local self-government and whose sterling nationalism admirably fit them for the presidential race. The party has an even chance to recover from the debacle of 1928.

But in order to make a good fight, it must realize that, in the homes of the United States, regardless of politics, the name of no public man is held in higher esteem than that of Hoover.

If the Democratic party misses its chance, it will be because it fails to win over a large number of sober-minded voters who have become disgusted with the kind of politics which we are now getting.

Although politically the Hoover personality is a Republican asset, it does not follow that it may be safely disparaged by Democratic partisans.

JACKSONIAN.

States' Rights Doctrine Repudiated by Those Who Demand Federal Dole.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I, through your widely read paper, call the attention of Senators Robinson and Caraway to the once popular doctrine of "States Rights," which, it seems to me, they have forgotten or repudiated in their vociferous insistence on Federal aid for the Arkansas farmer. And this seems to be true of the Democratic party as a whole, it appears pretty unanimous in its appetite for outside help for local needs.

It is by such raids on the national Treasury in the name of charity that our governmental centralization is developed, State independence and pride evaporated, sold for a monetary dole, and thus Congress compelled to attend to matters which ought to be cared for by local and State authorities.

I am one of many therefore who heartily sympathize with our President's stand on this question and feel sure that American commonsense and pride in local ability are opposed to such efforts to make the national dole a part of our policy as it is in Europe. (REV.) R. C. McADIE.

Advocates National Unemployment Insurance System.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The attitude by certain classes of people against being a soldier in the ranks was definite until the draft act placed their sons in the ranks and they acquired a new knowledge of national duty and consideration. The inauguration of a dole system for the benefit of the people of the nation seems to possess the characteristic of being universally misunderstood. A citizen is a shareholder in a great democratic enterprise. That citizen should have the privilege of being placed upon an unemployment record and receive a contribution in the form of unemployment insurance. This is in no sense a charity, any more than receiving dividends from a corporation or an insurance company. A permanent systematic method must be created by the proper governmental agencies, for if we do not pay unemployment insurance in the form of taxes, we nevertheless pay for it in the form of expenses for penitentiaries, bread lines and donations to the Red Cross. So why not correct this chaotic condition?

STATES OF EUROPE DECRY WAR RUMORS

BRIAND PLAN UP TODAY

Geneva, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The European commission tonight struck a concerted blow at war talk and pessimism and then adjourned its sessions until May, when deliberations on Aristide Briand's proposal for a European federation will be resumed.

In an effort to restore international confidence and assist economic recovery by dissipating the fear that a war in Europe is a grave possibility the spokesmen for 26 European states issued a manifesto of reassurance.

It was conceived, it was said in authoritative quarters in Geneva tonight, with the purpose of counteracting fear and timidity in world banking centers. The manifesto read:

"As a result of our discussions and conversations during the last few days concerning the problems which our governments have, respectively, to face it has become plain that economic recovery is now being hindered by lack of confidence in the course of future events, due to widespread political anxiety. That anxiety has been increased by irresponsible talk in various quarters concerning the possibility of international war.

"We recognise that there are political difficulties in Europe at the present time, and that these difficulties have been accentuated by the economic instability and unrest which the world economic depression has caused. The best service we can render toward improvement of the economic position is firm assurance of European peace.

"We therefore declare as foreign ministers of responsible representatives of European states that we are more resolutely determined than ever to use the machinery of the League of Nations to prevent any resort to violence."

At the final sitting tonight the European commission adopted a series of resolutions designed to set in motion machinery for ameliorating present economic conditions.

Brutality Is Charged To New York Officers

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A man arrested during yesterday's Communist riot at City Hall, charged today he was beaten for two hours at police headquarters. Isidor Bogusloff, 32, was arraigned on a charge of suspicion of felonious assault on a policeman and held in $1,000 for hearing Tuesday.

"My client's head was beaten into a jelly," Bogusloff's attorney declared, pointing to bandages on the man's skull. Magistrate Weil said he would not listen to evidence until Tuesday.

Russia Compels Millions To Work or Forego Food

2,000,000 More Being Needed to Carry Out 1931's Share in Five-Year Plan, Soviets Proclaim Dire Punishments for Slackers.

Moscow, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Soviet Russia, facing in these days of world unemployment the greatest labor shortage in its history, is openly sounding the battle cry "Only those who work may eat."

A million and a half more men are employed in industry today than a year ago, but 2,000,000 more are necessary to carry out this year's part of the five-year industrialization plan.

The government, therefore, is studying every possible means of developing the last ounce of energy from the toiling masses.

While the term "forced labor" is an anathema to the Communist authorities, who characterize such description "nonsense," the various communist laws have issued many orders with regard to slackers, prescribing all sorts of punishments for those failing to cooperate in Socialistic construction.

The railways have been hardest hit by the lack of workers.

So serious has the situation become in the national transport that the government has ordered every man in Russia who has worked on the roads in the last five years to return immediately to his old job.

Employers of such men have been threatened with dire punishment unless they discharge them immediately. Recently plans were prepared to draft housewives and other women into industry by building more communal kitchen apartments, thus freeing the feminine population from what is described as "the old fashioned unsocialistic duties."

As a result of the government campaign, abandonment by any Russian of his job is considered almost a counter-revolutionary crime. Millions of factory workers and others have been induced by their unions to sign pledges to stick to their individual jobs until the five-year plan is completed.

substantial amendments in the committee stage following second reading, providing the groundwork for a long parliamentary struggle over the measure.

The smallness of the government's majority on the third reading of the education bill was due to the fact that most of the Liberals abstained in view of the change of position caused by the success of Scurr's amendment.

Had this amendment been defeated the Liberals probably would have voted with the government on the final reading.

Mr. Root explained that if at any time during proceedings before the court this Government felt it had an interest, proceedings could be stayed.

"That is all we have done," he asserted, pounding the table. "It seems ludicrously small for so much fuss to be made about it."

This was the only hearing contemplated by the foreign relations committee on the World Court. The committee has voted to defer consideration until next December.

GERMANY DEMANDS POLES END VIOLENCE

1930 INCIDENT RECALLED

Geneva, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—German charges of mistreatment of the German minority in Poland were laid before the council of the League of Nations today by Foreign Minister Julius Curtius. He demanded the League take steps to assure Germans in Poland full enjoyment of their rights.

The Polish foreign minister, August Zaleski, defended his government against accusations of violence upon and suppression of civil liberties of the German group, admitting, however, some disorderly excesses had been committed during the heated election campaign in November, 1930.

He pleaded in extenuation that reports presented by German sources were in most cases highly erroneous or exaggerated. Moreover, he said, the Polish government already had moved to punish offenders and to recompense the victims of the disorders, and was determined to work by every means for conciliation between the German minority and Polish majority.

Herr Curtius, in appealing to the council, declared the affair had no character of conflict between the two nations, but was a matter which concerned the league alone.

He concentrated his attack on alleged illegal repressive acts of the "union of insurgents," an organization of former Polish soldiers. This organization, he charged, was semi-military and subsidized by the state and its members operated during the election campaign by threats and maltreatment of the minorities.

Referring to the "union of insurgents," Zaleski said it was perhaps "somewhat too ardent," but was not the only federation with this failing.

He concluded with the promise that the Polish government would suppress with utmost vigor any kind of disorder.

Boni Abandons Scheme Of 50-Cent Book Club

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Charles Boni, publisher, has abandoned the publication of 50-cent paper books, he announced today.

His paper book club was inaugurated about eighteen months ago to distribute a volume of fiction a month at 50 cents a volume. He said today he was confident the plan would succeed in times of normal buying.

MAN AMAZES COURT BY ASKING FOR TRIAL

Fugitive for Five Years, He Responds to Name in Paris Assizes.

IN LITVINOFF DRAFT CASE

Paris, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Staid officials of the French Court of Assizes were amazed today by the appearance of a man who asked for trial, thereby setting a precedent in French jurisprudence and at the same time evoking memories of the famous Litvinoff forged draft case.

The court was sitting without a jury to try cases by default. In half an hour sentences had been passed against four fugitives, and the case of Jacob Altchitz was called.

As no response was expected, the court was labeling the docket "five years by default" when a richly dressed and elderly man arose.

"I am Jacob Altchitz," he said, "and I am ready to stand trial."

The judge appeared thunderstruck and asked:

"Are you the Jacob Altchitz charged with passing a £10,000 Litvinoff draft in October, 1928?"

"I am Jacob Altchitz, banker of Berlin," was the reply.

He was taken to La Sante Prison and will be tried by jury.

The Litvinoff faked draft case set the European financial world in turmoil in 1928. Maximovitch Litvinoff, said to have been a brother of Maxim Litvinoff, then assistant commissar of foreign affairs in Russia, was arrested in Paris on the charge that he had participated in the issuance of forged drafts amounting to nearly $1,000,000.

The drafts were issued under the seal of the Soviet trade delegation to Berlin, with which Maximovitch Litvinoff formerly had been connected. The arrest was requested by the Russian government after a number of the drafts had been passed.

CADET LEADER

LIEUT. COL. JOHN C. LUDLUM
In command of the First Regiment of High School Cadets at Central High School. He follows in the footsteps of his brother, who a decade ago was a high school cadet colonel.

Second Ludlum Commands Cadets

First Regiment Colonel Has Enviable Record at Central High.

The second member of his family to command the First Regiment of High School Cadets in the last decade, Lieut. Col. John C. Ludlum, of 7 West Bradley lane, Chevy Chase, Md., has made an enviable record for himself at Central High School, where two generation of the Ludlum family have been students.

Recently elected vice president of the Officers' Club at Central, young Ludlum also is a member of the Honor Society of the school, and has been for three consecutive years manager of the Central Rifle Squad. For the last two summers he has competed in the national rifle matches at Camp Perry and at Sea Girt, N. J.

A brother, Robert C. Ludlum, was colonel of cadets in 1920-1921, and his sister was a scholarship student in 1927. His father, Samuel S. Ludlum, graduated from Central in 1889, and his mother, formerly Miss Clarissa Larman, graduated with the class of 1898.

Woman Loses Way During Brief Walk

Mrs. Blanche VanDeventer, 68, Found Many Blocks From Her Home.

Unable to find her way back to her home after she had left to take a walk, Mrs. Blanche VanDeventer, 68 years old, of 6629 Harlan place northwest, wandered about the streets of Takoma Park for several hours early last night.

Her disappearance was reported to police by Mrs. DDaisy Evelyn Stadel, a nurse, with whom Mrs. VanDeventer made her home, and police of the Thirtenth Precinct organized a searching party. Policeman Claude Cool found her on Blair road, near Rittenhouse street, and took her to her home. She was very cold, but police said they did not think she had suffered from exposure enough to seriously harm her.

At the time the police found her she was many blocks from her home and was going in the wrong direction.

Pabst Sees Essay AgainstProhibition

Brewer Sorry Wickersham Report Differs From Majority's Views.

Milwaukee, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Fred Pabst, sr., head of the Pabst Brewing Co., said today the report of the Wickersham Commission was an "essay against prohibition."

Pabst recently spent $800,000 in enlarging and modernizing the brewery for the manufacture of beer in event of legalization of the beverage.

"I do not begrudge the expenditure," he said. "The report, as I expected, emphasizes the fact that national prohibition has been a failure. It stresses that prohibition can not be enforced without the public opinion. It is unfortunate, in view of the fact that the majority of the commission individually urge revision or repeal, that the joint report does not conform with their individual expressions."

Cramton Will Get Bicentennial Job

Representative Backed by Fess for $10,000 Post Resigned by Grant.

Representative Louis C. Cramton (Republican), of Michigan, who was defeated in his fight for reelection, is to be given the job of associate director of the Washington Bicentennial Commission at a salary of $10,000 a year.

The position recently was vacated when Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d resigned, pleading the press of his other duties. Col. Grant received no salary, but the salary to be paid Mr. Cramton is available in funds already appropriated for the commission.

Mr. Cramton's appointment was requested of President Hoover yesterday by Senator Simeon Fess (Republican), of Ohio, director of the commission. Senator Fess told the President that Mr. Cramton's selection represented the views of other members of the commission with whom he had conferred earlier in the day.

21 DRY AGENTS FACE QUIZ IN MAN'S DEATH

HAD FRACTURED SKULL

Owensville, Ky., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Richard Williams, 35, died today of a fractured skull. County Attorney D. W. Doggett said he was investigating a report that Mr. Williams had been struck on the head by one of a band of 21 Federal prohibition agents who conducted raids in Bath County yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Doggett said he had asked United States Commissioner Charles N. Wiard at Lexington to send members of the raiding party back to Bath County tomorrow for an inquest to be conducted by Coroner S. C. Alexander.

The county attorney said he had been informed that Mr. Williams was struck on the head with a pistol butt by one of the agents when he resisted arrest. He lay in a field, Mr. Doggett said, until members of his family found him and took him home, where he died this morning.

Haf Distributing Corporation, both of New York, and General News Bureau, 809 I street northwest. Heron & Boyd, whose place of business is in the Atlas Building, declare that they have suffered a loss of $6,000 and will continue to suffer a loss of $550 weekly as a result of the alleged conspiracy to boycott their customers.

According to the plaintiffs, they have built up a clientele of 50 subscribers since February 1, 1930, from which they derive a gross income of $600 weekly, and a net income of $400 weekly. They allege that the defendants served notice on their customers November 1 that unless they ceased purchasing wall sheets from the plaintiffs and brought them from the Min-Haf and Wal-Min concerns, the defendants would refuse to supply them with horse race news, including results of races.

It is stated that Beard is the local distributor for the New York firms, Ottenstein is the agent and representative of the General News Bureau, Inc., and Burke is an employe of some of the defendants. The General News Bureau, it is said, is engaged in gathering and dissseminating news relating to horse racing, which is entered on cards or wall sheets in the offices of subscribers, and also leases telegraph and telephone wires.

Attorneys R. B. Dickey and E. C. Kriz represent the plaintiffs.

Comparison Makes Quick Sales

Our quickest and easiest sales are made to those who have first "looked" elsewhere.

It's not always price . . . it's the value we give for the price.

$50 St. Albans
Overcoats
$25

The materials are nearly all of heavy, soft, fleecy cloths in the desirable Winter colors . . . dark blue, oxford and black. Lines are still quite large and sizes fairly complete. Many of these coats are full silk lined.

To increase this assortment we've added the line of rich camel hair coats, in both medium and heavy weights. You KNOW these must be wonderful bargains!

$75 St. Albans
Overcoats
$35

Not the imported French materials, costing $125 to $150 . . . ours are of the American-made fabric of similar description. Compare $35 with $150 . . . and we invite you to compare the values.

Colors are black or blue, full silk lined, velvet collar and also a self-collar in one of the pockets for replacement. Besides the regular cut models there are extra shorts and stouts.

$50 St. Albans
2-Pants Suits
$29.50

Handsome, non-glossing unfinished worsteds in desirable dark shades . . . plenty of blues . . . rich, silk-mixed worsteds of superb quality. A perfect fitting guaranteed, without charge for alterations.

By ROBERT D. HEINL

RADIO stations, helped by leading citizens of Washington, will begin in earnest today to do their bit for the 1931 Community Chest campaign. Vincent F. Callahan, of WRC, chairman of the radio committee, advises that the local stations will feature one Community Chest program each day through February 4. Today's schedule calls for speakers from WMAL, 5:30 p. m.; WRC, 6:10 p. m., WOL, 6:30 p. m., and WJSV, 7:15 p. m. Tomorrow's time allotment: WMAL, 5:25 p. m.; WRC, 5:55 p. m., WOL, 6:30 p. m.; WJSV, 7:15 p. m.

Familiar voices will dominate the hour between 9 and 10 o'clock tonight from WRC, when Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith will adddress the radio audience during a special American Red Cross program.

The former President will urge concerted national effort toward relief of the unemployed in the cities and the drought-stricken areas, in his official capacity as chairman of the President's recently named special drive committee. John Barton Payne, chairman of the Red Cross, will be heard also.

WITH Richard Dix and Estelle Taylor, screen stars, and Floyd Gibbons, M. C., featured, the RKO Theater of the Air will be presented from Washington tomorrow evening (WRC, 10:30 p. m.) The occasion will be the premiere of Dix's new picture, "Cimarron."

Boys from St. Joseph's Home and School will broadcast a tabloid minstrel show this evening (WOL, 6 o'clock) in behalf of the Community Chest.

The Columbia Broadcasting System more than doubled its list of stations last year, growing from 38 to 78, and increased its advertising revenue 58 per cent, William S. Paley, president, revealed in his report to the board of directors.

A LISTENER reports to his department that a number of women have declared they would enjoy the household chats by Ida Bailey Allen if it were not for her laughing when on the air.

Malcolm P. Hanson, radio engineer with the Byrd expedition, will address the Washington Radio Club at its meeting 8 o'clock Saturday evening, January 24, at the Department of Commerce Building.

The Beaux Arts Ball will be described tomorrow evening (WABC, 12 midnight).

With the first broadcasting by television of New York and Chicago Stock Exchange ticker tape quotations announced for next Monday, the new art will establish itself as an active aid to business. Stations WMAQ, and the televisor, W9XAP, will inaugurate the service before a group of Chicago financiers. This broadcast will then become a regular feature of the television station.

INTEREST in watching radio broadcasts is growing, rather than diminishing, according to Variety. WJZ, WEAF, WABC and WOR are deluged by requests for permits by fans to sit in on broadcasts.

WEAF permits 200 to visit the Palmolive Hour each week while CBS usually provides seats for 150 to 200 for the Eank Simmons Showboat. WOR's "Market Street Playhouse" sons. These hours are leaders with several others following closely.

"May I speak to the dean of announcers?" inquired a caller at Station WABC.

Each announcer, with becoming modesty, hesitated to pick up the receiver. Finally one stepped forward, and said:

"This is he."

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, January 21.

HA, ha, murder will out! And it is murder, too * * * murder to the age-old idea that the Riviera in the winter time is a place of sunshine, oranges and roses. For it isn't, not through any fault of its own, you know * * * but because it just can't help being influenced by the changing current of the Gulf Stream, I think it is, not being geographically inclined * * * me, I mean, not the Riviera.

So now the fashion magazines are really admitting things and the clothes designed for the Riviera are those designed for tempermental spring wear, not designed for tropical Miami or Havana wear. At Cannes, for instance, visitors go about in delicious tailor-mades, in which stockinette predominates. White is the favorite tint, enlivened with touches of color and always in a lightweight woolen material. Sweaters, cardigans, warm scarves and lightweight topcoats are the mode * * * and the need.

Even the pajamas cling to the maritime effect * * * because they can sport flannel trousers and striped tricot jerseys, over which blue sweaters are put when the breeze freshens. Some more fanciful pajamas make their appearance, to be sure, but always amply provided with extra garments that can be put on when the "sorocco" starts.

Evening on the Riviera is as elsewhere, excepting that evening wraps are still short and of velvet or lame, in place of the longer evening coat that is more elegant for the city wear. Yet these little wraps must be fur trimmed and warm collared, too.

And though the habitues of the Riviera stanchly cling to the belief that Cannes and Nice can never be anything but winter places in which to find sunshine, as summer resorts they are slowly gaining more favor, while Egypt and Morocco and the resorts in this direction from the continent are still offering real warmth and sunshine for those who can go and take them.

Screen to put between the twin beds when you want to read and hubby wants to sleep * * * screens to hide that street light from your eyes when you want to sleep * * * screens to decorate the living room, to hide a telephone or a sewing box * * * screens for where you will! That's what this week's leaflet tells you about. How to make screens from wall paper remnants, screens that cost umpteen dollars in a store, but only a few to make. That stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Washington Post will tell you how to make these screens from wall paper, and you better send for it because you just might need a screen some day.

One of those formal evening capes I mentioned above, have I illustrated for you today * * * this one from New York, and of dark blue brocade with an oddly twisted collar of silver fox. The hem silver fox trimmed, too, and the whole cape gracefully constructed to really hang easily to the figure * * * a rarity in capes, what!

And I urge you, also, to read Dare's weekly fashion letter each Sunday in the Sunday Washington Post.

Au Revoir!

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

The Dependent Mother.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I am a woman of 48 and dependent upon my two sons-in-law for support. One of them has a fine home with every comfort, but for some reason he will not permit my daughter to have me live with them. So she sends me $20 a month instead. The other son-in-law is a shiftless sort, no business sense and not much ambition, and we are all crowded into a five-room bungalow on the edge of town. I do most of the work, as there are two small babies and no money for help. I can hardly stand it, as all my life I had everything to make a home a comfort. I would be superhuman if I did not complain once in a while.

For instance, the other day I said that I thought, since he was not able to get ahead, we should take a large house in town and rent rooms. That way we would have very little more work and a lot more comfort. To my surprise he became very nasty and told me he would welcome the day that I decided to do that or anything else that would take me out of his house, but that so far as dictating to him what he should do or suggesting his wife should keep roomers. I was just "making myself obnoxious, as usual." I was stunned, as we had never had a word in our lives before. My daughter was all upset and made him apologize. But I hate to remain after such a remark.

I wrote my other daughter all about it and asked her advice. She answered very briefly that I knew how things stood with her and she could not offer me a home and advising me to make the best of things as I found them. That is easy to say, with maids to wait on you and a chauffeur to take you where you want to go. But two miles from town without a car (my son-in-law takes the car to work) and no one to even talk to is pretty hard on the person who has to "make the best of it." I feel I can not stand things any longer. Can you offer any advice?

DEPENDENT MOTHER.

It seems almost incredible that you should criticize the home your son-in-law provides for you. And almost equally incredible that he apologized for an outburst so comprehensible in the circumstances. Instead of encouraging your daughter to be happy and appreciative of her husband's efforts, you deliberately set about causing her to be dissatisfied and to feel contempt for her husband's abilities. This seems almost wicked in you. After all, this son-in-law that you despise as shiftless was generous enough to welcome you into his home. You may feel that it was because your services were needed, but that is not proved. Most girls with only two children and a small house manage very nicely without help. And this girl would be far happier alone than assisted by a mother who belittles all that is offered her.

Unless you can induce your other daughter to supply you with the money to take a house where you could yourself let rooms you should stop comparing the two homes of your daughters and accept as yours the home that is at least open to you and find in it the joy that many another woman of your age would find there in abundance. You are one of the many women who after years of pampering are unable to adjust themselves to stern necessity. It is a hard lesson, but it must be learned. And you will be a better woman for the learning.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2:30 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 8:30 p. m. to 10 p. m.

January 22 holds out prospects of travel, with attendant good results. It is also indicated that private family troubles may arise, difficult of solution. There are no specific portents in regard to business. Speculation, however, will not succeed. Conditions improve after sunset.

The child born on this January 22 will have an inquisitive nature, as well as an adventurous one. It will frequently find itself in difficulty, but will always "land on its feet." It will have a keen sense of humor, and will be a ready talker, an almost too willing one.

Your "make-up" is a mixture of selfishness and unselfishness. You desire the comfort of the latter, however, without the unbecomingness of appearing so—you know how to display your good points and deeds, and you know how to veneer or gilt your bad ones. You often play the role of a martyr, but seldom appear as a repentant—in your own eyes you are never wrong. You have little understanding for any moods except your own, and these you are inclined to baby, and to display as you choose.

You have a vehement temperament. With you, to think is to feel, to feel is to act—reflection comes last, if it ever comes at all. You have violent likes and dislikes, and are easily prejudiced. You are not a bad judge of human character, and you know how to play up to your audience. Your nature develops best in sunshine, and so long as life asks no hard things of you, you are sweet-tempered and self-forgetful. You are not always a good sport in stormy weather.

If you be a man, you crave power—and if you be a woman, you long for social position. You are bright and vivacious, but are not highly intellectual. Your knowledge is general, but superficial—you have neither the patience nor desire to go to the roots of things. You will be in love many times before you find the right man or woman—the one to whom you will give your best loyalty and sincerity.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to care for farfugeum. I have soil from the woods, but even so the leaves persist in becoming yellow and falling off. I. E. B.

The farfugeum requires a great deal of warm and, if possible, humid air, also fresh air at all times and a great deal of moisture. It will do very well in an eastern, western or southern window. It is not apt to do well in a northern one. Try giving your plant enough water to moisten all the soil in the pot once each day and about once a week carry it to the bathroom and turn on the hot shower. Of course, the hot water must not come in contact with the plant, but when the room becomes filled with steam the moisture in the air will benefit it.

Some one told me to write and ask you how to convert dead leaves into fertilizer. MRS. M. B. C.

There is a material on the market which measures up to the claims the manufacturers make for it that will convert the leaves into fertilizer. This takes six months. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you the name of this product. We can not publish trade names in this column.

Please tell me why the lower leaves of my plants turn yellow and fall. Should these be removed? Also, please tell me the name of the inclosed plant and the care to be taken of it. MRS. E. G.

Quite frequently when plants are entering a new period of growth they discard a few of the older leaves. This is a provoking habit and is hard to overcome. Sometimes a little fertilizer will strengthen the plant to such an extent that it will retain the old leaves while developing new growth. The branch you inclosed seemed like a bit of gill-over the ground or ground ivy (nepeta glechoma). This plant was highly prized formerly as a domestic medicine. Gerarde claims that "boiled in mutton broth it helpeth weake and akeing backs." It is not a house plant and in the meadow will grow in any soil that is sufficiently moist.

Can you tell me whether I was correct in putting my dahlia roots in boxes filled with soil? I have the boxes in my fruit bin. MRS. J. A. N.

Your dahlias should do very well in such a location if the temperature remains at about 40 degrees. They usually keep well in newspaper lined and covered boxes. No matter where they are stored they should be looked over from time to time throughout the winter to see how they are faring. If the conditions are too dry some moisture may be added; if they are getting moldy (showing that there is too much moisture) they should be moved to a drier place.

Please tell me whether the Boston or English ivy is the one to grow in glass containers of water. I simply can not get a Boston ivy to form roots in water and without roots the shoots fade in less than a week. I have never tried the English variety. MRS. H. K.

Boston ivy will not root in water. English ivy will.

Please tell me whether a sanseviera will grow if I cut one long leaf into transverse sections about two inches long and stick one-half inch of each piece in sandy soil. SARA B.

This is one method of propagating this plant.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed flower. T. A. L.

Annual phlox.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

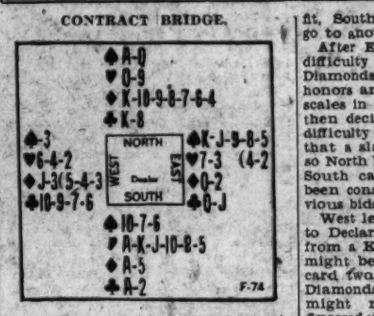
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.



The above hand was played recently in a Contract Bridge game in New York City. One of the leaders of the New York Bar held the North hand.

South bid two Hearts. He could count his hand as worth 5½ Heart tricks, one Diamond and one Club; so the two-bid (which would have been justified with six tricks) was conservative; indeed South was only about a half-trick short of a three-bid.

After West's pass, North bid four Diamonds. It is ouly with a hand containing unusual strength that a forcing jump-shift to a minor is made over partner's two of a major, but North felt that he had that strength. If the Diamonds fitted, it would be entirely satisfactory; if they did not fit, South could rebid his Hearts or go to another suit.

After East's pass, South had some difficulty in deciding between five Diamonds and four Hearts, but his honors and 6-card length turned the scales in favor of four Hearts. North then decided that there would be no difficulty in making five Hearts and that a slam suggestion was in order; so North bid five Hearts and, of course, South called four Hearts, as he had been conservative in both of his previous bids.

West led his singleton Spade which to Declarer looked like a fourth best from a King-suit, and noting that it might be difficult for South to discard two of his Spades on dummy's Diamonds (the adverse Diamonds might not be normally divided) finessed the Queen of Spades on the first trick. Of course East won with the King and returned a Spade, so the small slam contract was set when West ruffed.

The proper play of the hand would be: Win trick 1 with the Ace of Spades and lead as many trumps as necessary to exhause the adversaries. Three would have been sufficient to do it, but one more could have been led for good measure. Then the Ace and King of Diamonds would drop all the adverse Diamonds and give South the necessary Spade discards: if the Diamonds had been divided 3-3, the suit could have been cleared and North's King of Clubs used for an entry. It was very improbable that the adverse Diamonds were divided 4-0; and that chance should have been taken.

3 tablspoons suet, chopped.
3 tablespoons onions.
3 tablespoons parsley, chopped.
3 tablespoons chopped celery.
1½ cups water.

Pound flour into both sides of meat. Sprinkle with salt and paprika. Heat suet in frying pan. When hot add and brown onions and celery. Add meat and brown on both sides. Add half the water. Cover and cook 45 minutes over very low fire. Add rest of the water and parsley. Cook another 45 minutes. This meat should cook very slowly.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Frothingham" is a variation of the original "Fotheringham." It is of English origin and its full significance is "he who lives at the home or estate of the Fother family." "Fother" was an old personal name of Scandinavian origin. It is based on the old Norse "fathir," meaning "the father." "Fotheringham" and its several variations do not seem to be recorded in English documents until a relatively late period. A London church register of the year 1761 records the marriage of a certain Mary Fotheringham.

The family name "Hurlbert" is often the modern form of the Anglo-Saxon "Herlebeorht." "Herlebeorht" was an old personal name which may be translated "army-bright." However, in a large number of cases "Hurlbert" stands for "Hurlbatt." "Hurlbatt" (also spelled "Hurlbutt") generally represents a nickname for a person who had shown himself to be skillful in the old game of hurling. The bat for hurling was called a "clubbe" or "hurlebatte." It is believed that in a few cases "Hurlbatt" was also applied as a nickname to persons who beat cloth or wool. The various forms of this family name appear to be first recorded in the fourteenth century.

The name "MacTaggart" (also written "MacTaggert," "Taggart," "Taggert," &c.) is of Celtic origin and means "the son of the clergyman." It is especially common in Ulster.

The family name "Gompers" is generally a variation of the German "Gompertz" or "Gunperz." These forms are derived from "Gundobert," which was an old Germanic personal name, meaning "famous battle."

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Suggestion.

It has perhaps not occurred to you that your efforts to stop your child from doing something he should not do may really be fixing the undesirable behavior more firmly than ever.

He sucks his thumb, and you repeat a hundred times a day: "Don't suck your thumb." Every time you say it you are reminding him of the very thing you wish him to stop. It is hardly the child's fault if you influence him to do the very opposite of what you wish.

Or you are taking him with you on a shopping trip, and you may say: "Last time I took you with me you teased and teased me to buy you things. You cried because I would not buy you a train. You wanted a balloon, and you weren't happy until I let you have an ice cream soda that made you sick. This time I want you to promise not to ask for a single thing."

Your speech has done nothing but remind him of all the things he wanted and has probably made him want them all over again. He will probably behave even worse this time than last.

A moment's thought would make plain how these attitudes of yours influence the child in the opposite way from that which you wish. But you are busy, and "don't" is the natural formula. It is much easier to tell a child what not to do than to suggest what he should do.

In the end, however, suggesting something he should do instead of reminding him of what he should not do saves time and energy for you. It also makes growing up a much easier and happier process for your child.

When his thumb goes into his mouth, distract his attention with a toy. When you take him on a shopping trip, interest him in the things on your list and tell him that he can help by carrying a package or two.

Arthritis!

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

The pigs' feet are scalded, scraped and cleaned thoroughly, then sprinkled lightly with salt and left for three to five hours. The feet are then washed, put into the steam pressure canner on top of the wire rack (so they are not directly on bottom of the canner), with just enough water to cover them. Cook at 15-pound pressure for 20 to 30 minutes. Let steam escape slowly, open the canner, remove the feet and carefully pick out the bones. Strain the liquid in which the feet were cooked and add the meat. Add according to taste salt and pepper and a small quantity of ground cloves. Reheat to boiling point and pack hot in inside-lacquered tin cans or in glass jars. Seal while hot (partly seal glass jars) and process:

Four-ounce glass jars at 250 degrees F., or 15 pounds of steam pressure; No. 1 tin cans, 45 minutes at 250 degrees, or 15 pounds steam pressure.

No. 2 tin cans, 60 minutes at 250 degrees, or 15 pounds steam pressure.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

By HERMANN HAGEDORN.

XIX—Attacked at Home.

Six weeks after his visit with the kaiser, Gen. Leonard Wood is lunching with King Edward at Buckingham Palace. The king, it strikes Wood, speaks English with more of a German accent than the emperor. There are dinners and dinners. Wood meets Kitchener, Lansdowne, Sir Evelyn Wood, dines with Gen. French, with Ambassador Choate, spends a week-end at Lowther Castle near Edinburgh, the home of Lord Lonsdale.

At a luncheon at the Guild Hall in honor of the king's recovery from a dangerous illness, Wood does not love the ordeal of walking 40 feet along a velvet carpet, announced by heralds. Bryce is there, Joseph Chamberlain, the Duke of Devonshire, Arthur Balfour, the prime minister. Balfour takes him in to the luncheon.

"Gen. Wood," he says, "the other day a number of us were talking over your achievements in Cuba and were wondering what the United States were going to do for you. We all agreed that if the work you did for Cuba were done for Great Britain, the king would undoubtedly have granted you an earldom and Parliament a gratuity of 100,000 pounds."

Wood smiles a little wanly. "We do things differently in America. I venture to prophesy that within two years I shall have to fight even to hold my commission in the Army."

(Gen. Wood's prophecy proved accurate. Shortly before his departure for the Philippines early in 1903 to establish civil government in the Moro Province, Estes Rathbone, whom he had exposed in Cuba in connection with the postal frauds, began the attack, backed by Senator Mark Hanna.)

Personal Issues Raised.

Hanna was an odd person, not to be pigeonholed as easily as the reformers seemed to think. He was at heart a medieval robber-baron, loyal to the vassal who was loyal to him, and was, or pretended to be, convinced of Rathbone's innocence. He had made up his mind that Rathbone should be vindicated and Wood punished, and when Hanna made up his mind to anything, the timid sought cover.

As soon as Gen. Wood was out of the country the opposing newspapers came into the open. The attacks centered mainly on certain personal issues. One dealt with an article which James E. Runcie, who had been Wood's close friend, had written while Wood was Governor of Santiago, denouncing Brooke. Another concerned an Englishman named Bellairs who had been Associated Press correspondent in Santiago and Havana. When Bellairs, who had praised Wood in his dispatches, criticized Taft's government in the Philippines, Wood's enemies insinuated that an unholy intrigue was on foot.

The New York Evening Post joined enthusiastically in the attempt to prove that Wood was the creature of Bellairs, cynically ignoring the laudations in its own columns, based, the paper had declared, not only on the dispatches of correspondents, but on private information.

The New York Times spoke of "pure calumnies, black lies and base inventions, such foul slanders as breathe in mean hearts and come to expression upon coward lips." Other papers spoke of persecution. Even the Army and Navy Journal, not naturally inclined to look with favor upon this medico, came vigorously to his defense. But day after day—sardonic and malicious—the Sun chanted its song of hate and the Democratic press bellowed the chorus.

Roosevelt Sends Letter.

"The Democratic campaign committee and the New York World, and possibly also the New York Journal," Roosevelt writes Wood, June 16, "have had spies down in Cuba to try to find out if there is anything that they can lay hands on against you. * * * You can not yourself be more astounded at the attacks upon you than I am. That they should attack me in every conceivable way I take as a matter of course and with entire indifference; but that they should attack you is without excuse. When the chance comes for me to say anything in the matter I shall act in the future as I have acted in the past; that is, when I deal with you I shall take the offensive and not the defensive. I shall treat what you have done as establishing a claim for which we have not given and can not give you a sufficient reward and shall hit out as savagely as I know how at those who try to balk your advancement."

(President Roosevelt kept his word. In August, 1903, when a vacancy occurred in the list of major generals, the President appointed Wood to it as senior brigadier general. The appointment was greeted by Wood's opponents with shouts of rage.)

Feeling ran high. The President was promoting his friend over the heads of worthier men, it was said, merely because he was his friend. What had Wood done to deserve this jump from obscurity to a grade which would give him within five or six years the command of the Army? A hundred days of campaigning in Cuba, that was all. As for his Government in Santiago and Havana, since when did civilian's work justify military promotion? The Sun devoted a full page to the records of the brave officers Wood had jumped, ignoring the fact that the vast majority were as dull as they were brave and that McKinley and not Roosevelt had been responsible for that jump.

Enmity Surprises Roosevelt.

The politicians and the press rang the changes on Bellairs, the Runcie case, the silver service which the Jai Alai Society had given Wood on his departure from Cuba, and day in and day out impressed on the public's mind the picture of Wood as a pampered favorite.

Roosevelt and Root were astounded how widespread and overwhelming was the hostility against Wood, not only in the Army, but among the public. The case was steeped in politics. Hanna was involved on two counts—Rathbone and the personal issue between himself and Roosevelt, unexpressed but fundamental.

The Army, moreover, was deep in the fight. The older officers had, with few exceptions, led restricted lives, and were inclined to be intensely jealous of any man who lived a different kind of life and rose in consequence. Every ambitious man among them in Washington had a representative or a senator whom he kept warm for emergencies, and the house on the hill buzzed with indignant protestors in Manila.

All the currents of politics, however, were not adverse. Ohio, which for the persons of Hanna and Rathbone, was trying to snuff out Wood's career, provided also a sagacious defender in the shape of its senior senator, Joseph B. Foraker, who was Hanna's great rival for the control of the G. O. P. He had no intention of permitting Hanna to augument his power with a victory over the President.

Hanna Opens Attack.

The hearings before the committee on military affairs of the Senate began on November 19. Hanna opened the attack in behalf of Rathbone and locked horns instantly with Foraker, Teller, of Colorado, followed. Eloquently and with pathos he pictured the enormity of Wood's offense in permitting himself to be jumped over older men.

Teller had forgotten, no doubt, that he himself had congratulated Wood on that promotion, had called it "justly merited," and had suggested that Wood's work in Cuba had earned him "the thanks, not only of the American people, but of the whole world." After all, had Wood really done much in Cuba? But even if he had, it was a civilian's job, not a soldier's.

Root replied vigorously with a statement pointing out the greatness of Wood's service in Cuba.

"The government of occupied territory is a military duty of a high order, and involves the exercise of many of the most important qualities of a general officer * * * Wood's entire military record, I think it fair to say that no officer of the American Army below the grade of major general has held more important commands, rendered more distinguished service or demonstrated to a higher degree the possession of the qualities which fit a man to render more valuable services to the country as major general."

The fight was on. Army officers in Washington were, according to the press, "dazed" by Root's praise of Wood.

Discrimination Denied.

"Any statement that he (Wood) is being jumped out of his turn is a pretense and a falsehood," he wrote Senator Platt, of New York. "That accusation would have applied when he was made a brigadier general three years ago, but he is now being advanced in his regular order. Any statement that he is now being advanced because of personal favoritism on my part is, of course, equally a pretense and a falsehood. He was advanced by President McKinley. I am doing nothing by refusing to reverse President McKinley's action.

"As for Rathbone, he has the natural feeling against Wood which the dishonest official always has against the decent man who has exposed him. * * * This government can not afford under any circumstances to let it be known that if a public servant, and especially a public servant in one of our insular dependencies, hunts down a powerful corruptionist, he will himself be punished for having done so. The prominent position given to Rathbone in the opposition against Wood has made the case one of far greater importance than if it affected merely Wood's personal fortunes."

Rathbone was the first witness before the committee, and after him came, one after the other, the men who, for this reason or that, Wood, governing in Cuba, had aggrieved. They painted a black picture of intrigue, deception and inefficiency, which paled noticeably under cross-examination. But the public heard only of the blackness.

Dudley in Rage.

When Wood's advocate general, Col. Edward J. Dudley, testified favorably to Wood, the newspapers reported the opposite. He went raging to Mrs. Wood, who was in Washington, to explain that he had become neither faithless nor insane. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss took more effective action when he discovered that his testimony had been reversed in the press, writing a hot letter to the Secretary of War asking whether it were necessary for him to suffer such misrepresentation. Root called the newspapers sharply to account.

Gen. James H. Wilson provided the sensational moment for the prosecution when he stated under oath, but on hearsay, since he himself had not served at Santiago, that Wood had not taken part in the battle of San Juan Hill at all, but had been in the rear "hunting ammunition." He quoted Roosevelt as having said to him that that was true, but he must not tell anybody.

Root, in behalf of the President, indignantly denied both the conversation and the fact. The President himself had seen Wood under fire at the Bloody Ford. But the story opened new possibilities for Wood's enemies. If it could be proved that Wood had actually been out of the fighting at a critical moment his second star would be quenched. Officers who had been in battle developed sudden lapses of memory.

Capt. Peter Traub, instructor at West Point, heard of the new charge and exploded. It was a damn outrage! He dug out his diary and drew a map. It appeared that not only had Wood been in the fight, but he had actually been one of the first brigade or division commanders to reach the crest, if not the first. He sent his statement "certified on honor" to the War Department. From Capt. Pershing, Col. Mills and others came corroborating word; and one, more bomb fizzled. Gen. Wood himself throughout the hearing was in the Philippines chasing recalcitrant Moros.

The administration, meanwhile, which meant Roosevelt, was handling the ticklish situation with a combination of firmness, patience and skill which was surprising to observers who were still under the delusion that "the Rough Rider" habitually acted first and pondered afterward. The fight Hanna was waging on Wood was shaking the foundations. If ever there was an occasion when a self-seeking man would have reached out for compromise or a "deal," here it was. But the President opened no avenues of negotiation. Throughout he maintained the offensive he had taken at the start but he managed to fight for Wood with all his might without making it appear that he was fighting against Hanna at all.

Roosevelt's skill as a politician never showed to better advantage. He remained always a jump ahead of his opponents. Wood's recess appointment lapsed at the very height of the struggle early in December, when the special session of Congress merged in the regular session and with it lapsed the appointment of 167 other officers. An officer appointed during a session of Congress could, however, not assume his new rank until he had been confirmed. Wood therefore would apparently—at least for a time—have to remove the second star from his shoulder. The opposition rejoiced at his imminent discomfiture; but Roosevelt, with a boldness that staggered the legislators, declared that between the special and the regular session a "constructive recess" had occurred and declared the list reappointed, with Wood at the top.

Calumny Raises Doubts.

The opposition by its very persistency played into the hands of the President. They were trying to prove too much and the committee began to lose patience. Witnesses of dubious repute at all; respectable witnesses who happened to be drunk; and other witnesses who had a personal spite to satisfy, offered evidence of moral obliquity in such abundance that senators who were inclined neither to one side nor the other began to suspect that something other than a passion for justice lay behind this outpouring.

On the other hand, Gen. Bliss, who was no satellite of Wood's, had, he declared, during the two years and a half of his service with Wood in Cuba, known "no action of his that was not consistent with the character of an honorable officer and a man of integrity."

The middle of December, almost a month after the hearings began, the Secretary of War at last took the stand. For six hours he was examined and cross-examined. One charge after another which had not already evaporated in the evidence collapsed before his explanations.

"From December, 1899, until Gen. Wood came out of Cuba in May, 1902, I kept track of what was done and studied the subject as carefully as any business man ever studied his business or any lawyer ever studied a case which he was to try. * * * I directed the course of the government in Cuba, and I knew what was going on, and I feel under a debt of the greatest gratitude to Gen. Wood for what I think is one of the most conspicuous and meritorious pieces of work ever done by an American."

The committee voted, eight to two, to recommend to the Senate that Wood be confirmed, but the fight was not yet won. The Senate itself was still to be heard from. Hanna declared doggedly that he would carry on the fight, but for once the relentless fighter failed to carry out a threat. He died in the middle of February. The virulence of the attack on Wood had already vitiated what valid evidence the witnesses had presented. The opposition had blown its case too big, and it had exploded. Wood was confirmed as major general, 45 to 15.

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

HOLLYWOOD—This is the age of the lowdown in Hollywood, too.

In the not-so-dim past, players' lives were open books — written by their press agents. The same illusion that surrounded their screen selves often was carried into their real lives.

FIFI D'ORSAY

These days of frankness and honesty, however, have made it hard to find a star who isn't proud to have knocked a home run with two strikes on him.

The player who has had a humble beginning seems to the fans more real and home-folky, it has been discovered, and it pays him to talk about it. El Brendel likes to have it known that he used to peddle milk and ice in Philadelphia. Robert Montgomery frequently refers to his start as a section hand with a railroad, his first job. Jack Oakie tells about his days as a chorus dancer with a New York show.

Inventing a Past.

Fifi D'Orsay, the oo-la-la girl who is getting on, made the error of manufacturing a past when she came here. She told every one, including this gullible writer, that she was born in Paris, that she was destined for a convent instead of the footlights, and that she found difficulty in overcoming parental objections to a stage career. Part of her story was right: She was born.

Folks back in Montreal, where Fifi was reared, disowned her as she had them. They remembered her as a stenographer who went to New York and finally got a break. The kickback was terrific. Pictures Fifi played in actually flopped in Montreal. Apologies and explanation eventually got Fifi back into the good graces of her home town. She rates there now.

Be Yourself!

So much is written about Hollywood these days that players don't dare to make up more fascinating lives than they actually have lived.

The feeling that "their public" would rather know them as everyday human beings, not without faults, has gradually become general. Real-life heartaches and struggles are always more interesting than any biographies that might be taken out of the air by imaginative publicists.

Hollywood, unconsciously or otherwise, has adopted the slangy "Be yourself!"

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Here's the Way to Treat Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

WITH scattered cases of flu breaking out in this locality, don't take chances with colds NOW—it's too dangerous! Unless checked quickly, colds tend to pull down the body resistance and may pave the way for an attack of flu with all its serious complications.

1 At the first sign of stuffiness or irritation in the nose or throat, snuff some Vicks VapoRub up the nose several times a day. This will often check a cold at the start.

2 If the head is all "stuffed up"—clogged with mucus or phlegm—or there is much coughing, melt a teaspoonful of Vicks in a bowl or kettle of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for five minutes at a time. This treatment has a remarkable effect in clearing the air passages, easing the breathing, soothing the irritation, relieving the cough, and helps to prevent the cold from spreading.

3 At bedtime, in order to get the benefit of its long-continued stimulation and inhalation effect, rub Vicks vigorously over the throat and chest and cover with warm flannel.

4 If possible, stay at home until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body to throw off the cold more quickly.

[Mother!—treat children's colds promptly, but avoid "dosing." Too much internal medicine often upsets the child's digestion and lowers the vitality. Being applied externally, Vicks does not upset the stomach, and can be used freely and as often as needed without the slightest harmful effect.]

TAX COLLECTIONS SHOW SHARP DROP

U. S. Statistics for Last Half of 1930 Are Less by $107,179,672.

LOSS FROM THEATERS

(Associated Press.)

A sharp decline in the income of the Government from tax collections in the last half of the 1930 calendar year was shown yesterday in statistics issued by the Internal Revenue Bureau. It reported that from last July 1 to December 31 collections were $1,306,272,075 or $107,179,672 less than for the similar period of the previous year.

Admissions to theaters and places of amusement decreased by nearly half from $2,094,295 in the last half of 1929 to $1,408,181 in the same period of 1930.

The statistics covered all taxes for the last half of the 1930 calendar year, which is the first half of the 1931 fiscal year. During the period income tax collections dropped off $77,290,836, totaling $1,107,312,091 as compared with $1,184,602,927 collected from July 1 to December 31, 1929. Corporation income taxes dropped from $625,063,813 in 1929 to $604,245,130 in the last six months of 1930, while individual income taxes dropped from $559,539,113 in 1929 to $503,066,961 in the same period of last year.

For the six months as compared with the same period of the previous years only three minor items of the 36 tax divisions showed increases. Distilled spirits for beverage purposes showed an increase of $103 to a total of $166, cigarette papers and tubes showed an increase of $59,447 to $722,411 and the tax on adulterated, renovated butter, mixed flour and filled cheese increased $145 to $5,981.

Four Bandits Rob Bank of $6,000

Masked Men Force Patrons to Lie on Floor in Richmond Branch.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Four masked bandits operating with drawn pistols held up the Liberty Branch of the Southern Bank & Trust Co. this morning and escaped with $6,000 in currency.

The men sped away in an automobile. The robbers forced patrons to lie on the floor. One man who was slow in acting on their commands was struck on the head with a pistol but not seriously hurt.

The robbery was the bank's second, the first being on January 23, 1929, when four men took $1,500.

Patent Attorney Files $35,000 Damage Suit

Suit for $35,000 damages was filed yesterday in Circuit Court at Rockville by Ernest Wilkinson, patent attorney, of Washington, naming Elizabeth W. Vierling, of Silver Spring, Md., as defendant. The suit alleges negligence in operation of the defendant's automobile, resulting in his having been struck and injured while crossing the intersection of Connecticut avenue and I street northwest, Washington.

Through Attorney Roger J. Whiteford, the plaintiff alleges that the car was being driven at a greater rate of speed than was reasonable and proper and that the driver violated the District traffic law which gives the right of way at intersections to pedestrians. Because of his injuries he is unable to continue his work as a patent attorney, he alleges, and is subject to considerable pain and expense, having suffered a stroke of paralysis as the result of his injuries.

Motorcycle Policeman Hurt; Autoist Charged

Motorcycle Policeman Wilbert C. Lewis, of the Traffic Bureau, was slightly injured yesterday when his vehicle was in collision with an automobile at the intersection of Fifth and R streets northwest. He was going north on Fifth street and Connad Fox, of West Falls Church, Va., was driving west on R when the crash occurred.

Policeman Lewis was thrown from his motorcycle and his knees bruised and uniform torn. Fox, who is 25 years old, was charged with driving while drunk and reckless driving.

Man, 45, Is Found Dead In Rooming House Here

Edward Maple, 45 years old, was found dead in a rooming house on Pennsylvania avenue northwest near Second street.

The body was moved to the morgue for an autopsy. It is believed that a certificate of death from natural causes will be issued. Police are trying to locate two sisters, one of whom is said to live in Alexandria, Va., and the other in Mount Rainier, Md.

Mrs. William Houston Johnson entertained at luncheon yesterday at Wardman Park Hotel.

The Mount Holyoke College Alumnae Association of Washington will meet at the home of Mrs. Samuel Bemis, 3312 Cathedral avenue, on Saturday at 2:30 o'clock. The assistant hostesses are Mrs. McFall Kerbey and Mrs. Arthur Palmer.

The speaker will be Miss Margaret White, who spent the summer in Germany as a member of a group from International Institute of Columbia University, who were invited to study the German schools by the Prussian Minister of Education. The subject of Miss White's talk is "Some of Germany's Youth Projects of Today."

Women's Town Club Will Give Tea Today.

A tea will be given at the American Women's Town Club, 3125 P street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock complimenting Miss Mabel Orgelman from the home office of the Vivisection Investigation League, New York.

Miss Orgelman, as legislative secretary, is here in the interests of the dog exemption bill, now pending before Congress. Through the courtesy of its president, Mrs. C. Fuller Winters, and the members the club is thrown open for this occasion. Miss E. Lina Bugbee will read dog poems, one written by Senator George Graham Best, when his own pedigreed hound named "Drum" was killed by a neighbor. A short musical program will follow. Among those taking part will be Miss Willa Semple. Those receiving besides Miss Orgelman, who represents the New York office, will be Mrs. C. Fuller Winters, who will present the guests to Miss Orgelman and who represents the club, and Mrs. Arthur Adams, who represents the District. At the tea table will be Mrs. Richard Yates, wife of the representative from Illinois; Mrs. C. V. Meisell, treasurer of the club; Mrs. Kathryn V. Growden, Huron, Mich., and others.

The affair is in charge of Louise Streeter Warren Martin and Miss Louise T. Warden.

Mrs. Erik Hendrik Louw, wife of the Minister of South Africa, will be the guest of honor of Mrs. John W. Bennett at the Celebrity Breakfast of the National League of American Pen Women, Saturday, at the Willard Hotel, when the Minister will speak at the breakfast on South Africa. Sharing honors with Mrs. Louw will be Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and Mrs. William N. Doak, wife of the Secretary of Labor. Other prominent guests at Mrs. Benett's table will be Mrs. James E. Watson, Mrs. Arthur R. Robinson, Mrs. Herbert S. Hadley, widow of the late governor of Missouri; Mrs. George Tully Vaughan, Mrs. John Mock and Mrs. Eldon King.

The members of the Gentlewoman's League have re-elected Mrs. Richard C. Dean president.

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Distressing muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond pleasantly to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant," because it gets action and is not just a salve. Musterole helps bring soreness and pain to the surface, and thus gives natural relief. You can feel how its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses.
Keep Musterole handy; jars and tubes.
To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

BOB LE GENDRE SUCCUMBS TO PNEUMONIA AT 34

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Although it is contrary to some law or other to do so, certain persons are offering tickets for sale in various prize drawings such as the Grand National Sweepstakes and the Agua Caliente Sweepstakes, and my informant on such topics advises me that business is quite brisk, indicating that the disrespect for law is widespread.

One serious difficulty is, however, that a number of dishonest characters have been selling counterfeit tickets, which is almost as bad as selling deleterious beverages under the labels of famous old household brands noted for their wholesome and nutritive character.

The reputable dealers in sweepstakes tickets who are now passing among the patrons in the large cities and at the horse tracks of the South are much incensed about this, as the counterfeits are likely to impair the confidence of the public and become a festering blot upon the warp and woof of the business.

The warp and woof of the business in the City of Jacksonville received a body blow square in the bulwarks not long ago when a local sportsman of a trusting disposition permitted himself to become the district agent of a sweepstakes which, so far as he and his patrons have been able to ascertain by diligent inquiry, was conducted with none but the most dishonest and unscrupulous motives. A stranger wearing spats and carrying a walking stick presented himself in town and by bold misrepresentations wormed his way into the confidence of the Jacksonville sportsman, who has a wide acquaintance among his fellow citizens and a reputation in the community for dispensing goods always strictly as represented on the labels. So plausible were his accounts of himself and his project that the victim was induced to accept 30,000 tickets to be sold for $1 each, at a commission of 25 cents per ticket for himself.

SPORTSMAN CAUGHT IN NET

The unsuspecting sportsman, not unwilling to turn an honest dollar and wishing to give his fellow citizens the widest opportunity to win the capital prize of $100,000, appointed subagents to sell tickets for a commission of 15 cents on the dollar, and presently, when all the tickets were sold, the field agent with the spats and walking stick came back through and collected $22,500, promising that the results of the drawing would be made known in due time.

The date set for the drawing has long since passed without any word, and the Jacksonville sportsman's most conscientious efforts to communicate with the headquarters of the sweepstake as printed on the tickets have resulted only in failure. It is true that he and his subagents have theoretically divided an aggregate commission of $7,500, but only theoretically, because they had such confidence in the enterprise that they spent most of their profits for tickets themselves. The reputation of the sportsman is such, what with his always having dealt in goods strictly as represented on the labels, that he feels very downcast about the whole affair. He must sacrifice his honor or refund the subscriptions of his fellow citizens, some of whom have been very narrow-minded about the incident and are threatening to advise the authorities. So the warp and woof of the sweepstakes business in Jacksonville, Fla., has been stabbed in the dark through the operations of a person of whom it is not too much to say that he was thoroughly dishonest and animated only by motives of personal gain.

AGENTS NOW ARE IN HOLE

It is always difficult to know whether a sweepstakes ticket is genuine or counterfeit, and, even if the ticket happens to be genuine and a winner, there is always a chance in the case of the Agua Caliente that some error in calculations will deprive the owner of a large share of his winnings. Of course I would be the last one to suggest that any of the sterling sportsmen in charge of Agua Caliente would purposely withhold for themselves a portion of a winner's winnings, but the operation runs into

Hunter Joins Tilden as Net Pro

Makes Debut on Program at Garden Next Month.

Famed Doubles Partner Not to Tour With Friend.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Francis T. Hunter, former doubles partner of William T. Tilden, member of the United States Davis Cup Team and second ranking tennis player in the United States for the past two years, decided today to follow his friend and partner into the professional tennis ranks.

Hunter announced today he would make his debut as a professional along with Tilden in Madison Square Garden on February 18. No arrangements have yet been made for a match for Hunter on the day when Tilden will play Karel Kozeluh, famous Czechoslovakian professional. He will not be able to accompany Tilden on his professional tour, but will play in the East whenever his other interests permit. Hunter is engaged in the publishing business in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Hunter Just Shy Of Title.

A veteran player, famed for his powerful drives, Hunter never has been able to scale the peak of the national championship. On two occasions he was runner-up, carrying the colors of the United States against Henri Cochet, of France, in 1928 and losing to Tilden in the 1929 finals. He was placed second in the national rankings both years.

Due to the pressure of business and the fact that Tilden, his inseparable companion in tournament play, also was out of action, Hunter took part in few tournaments during the 1930 season. As Tilden's doubles partner, Hunter made an even more impressive record than in singles play. Their big year was 1928, when they won the national doubles championship and the Davis Cup doubles.

Richards Will Show Net Wares in Movies

New York, Jan 21 (A.P.).—Vincent Richards is going to follow Bobby Jones into the movies. The professional tennis champion of the world has been signed to make two Pathe-Grantland Rice Sportlight films, it was announced today. He will demonstrate and describe tennis styles and point-winning plays.

First Reigh Count Colt Foaled by Witchbroom

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Reigh Count, Kentucky Derby winner and 3-year-old champion of the American turf in 1928, is the father of a promising son.

A chestnut colt, sired by the famous John D. Hertz thoroughbred on the Hertz farm near Cary, Ill., was born to Witchbroom on January 15.

The trainers report the youngster is in great condition and will be eligible for the Pimlico futurity in 1933 if everything goes well.

$5,000 Futurity Added To Laurel Track Stakes

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—A $5,000 race to be known as the Maryland Futurity is to be added to the program at Laurel Park. Nominations for the first three runnings will close next May.

Two-year-olds of all classes will be named for next fall's event, yearlings for 1932 and foals of this year for the 1933 affair.

The two main conditions of the stake will call for mares to be bred and their produce to be foaled in Maryland.

Track officials who announced the added event said it was hoped it would stimulate horse breeding in Maryland.

WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT, America's first famous poet, was born on November 3, 1794. His father was a man of scholarship and a lover of books, so that the boy had early encouragement in this direction. When he was 10 years old he had already begun to write poetry.

It would take a man's size steak to match this "mushroom," that is, if it really were a mushroom. It measures twenty feet in heighth and has a maximum width of fifteen feet.

• • • •

Ostriches eat some queer things, and the newly hatched baby birds start right in by eating nothing but small pebbles. As the birds grow older they do not give up this unusual diet, but tackle larger stones and any other object that might prove attractive. They have been known to swallow nails, coins, pins, handkerchiefs, keys and numerous other similar articles without ill effect. However, there is a record of one ostrich trying to swallow a parasol. That bird died.

Young Capital Net Stars Chosen by Tilden As Ball Boys for Professional Entourage

Dick and Jerry Drown Selected; May Be Used in Movies.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

DICK and Jerry Drown, sons of Mrs. Mary A. W. Drown, of 6323 Meadow lane, Chevy Chase, Md., two of the better known local boy tennis players, have been selected by William T. Tilden 2d to be official ball boys of the Tilden Tennis Tour, Inc., scheduled to open on February 18 at Madison Square Garden, with Tilden meeting Karel Kozeluh, former professional champion of the world.

Dick and Jerry, 17 and 16, respectively, and frequent exhibitors of tennis at the Edgemoor and Columbia Clubs, have temporarily resigned from Western High School, whence Dick was to have graduated in June and Jerry in February, 1932. They will leave for New York on February 15, to be instructed in their duties as ball retrievers for the professional entourage.

Washington Not Included In Itinerary.

The itinerary is still in the process of organization, but pretour plans call for no showing of the pro troupe at Washington, although Baltimore is certain to be included. Carlin's Park is the probable site of the Baltimore engagement. Engagements in the East will be limited to the larger cities, inasmuch as Tilden's moving picture contract calls for his appearance on the Pacific Coast by March 1.

Contracts were recently signed by Mrs. Drown, mother of the boys, forwarded by A. B. Cortelyou, New York theatrical agent, who is general manager of the tour. The boys will be employed until August 15, with a remuneration of $20 a week salary, $6.00 per diem and all traveling and lodging expenses. In the event that Tilden finds use for them in his moving pictures, a special disbursement will be allotted.

Ball Boys Have Many Duties.

The duties of a ball boy are manifold. He must contrive to keep the court clear of stray balls, and always see that the server is supplied with either two or three balls. Tilden holds only two balls when he serves, Kozeluh holds three. The boy also must see to the correct height of the net, and the various wants of the players.

Dick and Jerry are old hands at these chores, having ball-boyed for Tilden's last indoor exhibition here in 1928. The former champion is an old friend of the Drown family, usually making the Bethesda home his domicile while in Washington.

Harding Named Referee By Tilden.

Paul Harding, well known in the District as a developer of junior tennis, and himself no mean performer at the net pastime, has been named official referee of the Tilden tour. Harding, who has made his home in New York since the early summer of 1929, has been active as an official in the Metropolitan tennis district, and is considered by Tilden as one of the finest line judges in the country.

Lloyd Brown Signs Nat Contract for 1931

President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, must be "saying it with dollars," judging from the manner in which his players are hustling back their signed contracts for the coming season. Yesterday's mail brought him the glad tidings that Lloyd Arthur Brown, young left-hander, was satisfied with the terms offered.

Brown, after several mediocre seasons here, during one of which he would have gone to the minors had all clubs waived on him, showed signs of finally having arrived last season. He turned in sixteen victories and now not only is rated as a regular, but as a possible star during the coming campaign.

Skiing, With Wings, To Get Trial on Jan. 31

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Something new in ski jumps in which the jumper will wear wings is to be attempted at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., January 31.

Carl Messelt, skiing professional, and Halvor Garos, glider pilot, have constructed a pair of wings to be strapped to their shoulders when taking off on the ski slide. They believe they can soar with the wings at least 500 feet, twice the distance now attained by ski jumps.

Maloney-Risko Bout In Boston Canceled

Boston, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The Boston Garden today had to cancel its Jimmy Maloney-Johnny Risko heavyweight bout, scheduled for February 6, Frank Bruen, Miami promoter, warned the Boston battler he was under contract that prohibited him from engaging in any bouts until after his Florida clash with Primo Carnera on March 5.

The February 6 bout was to have been a return engagement between Maloney and his Cleveland rival.

Stribling Plans Night Training To Guard Against Sleep in Ring

ATLANTA, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—W. L. Young Stribling will sleep in the afternoons and do his training for his championship fight with Max Schmeling at night.

Pa Stribling, father and manager of the Macon heavyweight, today told of the latest innovation in boxing training.

"You've heard of night baseball and night golf," Pa explained, "but I doubt if you've heard of night workouts. Well, that's my plan for W. L.'s final period of training.

"The fight will be at night" he pointed out, "so why won't W. L. be better able to participate in a bout at night if he does his training for the previous three weeks under the same conditions?

"When a fighter is training and staying in shape and doing his practice in the afternoon and retiring early, when the night of the match comes along he's prone to be a trifle sleepy around 10 p. m. which is about the hour he has been going to bed. In this instance W. L. can catch a nap in the afternoon if he needs it and start his exercising at 10 p. m. He can be in bed by 11:30.

"Habit is a marvelous thing," Pa continued. "If he's in the habit of being wide awake and alert at 10 o'clock, so will he be the night he comes into contact with Schmeling."

Stribling will start his training in about two months at Warm Springs, Ga.

Smith Signed As Coach for N. C. State

G. U. Grid Aid Reports as Head Coach on February 15.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—John P. Smith, of Hartford, Conn., former Notre Dame football star, today was appointed head coach at North Carolina State College. He will report January 15.

F. H. Jeter, head of the publicity department of State, announced Smith had signed a one-year contract with the agreement that he would be offered a longer term next year, depending on the record the Wolf Pack makes on the gridiron this fall. His salary was not announced.

Following his playing days at Notre Dame, which ended in 1927, Smith, known on the college gridiron as "Clipper" served as Knute Rockne's aid. Later he went to Trinity College at Hartford.

In 1927, the year he captained the Notre Dame team, Smith was selected as guard on the Associated Press All-America Team.

G. U. Coach Praises Smith.

"Clipper" Smith served as assistant to Head Coach Tom Mills at Georgetown University during the 1930 football season and was in charge of the Hilltop line.

High tribute to Smith as a coach was paid by Mills yesterday upon announcement that he had signed as coach of North Carolina State. Coach Mills announced that he would attempt immediately to sign another assistant, confining his search to former Notre Dame players who would be consistent with the Rockne style of play now in use at the Hilltop.

Maryland Cubs Beat Western Five, 35-15

Maryland Freshmen tossers yesterday afternoon scored their third consecutive victory over a Washington high school five, trouncing Western, 35 to 15, in one of the cleanest games ever staged in Ritchie gym.

The yearlings asserted their superiority from the very beginning, rolling up a 13 to 0 score at the end of the first quarter. Amidon's field goals from side court in the last minute of the second period proved to be the only points registered by the Washington schoolboys during the first half, which ended 21 to 2.

Coach Jack Faber substituted freely in the second half, but even at that Western failed to get started to any appreciable extent. The all-around playing of Snyder and John Monk featured for the first-year men, while Amidon and Fox led the Western play.

Washington Demolay Victor in Frederick

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 21.—A determined theird quarter rally, which produced 15 points to 6 for their opponents, enabled Washington DeMolay basketers to trounce the Frederick DeMolays on the National Guard Army floor here tonight, by a 37 to 24 score. Previous to their rally, the Washington team trailed by one point at the half.

Playing without a substitution, the visiting team put up one of the finest games witnessed here in years. High-scoring honors went to R. Sinclair, of Washington, who sank six field-goals. W. Sinclair and Anderson also played well for the winners. Burdette was the Frederick star.

Episcopal High Five Defeats G. U. Preps

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 21.—Episcopal High's basket ball team experienced difficulty all the way here today in beating Georgetown Prep by the score of 42-31. Despite the sharpshooting of the Alexandrians, the Garret Park players kept fairly close behind through the yeoman service of Dick Heekin, who scored 14 points for his side.

Episcopal was the smoother team throughout, but was forced by Heekin's fine play to see its margin of winning cut down at the end of each quarter. The first period ended 20-7 in favor of Episcopal; at the half it was 25-13, and 34-20 at the three-quarter mark.

BOZEK STARS IN HILLTOP VICTORY

Mt. St. Mary's Five Defeated by Margin of 34-22.

GEORGETOWN University's Basket Ball Team experienced little or no trouble last night in further taming an already tame covey of Mount St. Mary's dribblers, who stepped timidly into Teoh High's gym and trotted meekly out bearing the shohter end of a 34-22 decision.

The Saints could do little ot check Georgetown, making headway only when the Hilltop regulars were cooling their heels on the bench and the game was manned by reserves. Georgetown simply was a bigger and better team all around, exhibiting greater dexterity in every phase of the game and presenting a bag of tactical maneuvers which constantly shook loose the guarding of visitors.

E. Bozek Dominates Game.

Emile Bozek, Hilltop forward, dominated most of the G. U. plays, his aggressive manner and competitive fury keeping him as close to the ball as its trade-mark. Bozek, too, pocketed more baskets than nay of his colleagues and contemporaries, showing six 2-pointers from scrimmage.

Bozek, although bowing in high-scoring honors to Dillon, center, showed about the most improved game of any of the Hilltop players. He seems at last to have gained the knack of stopping dead in his tracks after a lightning-like dribble down the floor. On the whole, the Georgetown team displayed its best available brand of smoothness, working the ball in among the slightly bewildered visitors with as hard-driven a passing offense as the local season has witnessed.

Maryland U. Meets Johns Hopkins Five

An arid spot on the college basket ball schedule appears today. The Maryland Freshmen appear in a game against Central High at College Park at 4 o'clock.

Maryland's varsity goes over to Baltimore tonight for what looks like an easy test with Johns Hopkins. The Jay Birds have shown little in the realm of caliber this year, and appear to have no surprise in store for the tried and trusted Maryland outfit.

Business' Regulars Rout Swavely, 34-26

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Jan. 21.—Swavely Preps basket ball players were able to cope with the style of play offered by the Business High substitutes, but failed to hold the regulars in check and as a result, absorbed a 34-26 beating. Swavely, battling the Business subs for the first half, led by 10 to 9. With the entrance of Capt. Bob Lucas and company, the game changed into a rout for the Washingtonians. Chatlen, Lucas and Sherman did the bulk of the scoring for the visitors, with Alger leading the home club.

Baer Matched With Loughran For Garden Battle Febrtuary 6

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Max Baer, of California, latest heavyweight hero of New York fans and the winner in the now-famous episode of the "short count," has been matched with Tommy Loughran, former light heavyweight champion, for his third New York appearance. The bout is scheduled for Madison Square Garden, February 6.

Baer, although defeated the first time he appeared in the Garden ring, caught the fancy of the fans as he dropped a decision to Ernie Schaaf, of Boston. This popularity carried him into the boxing comedy which brought him a technical knockout victory over Tom Heeney, as Referee Jack Dempsey and Knockdown Timekeeper Arthur Donovan failed to get together on the count after Heeney had been pushed through the ropes.

His next bout will give the Californian a different and probably a stiffer test. Loughran, a brilliant boxer but a light hitter, made a great record as a light heavyweight, but so far has failed to make the grade among the bigger fellows. He was knocked out by Jack Sharkey in an early attempt to join the heavyweight title contenders and since then has had an in-and-out career fighting the lesser lights, losing a decision to Schaaf, among others.

G. U. Olympic Ace Dies in Brooklyn

Set World Record in Broad Jump in 1924 at Paris.

Called Greatest Hilltop Athlete; Was Dentist in Navy.

ROBERT LE GENDRE, hailed as the greatest of Georgetown University's long line of track and field satellites, died yesterday of bronchial pneumonia at the Brooklyn, N. Y., Naval Hospital, at the age of 34, less than seven years after he achieved national and international fame as an athlete.

Death occurred unexpectedly three days after Le Gendre was admitted to the hospital. He had been a lieutenant in the Naval Dental Corps for the past two and a half years and was stationed at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he assisted in coaching the track team.

Le Gendre carried the blue and gray of Georgetown to sensational triumphs locally, sectionally and nationally, specializing in the pentathlon which is regarded as the supreme tests of the versatility of a track athlete. He earned the reputation of never having been beaten in a pentathlon which is composed of ten of the most exacting track and field events and thrice won this honor at the famed Penn relays.

Set World Record In Broad Jump.

Chief among Le Gendre's feats, however, was his shattering of the world record in the broad jump, an achievement which he accomplished while winning this event for the United States Olympic Team at Paris in 1924 with a leap of 25 feet 6 inches. The mark stood until shattered by De Hart Hubbard, famous Negro star of the University of Michigan.

Born in the French-Canadian colonly of Lewiston, Me., in 1896, Le Gendre was the thirteenth child of his family. After attending Hebron Academy, at Hebron, Me., Le Gendre entered Georgetown in 1918 and graduated with a Ph. D. in 1922. He continued his studies in the dental school, receiving a commission in the Navy after his graduation in 1927.

Le Gendre's fame at Hebron Academy preceded him to Georgetown and he at once became a notable character at the Hilltop, where his superb physique made him an object of great admiration.

Le Gendre Specialized In Pentathlon.

Under Coach John D. O'Reilly, Le Gendre specialized in the pentathlon after his second year, but only after he had romped away with a grist of honors in sectional and national meets during his freshman and sophomore years.

Despite his bulk, Le Gendre was a speed marvel and competed for Georgetown in the sprints as well as the field events and hurdles. In 1919, on one occasion, he scored 28 points out of a possible 30 in a South Atlantic meet at Baltimore, and in the same year won both the elimination tryouts in the pentathlon at Paris in the interallied meet as well as the finals.

In 1920 Le Gendre gained the honor of being champion of the South Atlantic section in the 100-yard dash, shot put, 440-yard dash, 100-yard low hurdles, javelin, discus and broad jump, as an illustration of his versatility. He broke the 70-yard low hurdles record at the University of Illinois meet and ran on the world record medley relay team.

Starred in Event At Penn Games.

In 1922 Le Gendre won the pentathlon at the University of Pennsylvania for the third consecutive year and, in a dual meet between Georgetown and Penn State, won six events for a total of 30 points. He stayed out of competition in 1923, but in 1924 gained his chance for his record-winning broad jump with the Olympic team by winning the try-outs at Harvard.

Le Gendre's track triumphs overshadowed his other achievements at Georgetown, but he was a better than fair pitcher and twirled several games for the varsity nine, as well as taking his place in the varsity backfield, where he used his speed to fine advantage. Coach O'Reilly, however, did not want his track ace to risk injury in other sports, and his baseball and football careers were cut short in favor of his track exploits.

Last January Le Gendre was named defendant in a divorce suit by his wife, who charged desertion.

U. S. G. A. HEAD QUIETS FEARS CONCERNING NEW BALL

Ramsay Says Complaints Will End

Points Out 7 Years of Study Preceded Adoption.

Helps Average Player, Does Not Hurt Pros' Game.

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—From the window on the twenty-third floor, we could see the select beating down on the smoky peaks and the chimney pots of mid-town Manhattan. Cold, miserable weather without, but within the discussion turned to golf, and the new ball.

"What's all the shooting for, about this new ball?" inquired stocky, genial and practical-minded Herbert Hartley Ramsay, one-time captain of the Andover golf team, one-time manager of the Yale football team, now president of the United States Golf Association.

He referred to the new lighter and larger golf ball, standardized this year by the U. S. G. A.—the sphere that is 1.55 ounces in weight, 1.68 inches in diameter as contrasted with the old regulation ball measuring 1.62 inches and weighing 1.62 ounces.

Many Golfers Have Wrong Ideas.

"Somehow or other," continued Ramsay, "many golfers have the idea this new ball has just been brought out of a hat as a trick to make things harder for them. I hear complaints that it cuts off too much distance. I hear it won't putt and does tricks.

"The fact is that the new golf ball adopted by the U. S. G. A. is the result of nearly seven years of exhaustive, disinterested study and development.

"It does not handicap the long or the medium or the short hitter. It gives better lies through the fairway. It is, on the whole, easier to handle around the greens.

"We started to work on this ball in 1922, the year after the 1.62 size was standardized, for the sake of having a uniform ball. Up to that time there was no standard.

"Over a year ago we decided to adopt the new ball, anyway, but served a year's notice so as to allow sufficient time for the manufacturers to make the switch.

Is Sure Complaints Will Vanish.

"I feel sure that complaints will vanish as soon as the great army of the golfing clan gets to know and appreciate the new ball. It won't cure a hook or a slice or do anything miraculous. It still will be necessary to hit the ball properly to get results, but the new size will be found to have many advantages over the old.

"I have been interested in the showing of the professionals since the first of the year. A few complained at first that they lost some distance. They have changed their tune. If you have noticed, the scores at such tournaments as the Los Angeles and Agua Caliente opens have shown about the usual proportions of subpar performances. In short, the results, so far as the stars are concerned, will be about the same; so far as the average player is concerned, much better."

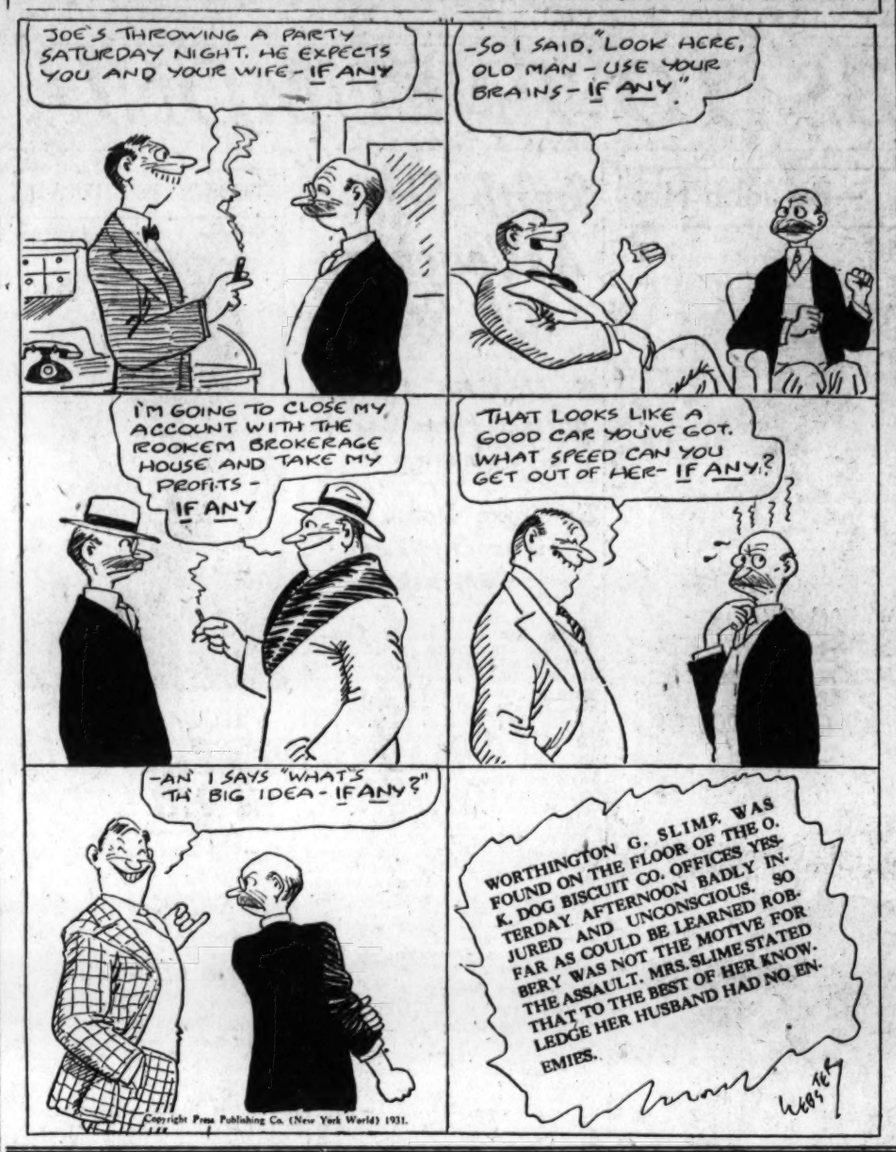
The Events Leading Up to the Tragedy —By H. T. Webster



Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

THE Hialeah Park offers an all-claiming card today, and the fields are none too large. The best race of the program is the fifth, for fillies and mares at a mile. MUFF should win. Throw out her last two races. She was beaten by Lady Ebony in one and by Grace Darling in the other, running second in both.

There is much complaint about H. R. Riley's riding, and it seems that both of the Greentree Stable filly's failures at this track were due to poor riding by Riley. The chart says a poor ride gave the race away to Grace Darling on Monday. She has less opposition today than in her previous races at this track. PRETTY POSE appears the strongest of the field to contest the issue. DIRECTLY won her last race, beating June Moon and Dea, and should get the show money. PRETTY POSE'S last few races were below her best form. RELIC is the only one of the others which has shown any form recently.

FIRST RACE—MINERALOGIST appears best in the first race. His recent racing has been at St. Johns, where he won two dashes against very ordinary opposition, but up to that in this race. LITTLE TOOTS is making his first appearance at this track, and on New York form has a chance to win, and should at least be the contender. He ran with better fields at Empire City last fall. NIGHT EXTRA is best of the others. He made a poor showing the other day in the race won by Sunny Morn, but this is a different kind of field.

SECOND RACE—LITTLE COVENTRY has the call in the second event for maiden 3-year-olds, at a mile and 70 yards. His two races at Miami have been too bad for any reference, but in his last start at Jefferson Park his race was good and would win this if repeated, and he was only beaten a half length by Dick Shively. There is impatience because horses are so slow to run to their true form at Hialeah. ROCKY DAY is regarded the contender. He was far back in most of his New York races, but ran against better horses. SIS LARGO ran fairly well at Bowie, and should show in this field.

THIRD RACE—Class improves in the third race, 5½ furlongs, for 3-year-olds and upward. COOTS appears best of the field. He has been running in good fields at the Fair Grounds, and in his last race there was second to Agitator. His race at Miami against Whisp and others was not so good, but he should have nothing to fear in this race. MORDROM may be the contender. VOLTABUSH has some chance to be in the money. SUN MEDDLER'S recent races have been so bad that he can not be considered on form.

FOURTH RACE—WOODGAIN should have it easy in the fourth race. Throwing out his race of yesterday, when he was unplaced to Sterling Silver, and reverting to his first Miami race, when he was second to Calgary Kay, he seems to be much the best of this field. His racing at New Orleans also suggests he is in front of this field in class. GLENNO has good form at St. Johns and may be the contender. JAMES M, on New Orleans form, should figure in this race.

SIXTH RACE—RAMUS will have YOUR FLAG to beat in the sixth race and may be able to do so on his last contest, which was on Tuesday, when he ran second to Dis Dame, going the 6 furlongs in 1:21 1-5. He closed a lot of ground in the stretch and held on well. He is a 3-year-old maiden of the Nevada Stock Farm. On the other hand, YOUR FLAG has the class of the field, and beat Meek at Laurel last fall, and ran other good races. He is by American Flag, and it seems strange he has reverted to cheap claiming races. SORRY won at St. Johns and may get in the money.

SEVENTH RACE—MY SCOOP lost a race the other day he should have won when he was beaten by Bounding Deep and others. He should win the seventh race. CROYDEN has speed, but suffers from bad underpinning. He won two races at St. Johns and may be the contender in this race. FAIR ALBERT should hold the others safe. HERB ASHBY has an outside chance.

DR. PARRISH VICTOROVER FAVORITE

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 21 (A.P.).—In a three-horse race over a heavy track, H. Wingfield's Dr. Parrish proved the best of the trio that competed for the purse in the Little River Claiming Handicap, 6-furlong feature here today.

He carried 118 pounds, ran the distance in 1:16 2-5 and paid $6.30. Begorra was second and the favorite, Prometheus, third and last.

There was not much to the running of the race. Dr. Parrish broke a bit slowly, but was immediately sent up and into the lead. From the half-mile pole the winner was never out of a pull, with Malley sitting perfectly still.

Begorra, hard ridden through the stretch, was up to take the place by a length from Prometheus.

Emerson Gives Up Plans for Ring Team

Emerson Institute has been forced to cancel all engagements scheduled for the boxing team of the school, due to the inability to promote interest in the sport. Emerson's opening match was to have been against the Staunton Military Academy battlers, on February 14 at Emerson.

The November 14 date remains the only doubtful spot on Emerson's grid schedule for next season, the choice of three games with college freshmen being offered. William and Mary, St. John's and George Washington are the three in question. The season will open with a game against the National Training School.

Coach H. P. Sanborn has a real task ahead of him next fall when football holds away. Present plans call for the graduation of his entire 1930 outfit.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

MONGOLIANISM.

MONGOLIANISM has proved baffling for the physician, the research student and the geneticist. It is a congenital condition, and it is not acquired as the result of wrong diet, disease or anything like that. It was thought that Mongolians were born only to mothers who had been worn down by too much child bearing, or by hard work, age, or what not. But many observations upsetting that theory have been brought forward. Another theory was that some disease of the unborn child, such as syphilis, or some other form of infective disease, was responsible, but that theory has not stood up well. Another quite farfetched notion was that Mongolianism was a throwback to the characteristics of a Mongolian strain which was melted into the Caucasian strain some thousands of years ago. It is impossible to either prove or disprove this conjecture.

It is quite probable that Mongolianism results from some disturbance of one or more ductless glands. That could be established as a fact without answering the question—why? In Mongolianism there is the characteristic eye slant. The face and head have shapes that differ from the usual. The arms and legs do not maintain the proportions, in size and length, as compared with the trunk which are usual in normal people. The organic and bodily changes of puberty do not follow the usual schedule. Vision is poor, and when the back of the eye is examined there are characteristic abnormalities in the retina.

The Mongolian child is easy to get on with; in disposition is passive and inoffensive. He has very little capacity for learning, either from books or from the contacts of life. Examination of the head with X-rays shows peculiarities at the base of the skull. These, Dr. Timme holds, indicate pressure by the pituitary body. His theory holds that the abnormalities of the pituitary cause the Mongolianism. This still leaves unanswered the question: Why the change in the pituitary? Close examination, gross and microscopic, of the brain, at autopsy shows certain changes that appear to be peculiar to Mongolianism. But this, too, fails to answer the question. Why?

FIND OUT THE CAUSE.

Miss J. E. M. writes: A friend of mine has inflammation of the eyelids. I want to know if it is serious? What is the cause? Cure? Does it take a long time for them to heal?

REPLY.

The answer to your question depends on the nature of the eyelid trouble. Trachoma, one such disorder, is a serious matter. Other forms of granulated lids are not so serious. Then, the eyelids may be red from eye strain.

LOCATION IS IMPORTANT.

J. L. writes: How long does streptococcus last? Can it be cured by any diet?

REPLY.

Streptococcus is a variety of microbe. I judge you left off a word, and that you intended to ask how long does a streptococcus infection last. Even then your questions can not be answered. The location of the infection must be taken into consideration. In addition, there is more than one kind of streptococcus, and people vary as well.

STOCKS ARE UNABLE TO MAINTAIN RALLY

Carriers Rise 1 to 4 Points, but Later Lose; Index Remains Unchanged.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY UP

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Inability of the industrials to follow a rise in the rails made the results of today's stock trading a standoff, but the strength of the bond market offered encouragement to those who are more interested in broader trends than the daily fluctuations of share prices.

An unfavorable fourth quarter earnings estimate for the United States Steel Corporation, placing net between 30 and 40 cents a share—considerably below earlier forecasts—found the so-called pivotal industrials wavering and quite willing to go down. Selling in this group was accompanied by declines elsewhere and a number of important utilities lost early advances. Carrier shares reacted from their highs. So delicately was the buying and selling adjusted among the three major divisions, however, that the closing composite price of 90 issues was unchanged. Sales continued small, aggregating 1,407,535 shares.

Net changes, with a few important exceptions, were negligible. U. S. Steel's loss was 1½, half a point above the day's low. American Can, International Harvester and Bethlehem Steel were off about a point, while National Biscuit, despite record earnings for 1930, were down 1¼, although it had been 2 points lower.

Auburn Auto Gains 6 Points.

American Telephone, General Electric, Union Carbide, North American and General Motors closed either at or slightly above Tuesday's final levels. A short squeeze in Auburn Auto brought a 6-point rally. Westinghouse and Allied Chemical dropped about 2.

The move in the rails was accompanied by renewed reports that a favorable Interstate Commerce Commission report was likely in the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac recapture proceedings, involving the question of present reproduction costs in relation to valuation. At their best prices rail stocks were up 1 to 4 points and some managed to hold the top. Atchison, Southern Railway, Frisco and New Haven closed 1½ to 2¾ higher.

The weekly steel reviews reported moderate gains in ingot output, although at a slower rate. Iron Age estimated operations at 44 per cent of capacity, a 2 per cent rise, but noted that inventory replenishment had "failed to bring in as much business as was expected," and that seasonal requirements were "not only subnormal, but tardy in maturing." Steel said the underlying belief that the worst was over has not been disturbed.

Bonds Add Optimistic Note.

The strength of bonds was general. With the volume of new offerings carefully adjusted to absorptive capacity, that market is acting as though it might, this time, mean business, and its behavior is regarded in banking circles as most encouraging, since improvement in foreign trade will depend to no little extent on favorable borrowing conditions here.

Wheat and corn moved within fractional limits and closed virutally unchanged. Cotton featured the commodities with net gains of 4 to 10 points in the active months, although the old January future was up 26 points.

Sterling exchange firmed slightly, but was stil around the gold import point, and there was some question as to whether a fast steamer, leaving Southampton tomorrow, would pick up a shipment for New York. Other European rates were about steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Free selling developed on rallies in grains today, and advances failed to hold well. The selling was associated with stock market fickleness that largely counterbalanced price effects of abnormal rains in Argentina and of wheat-crop uncertainties both in this country and India. Rains in southern Argentina were reported almost three times normal.

Wheat closed irregular, at ⅛ cent decline to ⅛@⅜ cent advance, corn unchanged to ⅜ cent up, oats unchanged to ⅛@⅜ cent higher, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

Late setbacks in securities had a noticeable bearish influence on cereals, as grain traders had been taking their cue largely from earlier upturns of stocks. At times a notable strengthening factor as to wheat was announcement that for the last six weeks 9 inches of rain had fallen in southern Argentina, compared with a normal of 3.6 inches in 1930, and that delay to Argentine wheat shipments was threatened. Punjaub Province, the largest wheat producing section of India, confirmed acute shortage of moisture and reported that acreage had been reduced almost 3 per cent.

Near-zero temperatures and widespread lack of snow covering over domestic winter wheat territory served as additional but transient stimuli to wheat buyers, especially as some damage from freezing and thawing in the Ohio Valley was officially noted. Drought relief for wheat in United States dry areas was reported negligible. However, late selling was given impetus both by seasonal weakness and owing to doubt expressed by a leading authority that United States flour export business based on borrowed wheat would amount to much in view of prevailing low prices for Argentine and Canadian wheat.

Smaller receipts of corn were indicated, but the prospect brought no additional buying support either to corn or oats.

RAILS LEAD BROAD ADVANCE OF BONDS

SESSION PROVES ACTIVE

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Bond prices took another step toward the two-year peak level reached last fall in an active market session today.

The dearth of profitable short term investment opportunities brought a good inquiry from banks and insurance companies for seasoned long term obligations. The lustrous tone of railroad bonds was the outstanding feature and the day's advance carried some of the most active legals to new highs for the last two years. Included in the rail group that established prices that are the best since 1926 were Atchison 4s, Union Pacific 1st 4s, New York Central Construction 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio General 4 1-2s and 6s, and Texas & Pacific 1st 5s.

The volume of transactions increased about $1,000,000 over yesterday. The closing list showed a large turnover in about a dozen of domestic issues, notably Alleghany Corp. 5s, Rock Island 4 1-2s, which gained a point, Cincinnati Gas & Electric 4s A, Detroit Edison 4 1-2s, trading on a when issued basis, General Theaters 6s, Pensylvania 4 1-2s, Frisco 4 1-2s, Western Maryland 4s, Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, Oregon Division, and Texas Corporation 5s.

American Telephone 5s duplicated their 1930 high and there were some good gains in other utility issues. The recovery continued in bonds of the International Telephone and its subsidiary, Postal Telegraph. Postal 5s, have recovered 22 points from the 1930 minimum of 50.

United States Governments, which are in wide demand among banks desiring very liquid forms of investment, were firm and quiet.

German and Italian bonds attracted the bulk of the attention paid Foreign obligations by buyers. German 5 1-2s advanced 1-2 and was the most active issue on the exchange. Rome City 6 1-2s were strong.

Sale Is Announced Of Tire Factories

United States Rubber Co. Acquires Western and Northwest Plants.

Detroit, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Officials of the United States Rubber Co. today announced the acquisition of the factories of the Gillette Rubber Co. at Eau Claire, Wis., and the Samson Tire and Rubber Co. at Los Angeles Calif.

The acquisition of the new factories is expected to double the company's tire production. The former plant will serve the northwestern territory and the latter the territory west of the Rocky Mountains.

F. D. Carpenter, former manager of the main factory at Detroit will be in charge of manufacturing operations in the Los Angeles plant, and F. B. Davis, jr., president of the United States Rubber Co. will be chairman of the board of directors of the Los Angeles plant, which will be known as the Samson Tire & Rubber Corporation, division of the United States Rubber Co. R. B. Gillette of the Eau Claire factory will remain as chairman of the board of that unit.

TWO CAPITAL BANKS REELECT OFFICERS

CITIES SERVICE NET UP

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Directors of Mount Vernon Savings Bank at their annual meeting of organization yesterday reelected all present officers as follows: Claude H. Woodward, president; A. O. Wharton, William H. Johnston, E. C. Davison, Frank W. Lee, vice presidents; Robert T. Highfield, cashier; Leo E. Madigan, comptroller; T. Edwin Norris, A. Mistretta, assistant cashiers; Hayden Johnson, counsel.

The meeting of organization of the Departmental Bank's board also occurred yesterday and resulted in the reelection of all the following officers: J. T. Exnicios, president; Clyde Reed, E. W. Libbey, C. E. McCoy, vice presidents; L. A. Rosafy, secretary; Mrs. M. L. Wallace, R. R. Lizzi, assistant cashiers.

Less than 20 per cent of students in courses offered by Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, discontinued their studies during the first semester according to statistics made public yesterday by chapter officials. They revealed that of 291 students enrolled in six classes, 243 took examinations at the completion of courses.

Report on Banking Students.

Of 72 students enrolled in the class in banking fundamentals, 55 took examinations; in commercial law, of 47 enrolled, 41 took examinations; in negotiable instruments, of 59 enrolled, 51 took examinations; in economics, of 67 enrolled, 57 took examinations; in credits, of 22 enrolled, 19 took examinations and in investments, of 24 enrolled, 20 took examinations.

While there were 369 enrollments during the first semester, figures are not yet available on the classes in public speaking and debate and personal efficiency, work of which is not yet completed. There were 19 enrollments in the former of these classes and 59 in the latter.

The course in public speaking and debate will be continued until some time in April. In all probability there will be an advanced course for women in personal efficiency, this also terminating some time in April. The second semester, starting January 26, will see the beginning of the trust functions course under the direction of Theodore Cogswell, register of wills for the District of Columbia.

States License Insurance Firm.

Announcement by Spencer B. Curry, vice president and general manager of the Great National Insurance Co., of Washington, D. C., of the licensing of the company to do business in the States of Maryland and Delaware, should be of extreme interest to the many stockholders of the company resident here.

Mr. Curry has just returned to Washington after several weeks' absence supervising the establishment of extensive agency representation for the company in the State of Georgia, completing a chain of representation in all of the cities and towns from Washington south to Savannah.

The company will now consider applications for agencies in Maryland and Delaware and expects within a few months to have a satisfactory representation throughout the two States.

Cities Service Net Gains.

Cities Service net earnings for the year 1930 were $58,307,813, a new high record for any year in the history of the organization and an increase of more than 34 per cent over 1929, which heretofore had been the banner year.

The company's net earnings for the twelve months were 6.24 times interest and discount on its debentures. Net to stocks and reserves amounted to $48,675,755, or 6.65 times preferred stock dividends.

Granite Association Meeting.

Building activities of the Federal Government in the next few months will boom the granite quarries industry, J. D. Sargent, of Mount Airy, N. C., declared at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday with the opening of the annual convention of the National Building Granite Quarries Association.

Several promotional campaigns to arouse the interest of the country in granite building construction are to be furthered at the meeting, which will continue through Friday. Practically all of the large operators are present for the convention.

The Association of Paving Contractors, which always meets concurrently with the gathering of the granite operators, will also get under way in the Mayflower today. A number of the persons here belong to both groups, as their business interests are similar. There will be a dinner and dance tonight which will be attended by both groups in the hotel headquarters.

Woman Steals Teeth; Is Sent to Hospital

After testifying in Police Court yesterday that she had stolen the false teeth of a man 80 years old "to keep him from eating," Hester I. Smith, colored, 56 years old, was sent to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation.

According to police, the woman entered the room of George R. White, 80 years old, on Maryland avenue near First street northeast, and found him sick in bed. She is alleged to have taken a pocketbook, $13.30 in cash, a pair of eyeglasses, two razors and the teeth. Charges of larceny and intoxication were continued.

Harding Camp to Install Officers.

Warren G. Harding Camp, Sons of Veterans of the Civil War, will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, Homer Building, to install officers. Judge Oliver P. M. Brown is commander-elect. Dr. A. A. Taylor, department commander, will act as installation officer.

Curb Review

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Trading quickened in todays Curb market, but price trends, while irregularly higher much of the day, were in the main, narrow, divergent, and confusing.

The day's transactions aggregated 366,000 shares, or 137,300 more than yesterday's. Active trading in Electric Bond & Share and United Gas, which it controls through Electric Power & Light, contributed much to the day's activity.

United Gas showed the most aggressive strength in some time, rising about a point to 10¼ in a large turnover. The move in this issue was coincident with the news of the formation of United Gas Public Service Co. As an operating subsidiary to develop and expand properties. Other Gas issues were quiet, although Duquesne and Lone Star worked a little higher.

Electric Bond & Share sold up moderately, reacted t oshow a temporary loss of a point, then rallied to close off only ⅛. American Commonwealths B, a lightly traded utility, shot up 6 points. Northern States A gained 3, Insull Utility 2, and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Electric Power & Light warrants, 1.

Oils were mixed. Standards of Indiana and Ohio gained about a point. Vacuum and Kentucky lost about as much, and Cities Service and Gulf eased fractionally. Coppers were firm. Newmont gained 3 points, and Hudson Bay and Noranda were up fractionally.

Among industrials and specialties, great Atlantic & Pacific, normally a wide mover, advanced 9 points. In the aviations, Douglas and Excello were firm, but Western Air dropped 3. Canadian Industrial Alcohol A sold up a point, reflecting rumors of a merger or close working agreement, and U. S. Gypsum and Tobacco and Allied gained as much.

Ford, Ltd., moved up ½. In the investment trusts, Pennroad was a little higher, reflecting strength of rails on the big board.

Work Opens Next Week On $20,000 Water Main

Work will begin next week on the laying of a 48-inch water main on New Hampshire avenue between M street and Dupont Circle, Capt. Hugh P. Oram, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, announced yesterday. The project is to cost about $20,000.

It is expected to complete the job by March 30, after which the avenue will be repaved immediately, Capt. Oram said. Money for both items was made available in the 1931 appropriations.

Reported Leap Off Span Starts Hunt for Body

Police failed to find the man who was said to have been seen leaping from P street bridge into the Rock Creek gorge below early yesterday morning.

An unidentified man, who left the site before police obtained his name, telephoned police headquarters that he saw a man climb the railing and throw himself into the void. A fruitless search was made by police and the fire rescue squad.

PHILLIP C. CAMPBELL DIES

Resident of Capital 31 Years to Be Buried Tomorrow.

Phillip Christian Campbell, 53 years old, of 3113 Eleventh street northwest, died yesterday morning at his residence after a brief illness. He had lived in Washington for 31 years, coming here from Haymarket, Va.

Mr. Campbell was for many years proprietor of a grocery store in Falls Church, Va., and commuted between his home in this city and the Virginia town. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Lucy Campbell; a son, Louis Campbell, and one sister, Mrs. Bertie Thompson, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at the Second Baptist Church at Falls Church, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the Rev. Walter H. Brooks, pastor of the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church, officiating. Interment will follow in Falls Church.

ALBERT E. BOOTH DIES.

Carpenter, Active in Church Work, to Be Buried Tomorrow.

Albert Edward Booth, 65 years old, of 426 Newton place northwest, died yesterday at his residence after a month's illness. He had lived in Washington for the last 42 years, following the carpenter's trade.

He was a member of the Maccabees and had been an active worker in Episcopal Church circles of Washington. Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Ella Booth, and two daughters, Miss Hanna Booth and Mrs. Lorena Barham, both of this city.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Chambers funeral parlors, 2400 Chapin street northwest, with the Rev. George Fiske Dudley, pastor of St. Stephens' Episcopal Church, officiating. Interment will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

MRS. R. D. HARLAN DIES.

Funeral of Wife of Clergyman Tomorrow at Residence.

Mrs. Margaret M. Prouty Harlan, of 2230 California street northwest, died yesterday in her apartment following a stroke of apoplexy. She had lived in Washington for four years, coming here from Geneva, N. Y.

She is survived by her husband, the Rev. Richard D. Harlan, and two sisters, Mrs. Walter Crispy and Mrs. A. M. Beddall, of New York City.

Funeral services will be conducted from the residence tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Alleged Fugitive Is Held.

James Albert Kennedy, 29, alleged to be a fugitive from justice, was arrested yesterday at Thirty-fourth and M streets northwest by Policeman W. O'Connor of the Seventh Precinct. He gave his address as Rosslyn, Va. According to police who are holding him for action of Virginia authorities, he is believed to have escaped from detention in the southern part of the State.

Benefit Card Party Planned.

The 500 club of Keane Council, Knights of Columbus, will hold a card party at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the K. of C. hall, 918 Tenth street northwest. Receipts will go into the relief fund for needy members. Mrs. William A. Mulligan will be hostess. Charles J. Dean is chairman of the club.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Wed. Jan. 21, 1931—8 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Fair with rising temperature Thursday; Friday mostly cloudy and warmer; light variable winds, becoming gentle to moderate southerly by Thursday night.

For Maryland, fair with rising temperature Thursday; Friday mostly cloudy and warmer, probably light snow in extreme west portion; gentle variable winds, becoming moderate southerly by Thursday night.

For Virginia, fair with slowly rising temperature Thursday; Friday mostly cloudy and warmer; diminishing northerly winds becoming southerly by Thursday night.

The northeastern disturbance is now centered north of Newfoundland. Belle Isle, 29.18 inches, and the disturbance that was over the lower lake region Tuesday night has moved eastward and merged with it after having caused light local snows in the lake region, the extreme upper Ohio Valley, and in portions of the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States. The disturbance that was over Alberta has moved southeastward over Minnesota with diminished intensity, Minneapolis, 29.94 inches, and a disturbance of wide extent is central over the Gulf of Alaska, Kodiak, 29.20 inches, with rapidly falling pressure, and rain along the Pacific coast as far south as northern California. Pressure is high from Ontario south-southwestward to Mexico, Vera Cruz, 30.30 inches, and thence northwestward to Idaho, Salt Lake City, Utah, 30.26 inches, and from northern Alaska southward over the District of Mackenzie. Point Barrow, 30.72 inches. The weather has become colder in the lower lake region, the upper Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic and North Atlantic States, Montana, and Alberta, and it has risen from Manitoba southward to the west Gulf coast and in portions of the plateau region.

The Minnesota disturbance will move eastward, and it will likely cause light snow Thursday night or Friday in the lower lake region, the extreme upper Ohio Valley, and the northern Appalachian region. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Thursday and Friday in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be lower in New England Thursday, but it will rise in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the lower lake region and the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States Thursday, and throughout the Atlantic States on Friday.

UNITED STATES COURT OF CUSTOMS AND PATENT APPEALS.
Wednesday, January 21, 1931.

No. 3300. The United States vs. Draeger Shipping Co. Opinion by Graham, presiding judge. Die plates, matrix plates, sealers and roller parts of seal embossing and printing presses were assessed at 40 per cent as manufactures of metal. The importer protested that they were properly dutiable at 30 per cent as machine parts. The United States Customs Court sustained the protest of the importer and their judgment is reversed. Garrett, J., dissents.

No. 3336. The United States vs. Foochow Importing Co. Opinion by Bland, associate judge. So-called temple blocks were assessed at 40 per cent as musical instruments. The importer protested that they were properly dutiable at 33 1-3 per cent as manufactures of wood. The United States Customs Court sustained the protest of the importer and their judgment is reversed. Graham, P. J., and Garrett, J., dissent.

No. 3350. The United States vs. Soy Kee & Co. Opinion by Bland, associate judge. Same issue as No. 3336, supra. Judgment reversed. Graham, P. J., and Garrett, J., dissent.

No. 3288. Edward Jefferson, Inc., vs. The United States. Opinion by Garrett, associate judge. Backwashing machines were assessed at 35 per cent as textile machinery. The importer protested that they were properly dutiable at 30 per cent as machines or parts thereof. The United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importer and their judgment is affirmed.

No. 3348. Pitt & Scott vs. The United States. Opinion by Lenroot, associate judge. Oil paintings to illustrate magazine stories were assessed at 20 per cent as works of art, including paintings in oil. The importer protested that they were properly free of duty as original paintings in oil, not articles of utility. The United States Customs Court overruled the protest of the importer and their judgment is affirmed. Bland and Hatfield, J. J., specially concur.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

TUITION FEES LOOM FOR SCHOOL PUPILS FROM OUT OF TOWN

PARENT PAYING TAX IN DISTRICT EXEMPT

Nonresident Students Should Not Crowd Out Children of Capital, Is View.

The Board of Education will take steps to restrict the attendance in District schools of children living in Maryland and Virginia, who do not pay tuition, it was disclosed at a meeting yesterday.

The board as a unit is opposed to the attendance of nonresident children who do not pay tuition except in cases of children whose parents pay taxes in the District.

A poll on the nonresident question was taken several days ago. The board will ask Corporation Counsel William W. Bride how far it can go in restricting nonresident pupils.

Would Initiate Policy.

The board desires to initiate a policy permitting nonresident children to attend local schools for a tuition charge only when there is room for out-of-town children in the schools.

An exception would be nonresident children whose parents pay taxes in the District.

President Charles F. Carusi takes the view that taxpayers outside of the District help to maintain good schools, and that there is no reason why their children should crowd out the children of parents who contribute toward the schools in the District.

Carusi states that the board does not intend to take a hostile attitude toward the nonresident pupils, but is endeavoring to formulate a policy fair to all. The rule would not be put into operation until the end of the school year.

Army Officers Children Exempt.

Under the present school laws, the children of parents who work in the District, and the children of Army officers are exempt from paying tuition in local schools. A number of other privileges are in favor of the nonresident with the result few pay tuition.

Yesterday's action will be transmitted to Representative Simmons, who is interested in the nonresident situation.

A cake was presented to Mrs. David F. Cannon who, until last Saturday, was Miss Margaret Lee Fultz. She is personal clerk to Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools. The bridegroom is the son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The cake was made at the Dennison Vocational School.

Midland Mayor's Wife Will Be Buried Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Midland, Md., Jan. 21.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at St. Joseph's Catholic Church for Mrs. Elizabeth Lancaster Phillips, wife of William B. Phillips, Mayor of Midland and former county commissioner. Burial will be in St. Michael's Cemetery, Frostburg.

She was a member of the Catholic Daughters of America. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. John J. Campbell, Midland, and Mrs. John W. Brannon, Fayette City, Pa., and one brother, George W. Lancaster, La Vale, Md.

General Assembly Resumes Tuesday

Maryland Body Adjourns After Committees Are Named.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 21. — The Maryland General Assembly, following brief sessions today, adjourned until next Tuesday at noon. Since complete organization has now been effected, by appointment of standing committees for the Senate and House, the way has been cleared for getting down to business when sessions resume.

The adjournment was taken because comparatively few bills have made their appearance in either chamber thus far, so there was little to demand the attention of the lawmakers until the committees formally begin functioning.

Dam Abolishes Old Graveyard

Church Near Cumberland Must Seek New Site for Burying Ground.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 21.—Removing a cemetery in which more than 300 bodies lie is one of the necessary results of the secondary dam that is to be built in Bedford County, Pa., nine miles north of Cumberland, to augment Cumberland's water supply, it was announced today.

Nearly a century old, the Fellowship Cemetery of the Methodist Protestant Church is on the edge of the area that will be flooded by a lake to be formed back of the present Lake Gordon. The church will have to be moved also.

A meeting of the church members will be held tomorrow to determine on a new site.

TWINS UNHURT IN CAR CRASH

Although the side of the car in which they were riding was crushed in when sideswiped by an Army truck in Hyattsville yesterday, Elizabeth, left, and Mary Louise Miller, 3¼-year-old twins of Berwyn, Md., were unhurt. The car was being driven by Mrs. Thomas L. Miller, mother of the two children.

GREEN AUTO ENTERS LIMERICK MURDER

MILKMAN TELLS OF CAR

Another automobile yesterday entered into the investigation of the murder of Beulah Limerick, when Patrolman Robert F. Langdon, who is held in the District Jail in connection with the murder, gave authorities information regarding a light green roadster which he saw parked in front of the Limerick house.

Langdon told Detective Sergt. John F. Flaherty and Carlton Talley that he saw the machine one morning about a week before Thanksgiving. Langdon did not know the make of the car but said it was a roadster of light green.

It came to his observation, he said, as he was walking past the Limerick house toward Eastern High School, where he was to do traffic duty during recess period. He was on foot at the time, he said.

Detective Sergt. Flaherty said last night that he will talk today to Mrs. Martha Bargfrede, close friend of the slain girl, to learn whether any of the acquaintances of the girl's owned a light colored automobile.

The head of the homicide squad said that the only one of the girl's acquaintance who owns a roadster is Dewey Ryan, and he has no connection with the murder.

Donald E. Boyer, a milkman, who works for the Chestnut Farms Dairy Co., told authorities that on the morning of the murder between 4 a. m. and 4:30 a. m., he heard two shots near the vicinity of the Limerick home and soon afterwards saw a light-colored roadster drive from behind the house.

Amherst Girl Engaged.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 21 (Special).—Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Hanger, of Amherst, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cornelia Hanger, to E. H. Irby, of Blackstone. The marriage is to be celebrated during the spring.

FATHER OF THREE DIES OF EXPOSURE

James G. Greenwood, 32, of Alexandria, Falls Asleep on Cold Ground.

WENT ON FISHING TRIP

A fishing expedition to Fox Ferry ended in tragedy for James G. Greenwood, 32, of 619 South Fairfax street, Alexandria, yesterday. The man, nearly dead from exposure, was found by a companion of the night before at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Greenwood died a few minutes later.

According to the story told police by James A. Moffett, 23, of Livingston road, Congress Heights, he and another man, Leroy Cook, 23, of Oxon Hill, Md., met Mr. Grenewood near Fox Ferry Tuesday night. They left him asleep on the ground, Mr. Moffett said. Yesterday Mr. Moffett returned to the spot and Mr. Greenwood aroused to ask for a drink of water. The water was given him, and he died suddenly a few moments later.

Mr. Greenwood's body was brought to the District Morgue by Harbor Precinct police. Dr. A. S. Grossberg, of Casualty Hospital, pronounced him dead of exposure.

Mr. Greenwood is survived by his wife, three children (Elsie, 8; James, 6, and Mary Jane, 5); a sister, Mrs. Julia Wilkins, and his father, James Greenwood, sr., all of Alexandria.

Daylight Thief Takes $50 From Store's Till

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 21.—A well-timed daylight robbery was executed here shortly after noon yesterday when a thief entered the Boulware & Son grain and feed store and rifled an old fashioned self locking money drawer of $50 in $5 bills while the proprietor, D. J. Boulware, was waiting on a customer in the rear of the establishment.

The drawer had been inadvertently left unlocked and the robber experienced no trouble in opening it. Other bills of smaller denominations and a considerable amount of silver was untouched.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AN APPEAL FOR A GOLF RULING.

MR. H. H. RAMSAY,
President, United States Golf Association.

Dear Sir: When you get around to it, would you mind considering some new rule to cover the case of golfers like Mr. John Kieran, the sports columnist? Mr. Kieran is a golfer on occasions but a student of bird life by instinct. Whenever the gentleman hears the cry of a bird he must interpret and identify it. This is an interesting and commendable diversion under proper circumstances, but when one is a golfing opponent of Mr. Kieran out in the great open spaces it is very trying. Indeed, there are few mental hazards equal to the knowledge that just as you get your putt lined up there will come a twitter from a nearby sapling and that Mr. Kieran will cry out, "Hark! Carolina red-crested bullfinch!" or something of that sort.

* * * * *

Mr. Kieran knows his bird cries, I will admit. I do not know his equal in catching the throat notes of a winged creature at any distance and giving them a reasonably accurate classification, unassisted. But it has no relation to golf.

* * * * *

On a recent occasion I was Mr. Kieran's opponent on a Southern golf course. This was a mistake on my part, as I should have realized that if you are going to play him at all you should play him as far north as possible where the birds are relatively few. This particular country was full of birds and from the first tee-off I knew I was in for it.

* * * * *

I put my second shot into a trap, curiously enough. Mr. Kieran had taken eleven and had by this time approached me. I had measured the chip to the green and had gone into my back swing when, from a tree across the green, came a "Tweet! Twir-r-r-r-r! Tweet!"

"Yellow-headed grackle!" cried Mr. Kieran, his eyes a-sparkle. "Quiscalus quiscala! Very rare in these parts."

I dubbed a shot.

"That's a female. The male has a purple tuft," said Mr. Kieran. "I've seen 'em as far north as Spuyten Duyvil."

* * * * *

WELL, I got on the green in twelve. Mr. Kieran sank his putt for a thirteen and I had to sink mine from nine feet to halve the hole. It was a rolling green. I studied the ground carefully and took my stance.

"Squee-r-r-r-rp! Eek! Eek! Eek! Squee-ee-ee-r-r-rp!" came from a thicket a few yards east.

"Panama Canal Zone double-pointed self-stabilizing calico warbler" exclaimed Mr. Kieran.

My putt was six feet short.

"Sometimes called the long-billed Papuan spider thrush," said Mr. Kieran. "It flies backword during the mating season and lays a convex egg."

This time I putted four feet beyond the cup. I was determined to hole out.

"Cincinnurus Regus, it is classically called. Note the delicate texture of the tail feathers!" said Mr. Kieran.

* * * * *

WELL, I got a sixteen and we went on to the second tee. It called for a drive of 150 yards across water. Mr. Kieran went into the lake, obviously, and stood back for me to drive. I sized up the distance and drew my driver far back, prepared to put everything I had into the stroke.

"Che-e-e-ek! Chee-chee-chee-ek! Trl-l-l-ll-ll-ll-eep!" came from a fence rail nearby.

"Burpee's deepchested Dakota cowbird!" piped Mr. Kieran, dashing over to confirm his identfication. "It builds its nest in dairy pails."

SASSCER MAY STILL BE HEAD OF SENATE

FIRE CHIEF IS FINED $10

Although Prince Georges County lost when the presidency of the Maryland State Senate was awarded a few weeks ago, Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer still has a chance for the chair, due to his acceptance of the post as Democratic floor leader.

In case the president's place becomes vacant during a session, the floor leader is in line for the position, although it goes through the formality of an election by the senior body of the Legislature. And in case Gov. Albert C. Ritchie is nominated by the Democratic national convention in 1932, and resigns to run, the present president, Walter J. Mitchell, will step into the gubernatorial shoes, leaving a vacant chair on the rostrum in the Senate chamber.

It may be that some such consideration as this was in Sasscer's mind when he accepted the chairmanship of the finance committee, which carries with it the floor leadership. It was the general impression, when he was mentioned as president, that if he could not attain the major post, he would prefer to remain chairman of the committee on judicial proceedings.

A bill to provide for an extension of the time allowed for payments of paving assessments in Brentwood was one of the first to be introduced in the Legislature. It was presented by Delegate William F. Keyes and provides that property owners shall have ten years instead of four, as at present.

The bill also permits the town to borrow 6 per cent of the assessed value of the town, instead of the present limit of 4 per cent. At the same time, it provides that town certificates of debenture may be issued between five and ten years, the interest to be paid semiannually instead of annually.

It is understood that the current depression is making it harder for property holders to meet payments on the street improvements, which accounts for the extension asked. The bill also provides that no paving work shall be done if 51 per cent of the abutting property owners object.

Another bill which is being framed will relieve the residents of Bladensburg, Riverdale, and Berwyn districts of the heavy taxes which have been levied to pay for Edmonston road. When built there was no county fund for lateral roads and the gasoline tax had not been levied. Therefore the road, although paralleling, and, in some measure, supplementing, the Baltimore boulevard, is paid for only by residents of the districts it traverses.

State's Attorney Alan Bowie yesterday paid the fine for a man he had helped to convict. Fred Jackson, colored, was fined $10 for driving without a license, but the amount was paid by Bowie, as Jackson was the man who notified authorities of the Bladensburg jail-break Tuesday morning.

Jackson appeared in county police court in Hyattsville and admitted that he had been driving without a license. Judge J. Chew Sheriff had no alternative except to impose the fine.

William Carr was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction on charges of driving while drunk and joy riding. Three months was imposed on each charge, and he was sentenced to pay a fine of $1 for reckless driving. He was arrested by State Policeman W. R. May.

Charles Bodmer was fined $111 on three charges. He paid $100 for attempting to drive under the influence of liquor, $10 for having no license, and $1 for reckless driving. George Norgle, of Landover, was held for the grand jury on a nonsupport charge brought by his wife, Mrs. Louise Norgle. His bond was fixed at $500.

Three cases involving illegal possession of liquor were heard, a fine of $50 being imposed in each case. John Rosenberg, of Baltimore, was sentenced on a liquor count, and also fined $25 for speeding more than 40 miles an hour, $10 for having fictitious markers, and $1 for having no registration card. County Policeman Claude Reese arrested the man on the Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville with three cases of whisky.

Three cases of liquor also cost Cletus C. Hutton, of Sixth street northwest near F street, $50. He was also fined $10 for ficticious markers and $2 for having no registration card. Another $50 fine was placed against Charles McWhirt for transportation and possession.

Noble F. Rushe, chief of the Hyattsville fire department, was fined $10 for having ficticious markers and $1 more for having no registration card. He was arrested several weeks ago by State Policeman C. W. Cubbage.

Daisy M. Boydston, of S street northwest near Fifteenth street, paid a fine of $15 for reckless driving and no registration. Milton J. Cohen, of Ninth street northwest near Emerson street, was fined $25 for speeding over 40 miles per hour. Both were arrested by State Policeman M. J. Baggert.

A fine of $25 was placed against Danny Lauder for hunting without a license, and driving without one cost Dorothy Anderson $10. Fines of $25 for reckless driving were placed against J. T. Dodson, of Hyattsville, and Jessie M. Hart. Burt Williams was fined $4 for being drunk and disorderly in public.

Mrs. Etta Dillon was fined $5 for assault and battery on Mrs. Margaret E. Bloom. A stone is alleged to have been the weapon used in the attack. Fines totaling $22 were imposed on Arnold E. Simpson on three traffic charges. He was convicted of using old tags, $10; having no license, $10, and having no registration, $2.

Bus Catches Fire Near Washington

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 21.—Twelve passengers and the driver of a southbound motor coach narrowly escaped injury when the vehicle, which had experienced much engine trouble on the journey from Washington, burst into flames five miles north of here on the Richmond-Washington highway.

The driver, G. T. Smith, extinguished the blaze with a tank of chemicals before it reached the gas tank.

Cat, as Alarm Clock, Gives Call at 5 A. M.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Jan. 21.—A cat that registers the hours of the night and acts as an alarm clock when 5 o'clock comes in the morning, is reported as belonging to T. C. Brown, a Luray butcher. Each morning Mr. Brown's cat, grown fat on the refuse of his meat market, raps at a screen door, notifying its owner that it is time to get up, according to the butcher.

The remarkable part of the cat's performance, the owner states is that it pulls a screen door back five times with its paws and its knock registers 5 o'clock. Mr. Brown always arises at the cat's summons, he states. The cat sleeps in the house, but has a means of egress by which it leaves the house, going around to the screen door for its five raps.

TOWN'S ORDINANCE DECLARED INVALID

Falls Church Law on Drunken Drivers Inconsistent With State Code.

FAIRFAX MEETING IS SET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The ordinance of the Town of Falls Church prescribing the maximum punishment which can be imposed in the mayor's court of justice on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor was declared invalid by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Fairfax County District Court. The town's ordinance provides not over $100 fine or a jail sentence of not more than 90 days, while the Virginia State prohibition law provides that the minimum punishment for such a charge must be not less than $100 and costs and 30 days in jail.

The validity of the town ordinance was questioned by attorneys for George W. Suttles, who were appealing from a sentence of $100 fine and costs and 30 days in jail on being found guilty of operating a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor in the mayor's court by Mayor Leonard P. Daniel. The finding of the circuit court automatically dismissed the case against Suttles.

In announcing his decision, Judge McCarthy held that under the State prohibition law the town ordinance was invalid because it imposed a lesser penalty than provided in the State code, and that it is possible that town ordinances can increase but can not decrease the minimum punishment prescribed by the State law.

Mayor Daniel and Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Parr, of Fairfax County, immediately drafted a new ordinance for the Town of Falls Church in conformity with the State law, and it will be submitted to the town council for adoption at its next meeting.

The board of directors of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will meet this evening in the chamber's office in the Old Clerks office building at Fairfax to consider ways and means for financing the organization. At the present time it is stated there is no money available in the treasury to meet the salary of a secretary and no surplus in sight with which to prepare literature for distribution during the George Washington bicentennial celebration in 1932.

The Washington-Great Falls and Dranesville Highway Co. at their annual meeting at McLean reelected Robert N. Harper, of Washington and Leesburg, as president and member of the board of directors. Douglas S. Mackall, of Langley, was elected vice president and assistant treasurer; Herman E. Gasch, of Washington and Spring Hill, was elected treasurer, and Ralph T. Powell, of Langley, secretary. Other directors elected include E. T. Simpson and Oscar T. Wright, of Washington; A. C. Speight, G. Wallace Carper and Mark Turner, of Forestville; Albert G. Schimtz, of Great Falls; John C. Mackall, of Langley, and John W. Preston, of McLean. This company operates the toll road between Langley and Great Falls on the Virginia side of the Potomac.

The annual report of the treasurer showed that the receipts from the toll gate during the past year were sufficient to pay the operating charges on 8 miles of road between Langley, Elkins and Great Falls, but left no surplus to defray the bonded indebtedness of the company.

The Masonic Lodge No 264 at Herndon held its regular meeting in the Masonic Temple and more than 75 masons witnessed the conferring of the master Mason degree upon the Rev. Henry J. Mueller, pastor of the Northern Methodist Church, of Herndon. The degree was conferred by the team from the Manasseh Lodge, of Manassas, assisted by James U. Kincheloe of Fairfax and Hugh Reid of Cherrydale. Visiting Masons were present from New York, Alabama, Tennessee and the District of Columbia. Among the visitors from the nearby Lodges were Dr. F. W. Huddleson and Alex Haight of Fairfax, C. A. Sinclair, G. Walker Merchant, C. H. Wine, Robert Hutchison, W. M. Haydon, W. N. Wenrick and J. L. Bushong of Manassas; Hugh Reid, F. H. Doe of Cherrydale. Worshipful Master L. A. Jones was unable to be present because of illness. E. E. Gillette, district deputy grand master of this district presided in his absence.

The residents of the town of Fairfax were surpirsed to learn of the marriage of one of the town's most popular members of the younger set. Miss Cleo Virginia Young, daughter of Mrs. L. H. Young was married Tuesday evening in Washington to Joseph F. Tyler, of Alexandria. The couple will make their home in Chicago.

The Falls Church Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will hold its meting this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Moran in Falls Church.

The Women's Auxiliary, of the Volunteer Fire Department at Falls Church, has been invited to atend the banquet of the Women's Auxiliary of the Washington Fire Department this afternoon to be held in Tilden Gardens.

Earl W. Saum, of Mount Vernon; S. Cooper Dawson, of Seminary; Ronald Blake, of Oakton; George E. Kidwell, of Clifton Station, and Mark Cockerill, of Colvin Run, have been appointed by Judge McCarthy, of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, as jury commissioners for Fairfax County for the year beginning February 1, 1931.

E. L. Brandon and Mary E. Ryer were appointed by the court as trustees of the Presbyterian Church at Falls Church in place of H. E. Brown and Mary E. Cline, whose terms of office have expired.

Rufus H. Hamilton, George Smith and Emmett Pinn have been appointed trustees of the Little Zion Baptist Church at Burke in place of the Rev. L. H. Bailey, resigned, and Watt Shelton and David R. Pinn, deceased.

Joseph E. Collins, Wrey E. Johnson and Charles Hyson were appointed trustees of Ebenezer Lodge, No. 14, Grand United Order of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty. William E. Johnson, Jessie L. Terry and Joseph Collins were appointed trustees of the Blue Ridge Lodge, No. 850, Grand United Order of Odd Fellows of America.

The trustees appointed in the above orders were given all powers and duties and subject to all liabilities and responsibilities conferred upon trustees by law.

Robert Reedy, who pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, was fined $100 and costs and 30 days in jail. C. R. Harper pleaded guilty to a similar charge and the same sentence was imposed. C. A. Trammell pleaded guilty to the possession of a still and was fined $100 and costs and 30 days in jail. In each of the above sentences the jail sentence was suspended during the good behavior of the defendants.

LARGER FIRE-ALARM SYSTEM ADVOCATED

COST OF WATER RAPPED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

Determined that there should be installed a central fire alarm system in Arlington County, the presidents of the several fire departments of the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association were instructed to bring the matter to the attention of the county board of supervisors at the meeting of the association held at Cherrydale last night.

The president appointed a special committee to make a thorough study of the water rates which are charged against the fire hydrants in the county, as compared with other cities and towns. It was pointed out that the present charge of $40 per hydrant is nothing short of exorbitant, as compared with the amount of water consumed, there being at least one-half of the hydrants in the county which have never been used by the departments. Accoding to statements made the present rate will yield the county between $12,000 and $14,000.

The committee is composed of Chief Herbert F. Smith, of the Clarendon Department; Arlington County Fire Marshal Albert C. Sheiel and Deputy Chief B. S. Kidwell, of the Jefferson District Department.

With the view of creating more interest between the public and the association, President G. Frank Allwine appointed the following committee with instructions to arrange for entertainments during the year: Robert E. Kendrick, of Falls Church; Herbert F. Smith, of Clarendon; Julian E. Tapp, of Arlington; J. R. Malloch, of Ballston, and Grover E. Ballston.

A special committee of John A. Dawkins, Herbert F. Smith and Frank Tracy was appointed as an auditing committee to examine the accounts of the officers. Past President Walter U. Varney, and president of the Clarendon Fire Department, was appointed as a member of the legal committee.

The February meeting will be held with the Clarendon Department.

Chief Herbert F. Smith announced that the department would hold its annual carnival the week of June 15.

B. A. Thissell was elected president of the Rosslyn Loan Co., Inc., at its annual stockholders' meeting held at the company's offices located at Rosslyn last night. Other officers are Lawrence W. Douglas, vice president; Will W. Douglas, treasurer; Samuel F. Cooper, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Will W. Douglas, John E. Fowler, Howard B. Fields, Samuel F. Cooper, A. L. Freedman, B. A. Thissell, Lawrence W. Douglas and P. A. Howard.

Endorsement has been given by the executive committee of the Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, to the provisions of the Capper-Cramton bill providing for the building of the George Washington Memorial Parkway along the Virginia shore of the Virginia shore of the Potomac River from Mount Verno nto Great Falls.

The resolution carries with it provisions that all legion posts throughout the State of Virginia be urged to support the project.

Dr. L. R. Alderman of the United States office of education is announced as the principal speaker at the meeting of the Parent-Techer Association of the Washington Lee High School in the auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. Dr. Alderman will speak on "The Community and Its High School."

The executive committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the home of the chairman, Robert N. Anderson, at Lyon Village. Plans for the annual banquet will be considered.

With politics becoming the daily conversation at the county courthouse, attention is called to the taxpayers that all poll taxes must be paid not later than May 5 to take part in the November election when all county officers, excepting the county clerk is elected for a period of eight years, while all other county officers are elected for a term of four years.

The Arlington County Monarch Club will meet today at 12 o'clock in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse.

The Rev. Henry J. Miller, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, announces that a class for preparation for confirmation will begin tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 at the rectory. These classes will e conducted each Friday afternoon up to March 15.

Galahad Club for boys between the ages of 10 and 14 at St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its meeting Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the parish hall.

Invitations are out for a reception that is to be given Wednesday of next week in honor of Supervisor B. M. Hedrick, who was recently cleared in the circuit court of charges of misfeasance and malfeasance in office.

The reception, to be given at the home of Mrs. Henry Lockwood, Kirkwood terrace, from 4 to 7 o'clock, is being given by the women of the county who supported Mr. Hedrick throughout the hearing on the charges.

ALEXANDRIA WOMEN WILL HOLD SUPPER

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will meet tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock with a supper at the George Mason Hotel. The speaker will be Miss Emily R. Kneubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, who with other national officers is in Washington this week attending the sessions of the cause and cure of war conference, and will address the local club on preparations for the biennial convention of the national federation in Richmond, Va., in July, 1931. The State federation will be hostess and all clubs in the State will furnish special committees for the detail work.

Charles M. Seaman, bass, and Jesse E. Veitch, tenor, both soloists in Christ Episcopal Church Choir, will give vocal numbers, with Mrs. D. C. Book at the piano. Violin selections will be given by Frank Perry.

Mrs. Mary W. Troth, president of the local club, will introduce the speaker of the evening, while Miss Corinne T. Reardon, program chairman, will have charge of the other numbers on the program.

Members of the local club who will attend the dinner tonight at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest, by the Washington Business and Professional Women's Club in honor of the national federation officers are Mrs. Troth, the president; Miss Eleanor Watkins, Miss Addie Apperson, Miss Bertha K. Allison, Miss Florence A. Long and Mrs. Otis Hullings.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will address the members of Alexandria-Washington Lodge No. 22, A. F. & A. M., at the regular communication tomorrow night in the Masonic Temple on Cameron street. The communication begins at 7:30 o'clock.

Worshipful Master E. J. Skidmore has announced that all degree work for this meeting has been postponed until the next communication, to afford the members an opportunity of hearing this address. All Master Masons in good standing have been invited to attend.

The directors of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting Tuesday, discussed plans for handling the big crowd expected in Alexandria on Washington's birthday, 1932, during the bicentennial celebration, and decided to request the city council to take the necessary steps and to request the cooperation of all citizens in making the celebration a success. The plans will include a parade, and it was the impression of the directors that it will be necessary to assign parking space for the day, and also to have additional traffic policemen to handle the crowd.

It was decided to make three divisions of the committee on transportation and communication, headed by William B. McGroarty. The subcommittees are: Telephone and telegraph, C. F. Knight, chairman; W. C. Cunningham, T. E. Dyson, Lawrence Roland, L. P. Woodward and H. H. Holland; transportation, O. Ashby Reardon, chairman; W. M. Glasgow, T. R. Harrell, W. H. Moreton, Alfred Thomson, A. L. Jameson, O. P. Angelo and H. E. Gentry; traffic, Francis H. Fannon, chairman; Robert G. Carter, D. C. Givens, John E. Griesemer, Harry Hammond, C. M. Jones, Doll M. Zircle, H. H. Newton and John U. Reardon.

Mrs. Jennie V. Hildebrande, wife of John C. Hildebrande, died on Tuesday night at her home, 200 East Raymond avenue, and the funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternon from the home, conducted by the Rev. H. L. Hout, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Church. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery. She was a member of Jessica Callahan Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and that organization will hold services at the home this evening at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Ruth Anne Hearing, widow of Dr. Wellington R. Hearing, died on Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. Gouy, 11 West Walnut street. The body will be sent to Philadelphia for burial.

The standard course in Red Cross rescue work being taken by more than 50 members of the Alexandria Fire Department, will be completed tomorrow night, and many of the members of the class will then start the advanced course as soon as plans can be completed for the work.

Apple-Blossom Fete Plans Are Under Way

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 21.—The first symptom of spring, the organization of the annual Shenandoah apple blossom festival, is appearing in this historic old city, where Nelson Richards again has been named director general of the festival and plans for this annual event are beginning to take definite form again.
